ERRIN STIRRED Y NEW APPEAL OR TROOPS AFTER POLICE DISPUTE

jutant-General Orders Three Officers to Make Inquiry Following a Message From Galligan.

ARRANT ISSUED FOR K. K. K. LEADER

ief Walker Declares Smith Threatened Him After He Had Notified Patrolman of Discharge.

a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ERRIN, Ill., Jan. 31.—Herrin ght suffered from a bad case nerves. A tense feeling preled throughout the afternoon, after nightfall there was a espread apprehension of some ewal of the klan and antiklan ife which led a week ago to the ing of S. Glenn Young and two his followers, and of the klanng Deputy Sheriff, Ora Thomas.

Tonight, in response to an apal from Chief of Police A. M. lker and Sheriff George Gallin, that martial law be declared re, three officers of the Illinois tional Guard were here, looking o the situation. They are Maj. bert W. Davis of the 130th Intry and Lieuts. E. N. Hansman d M. D. Boulden, and they were ered here from Carbondale by utant-General Black, after he eived the appeal of the Police ief and the Sheriff.

Minor Incident Causes Appeal.

he only actual occurrence which ved as a ground for the appeal a dispute between the Chief Police and one of his men. In st places, such an incident uld appear trivial, and to make he basis of a request for armed erference would seem ridiculous. t not so in Herrin, where reted bloodshed, having its climax last Saturday night's fight, has lowed rapidly on small occasions strife.

Chief Walker today notified Har Crain, a member of the police ce, that he had decided to disarge him, and ordered him to n in his star and keys. Crane plied that he could be discharged ly by the Mayor and the Board Aldermen, and refused to turn er his police property.

In telling of the interview afterard, Crain said Walker made a otion as if to draw a weapon, and at he, Crain, warned him not to so, or there would be trouble.

Warrant for K. K. K. Leader.

Soon afterward J. H. Smith, ader of the Ku Klux Klan here, countered Chief Walker, and rned him not to "fire" Crain. alker said that Smith enforced demand by displaying a revolr, while Smith denies this.

The Police Chief swore out a arrant against Smith, charging m with general disturbance. He en went to Marion, county seat Williamson County, and conrred with Sheriff Galligan. The nference resulted in the sending this telegram, signed by the eriff, to Adjutant-General Black Springfield:

The Adjutant-General said, acrding to information from ringfield, that he could not take e action requested without more formation, and he telephoned to aj. Davis and the two lieutenants come here. They came in cilian clothes, and made as little ir as possible in their inquiry in e early part of the evening. At p. m., when the streets were iet, the three officers sat in a otel room, playing "rummy." Maj. Davis, who runs a newspar in Carbondale, is anti-klan.

Inquiry Being Made Quietly.

The Adjutant-General said, acrding to information from ringfield, that he could not act thout more information, and he dered Maj. Davis and the two eutenants here. They came in vilian clothes and are making eir inquiry as quietly as possible. aj. Davis, who runs a newspaper Carbondale, is anti-klan.

There are now no National Guard oops in Herrin, the few who were ere early in the week having derted after Young's funeral Thursy. A proclamation of martial here would mean the sending least three companies of troops here, to remain for or months, and would cost tate of Illinois thousands of rs. Whether it would accompermanent results in preserv-

Dog Team Racing to Check Nome Epidemic

Driver Seppalla, Carrying 300,000 Units of Antitoxin, Speeds 300 Miles to Set World's Record.

By the Associated Press.

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 31.—Nome, hemmed in from the outside world by snow-dressed peaks and deeply covered trails, expects to be saved soon from the inroads of a diphtheria epidemic by one of her own townsmen, Leonard Seppalla, a champion dog team driver.

Seppalla, riding behind a picked team of dogs, is making his way over difficult trails from Kaltag, a distance of 300 miles, endeavoring to break his own record on that road, and set up a new world record for dog team travel. He carries 300,000 units of antitoxin, sorely needed here to continue the fight against diphtheria.

Five persons have died from diphtheria. One new case, making a total of 23, developed last night. Additional cases are under suspicion and four others have come in contact with the disease, the Public Health Board announced today.

The serum was started on its 948-mile journey to Nome Tuesday, from Anchorage. It was taken 297 miles on the Alaska Railroad to Nenana, where it was transferred to dog team relays.

When Seppalla arrives he will have covered more than 600 miles, having journeyed 300 miles eastward to Kaltag.

POLICEMAN KILLED BY BROADWAY CAR

Patrolman John H. Bohlen, 49, Suffers Crushed Skull and Other Injuries.

Patrolman John H. Bohlen, 49 years old, of the Angelica Street Police District was struck and killed by a northbound Broadway trolley car at Humboldt avenue, 7200 north, at 6:15 p. m. yesterday.

The motorman, Daniel Keller of 2201 South Grand boulevard, said the car was moving at about 25 miles an hour when the policeman stepped into the track, looking north, apparently to see if a southbound car was approaching. He applied his brakes as soon as he realized Bohlen would not step aside, he said, but was too late to avoid striking him.

Humboldt avenue is the northern terminus of the beat which Bohlen was walking at the time of his death. He was scheduled to make his final call at 6:30 p. m. and it is thought that he planned to ride south and telephone from the call box at the southern end of his beat, about eight blocks away.

Bohlen had been a patrolman since June 1, 1910. He was married and lived with his wife and two sons at 4263 San Francisco avenue.

In 1921 he was shot in the abdomen by a man he tried to arrest and escaped with his life only because other officers voluntarily submitted to a blood transfusion. He was sent, the evening of June 8, 1921, to the house at 1431 Buchanan street where Richard P. Muller, who was intoxicated, opened fire with a shotgun as Bohlen opened the door. Another policeman wounded Muller and captured him.

Bohlen suffered 13 wounds in the abdomen and only a robust constitution saved him from death. The next day six members of Bohlen's platoon volunteered for the transfusion and two were accepted. After several months, Bohlen returned to his beat.

NEGRO FREED TO GIVE A WORKOUT TO BLOODHOUNDS

Eight Months' Inactivity Leaves Buster and Queenie Below Their Best Form.

Buster and Queenie, the bloodhounds of the Webster Groves Police Department, were pining for work. Surcharged with energy, this pair of manhunters was languishing in the kennel adjoining the Webster station, when last week Queenie to relieve the monotony of every-day life stepped out one afternoon and snapped at a citizen. Meanwhile, since Tuesday, a negro vagabond named Sam was languishing in Webster jail awaiting trial on a vagrancy charge.

Something had to be done about the bloodhounds, the police commissioners decided when they met to discuss Queenie's misbehavior. And thinking it over the solution to the enigma was seen in Sam.

Yesterday Police Commissioner Reichardt and Assistant Police Chief Lenz, followed by a group of interested citizens, marched out to a farm near Rock Hill with Buster, Queenie and Sam.

Sam was commanded to run. He did, and was half way across a field when the dogs were unleashed. Sam won the race, not because the dogs had forgotten their stuff in the eight months they have been idle, but because Sam used his head. He made for a barn at the other end of the field and was safe in the loft when the dogs arrived at the foot of the ladder.

Sam had been promised his freedom in exchange for this bit of labor. Rumor has it he boarded an early freight train for the great West.

70-YEAR-OLD LILY LANGTRY A GAY DANCER AT MONTE CARLO

Famous "Jersey Lily," but Lightly Touched by Age, Is Often Seen at Lively Resorts.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MONTE CARLO, Jan. 31.—Who is the oldest Dowager to indulge publicly this winter in the pleasures of dancing? Certainly very few can approach the record set by Lady de Bathe, otherwise Lily Langtry of stage fame on both sides of the Atlantic and once greatly admired by King Edward VII.

Her Ladyship, who is now well over 70, but who retains the looks, figure and voice of a woman 20 years her junior, is frequently to be seen swaying to the latest tunes on the dancing floors of such gay Monte Carlo resorts as the Night Cabaret, known as the American Knickerbocker.

She says she learned dancing only 10 years ago while on a theatrical tour in the United States, and that she thinks it is no longer a diversion for the young alone.

Vanderbilt Lands Two-Ton Fish.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 31.—W. K. Vanderbilt arrived in this port today on his yacht Ara, reporting the capture yesterday near Loggerhead Key of the largest devil fish ever encountered in these waters. Vanderbilt, fishing from a small boat, made the catch after four harpoons and twelve bullets had been shot into the fish, which was 17 feet, 3 inches long and weighed a trifle more than two tons.

JUDGE BITTERLY ASSAILS EDITOR IN BLACKMAIL CASE

"Few Things Are Meaner," Magistrate Declares, in Sentencing Stephen Clow to Six Years.

TWO-YEAR TERM FOR ADVERTISING AGENT

Publisher of Broadway Brevities Was Tried for Conspiracy to Use Mails to Defraud.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—"Few things ars meaner than to threaten publicly to blast the lives of private individuals by publishing their social or moral errors," Federal Judge Mack declared today before a crowded court room.

He then turned to Stephen G. Clow, publisher of Broadway Brevities, and sentenced him to six years and a day at Atlanta penitentiary, plus a $6000 fine for conspiracy to use the mails to defraud.

Clow's advertising solicitor, Andrew B. Brown, was sentenced to Atlanta for two years. Nat Kunnes, another solicitor who represented the trio that was convicted yesterday, was ordered back to jail to wait sentence Feb. 11.

Corporation Fined $11,000.

An additional fine of $11,000 was imposed upon the Broadway Brevities Corporation. Clow then was released on $15,000 bail and Brown on $7500 to await the result of an appeal for a new trial on nine indictments which charged that representatives of the publication collected thousands of dollars in "hush money" from prominent persons upon threats to expose their private activities.

Clow, who admitted on the stand that he was a habitual user of paraldehyde, hypodermically, sat tight-lipped throughout Judge Mack's denunciation. The publisher heard his attorneys plead for leniency on the ground that he was broken in health and penniless. He heard prosecutors tell the Court that the circulation of Broadway Brevities, published through the trial period, was increasing enormously.

Barred from Mails.

He heard Judge Mack order the periodical barred from the mails and he heard his attorney promise the publication would be suspended if Clow were promised bail while awaiting action on appeal for a new trial.

Then as Brown and Kunnes were chuckling over a page of colored comics, Clow heard Judge Mack say:

"I haven't a shadow of doubt over the correctness of the jury in finding you guilty. There is no question but that this sort of crime is meaner, nastier, more disreputable in every respect than crime involving taking money from poor people.

"No Feeling of Mercy."

"I have no feeling of mercy for men who make a business of such business. Their conduct was beyond the pale of any decent man's conception of the demands for mercy.

"Clow's threats to publish articles about men and women, to disclose secrets in their lives which they wished to conceal—even granting that those things were true—were not to protect society or punish those whom he threatened, but merely to extort money."

The Government's difficulty in obtaining witnesses to testify against Clow, because of their fear of vengeance, was apparent throughout the trial."

EXPULSION OF PATRIARCH MAY BRING ALLIED ACTION

London Believes Turkish Situation May Require Move—Greeks to Protest.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—As officially viewed at London, the expulsion of the Greek patriarch by the Turkish Government may eventually demand some kind of action by the allied Governments. The disposition for the time being, however, is to watch developments.

ATHENS, Jn. 31.—The Greek Government, it is stated semiofficially, will send immediately a vigorous note to the Turkish Government at Angora, protesting against the expulsion from Constantinople fo the patriarch of Constantinople. The note will declare that the expulsion constitutes a flagrant breach of the engagements entered into by Turkey under the treaties regarding Greece.

MISSING CLEW IN MAIL HOLDUP WAS IN SHERIFF'S SAFE

Special Prosecutor Dyer Asks for Inquiry Into Disappearance of Auto License Plate.

WAS ON MACHINE USED BY GANGSTERS

Found in River Bed and Turned Over to Willmann's Deputy — Was Not Produced at Trial.

The United States Government has a new piece of evidence in the $260,000 mail truck robbery of April 2, 1923. It is the license tag which was on the stolen automobile used by the robbers. It may be used in the trials of the two remaining defendants in the case, Max Simonson, a tailor of Fenton, St. Louis County, and Walter A. Kelly, blind lawyer. Both are charged with complicity after the robbery, by aiding in the concealment and sale of stolen bonds.

The tag, which is number 189354, Missouri 1923, would have been a valuable item of evidence in the trial of "Dinty" Colbeck and the seven men convicted with him of the robbery, but their trial ended two weeks ago, and they are now in Leavenworth prison. Colbeck and four companions serving their 15-year sentences concurrently with 25-year terms for another mail robbery, while three others are serving the 15-year terms only.

Found in Sheriff's Vault.

The tag was found two days ago in the vault of the Sheriff's office at Clayton, having been placed there while John F. Willmann was Sheriff.

At the time of the robery the number of the tag was seen and remembered by the chauffeur of the mail truck. A search for the tag was commenced. As was testified in the recent trial, the stolen Cadillac car was driven to Simonson's home at Fenton, where the loot was hidden for a time. There, it now apepars, it was removed, bent double, and tossed into the Meramec River. It was found a few weeks later, when a bather cut his foot on it, and brought it to the surface. The finder took the tag to Deputy Sheriff James Slevin at Fenton, and Slevin called up the St. Louis police, and was told that the number of the tag was that of the one sought as evidence in the mail robbery case.

Deputy Lill's Account.

Slevin says he turned the plate over to Deputy Sheriff Al Lill, and that he suggested that the postoffice inspectors be notified. Lill, who resigned last summer, said yesterday that he gave the tag to Sheriff Willmann immediately, but that he does not remember what was said about it, either by Slevin to him or by him to Willmann. The former Sheriff, now in Hot Springs, Ark., said yesterday by long distance telephone that he remembered nothing about the matter.

The importance of the tag as evidence would have been in supporting the story of Ray Renard, who turned evidence against his former gang associates, and who told of the Cadillac being taken to Simonson's house. Because of attacks of the defense of Renard's testimony, the first trial of Colbeck and the others ended in a hung jury, and a conviction was not obtained until the second trial.

Horace L. Dyer, special Federal prosecutor, said yesterday he would endeavor to learn who was to blame for the concealment of this piece of evidence. A Federal statute, making it a felony to withhold information as to a crime, might have a bearing on this case, he thinks.

OKLAHOMA EDUCATOR ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

George Wilson, Former Head of A. and M. College, Shot While Cleaning Pistol.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Jan. 31.—George Wilson, former head of the Oklahoma A. and M. College under the administration of Gov. J. C. Walton, shot and killed himself at his home here today.

Walter Benson, Justice of the Peace, declared after an investigation that "there is no doubt the shot was accidental."

"Wilson was cleaning an automatic pistol," Benson said. "The parts of the handle were lying on a bed. He had pulled a chair beside the bed and was working on the gun there.

Shell Stuck in Gun.

"There is no doubt that the shot was accidental. One shell had been stuck in the gun and others were on the bed."

Wilson was the last survivor of the famous "Wilson triumvirate" which was credited with a prominent part in the formulation of the policies of the Walton regime in 1923. Patrick S. Nagle, first of the trio to pass, died suddenly of apoplexy about a year ago; Dr. E. T. Bynum, the other member, died at his home here two weeks ago after a heart attack.

Wilson was 53 years old. He was born in Ohio County, Ky., and came to Oklahoma in 1891. He taught school and was for about seven years a member of the A. and M. faculty.

ROBBER GETS $12,650 FROM NATIONAL BANK AT FULTON

Slugs Assistant Cashier, Alone at Time, After He Refuses to Cash Check.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FULTON, Mo., Jan. 31.—A robber this morning entered the First National Bank, knocked down Robert Cowan, assistant cashier, and walked away with $12,650 in currency taken from the receiving desk.

The robber entered the bank while Cowan was alone and presented a check to be cashed. Cowan informed him that he would have to be identified. The next thing Cowan knew was when he was brought back from unconsciousness by O. M. Wilkerson, secretary of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Co., who has an office in the First National Bank.

Cowan was bruised on the head and on side of the face and it is believed that he was struck by a blackjack, which the robber wielded through the window of one of the paying cages. Cowan later described him as a young man, tall and slender, wearing dark clothes and being smoot shaved. Mayor T. Harrison Grant, vice president of the bank, said the loss was covered by insurance.

"CHAPLIN AND WIFE ON BEST OF TERMS," LAWYER SAYS

Makes Announcement in Connection With Rumors of Alleged Financial Settlement.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 31.—George Beebe, who says he is the attorney for Mrs. Charles Chaplin, wife of the film comedian, announced late today in reply to rumors of a financial settlement between the two, that, so far as he knows, Chaplin and his girl bride are "on the best of terms."

Beebe's statement directly contradicted one made last night by Edwin McMurray, San Francisco lawyer, who said he was Mrs. Chaplin's uncle and had been engaged for several days negotiating a financial settlement between the Chaplins. Chaplin's home and studio today flatly refused to make any comment on the report.

CRAZED WOMAN TRIES TO KILL PROF. EINSTEIN

Russian Widow Attacks Author of Relativity Theory With Hatpin.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Jan. 31.— Mrs. Marie Eugenieva Dickson, the Russian widow of an American citizen, attempted to kill Prof. Albert Einstein, author of the theory of relativity, with a long hatpin in his home here last night. She had insanely confused him with the former Police Chief of the Czar.

Mrs. Dickson is the same woman who six months ago tried to assassinate Krassin, the soviet Trade Commissioner, outside the Russian embassy in Paris.

German policemen, hastily summoned by Frau Einstein, seized the demented widow in the hall of the Einstein home, where she stood brandishing the hatpin at the professor. She was crying "Down with Azeff, persecutor of the Russion people," in broken German. Azeff was the notorious head of the Russian Okrana for whom she had evidently mistaken Einstein.

The would-be murderess was taken struggling to Police Headquarters and placed under observation. Physicians today said she was subject to insane hallucinations.

The mathematician is in bed recovering from the shock.

Einstein is the recipient of numerous murder threats, which come chiefly from anti-Semitic sources, so he was not especially concerned about the Paris letters. When she was arrested in Paris, Mrs. Dickson told the French authorities she wanted to kill Krassin. She carried a pistol in her muff on that occasion. After she had been kept under observation for a few weeks she was released.

TEXAN GIVEN FIVE YEARS FOR KILLING FORMER MISSOURIAN

W. L. Crawford Convicted in Connection With Shooting of Paul O'Day.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 31.—William L. Crawford was found guilty of manslaughter for killing Paul O'Day, lawyer, by a jury in District Criminal Court today. The penalty was fixed at five years.

Crawford's attorneys filed a motion for a new trial.

Paul M. O'Day was shot and killed by William Lester Crawford, Sept. 11, 1924, in the elevator lobby of the building in which the law firm of which O'Day was a member had offices. Crawford admitted killing O'Day, declaring that statements in a brief in a case contesting the will of Col. W. L. Crawford, the defendant's father, reflected upon the character of his mother, and that O'Day said in answer to a question that he (O'Day) questioned the chastity of the defendant's mother. The will case was in court for several years, but Crawford said he had not received the brief until the night before O'Day was killed.

O'Day formerly was Prosecuting Attorney at Springfield, Mo.

JUDGE ENGLISH HAD STOCK IN BANKRUPTCY DEPOSITORIES

Jurist Named in Resolution Asking for Congressional Inquiry Was Interested in 3 of 5 Banks.

SON HELD JOB IN STILL ANOTHER

President and Cashier of a Fifth Were Former Court Attaches—Creditors Got No Interest.

Federal Judge George W. English of East St. Louis, whose official acts, together with those of his former Referee in Bankruptcy, C. B. Thomas, are the subject of a resolution in Congress calling for an investigation of his court, owned stock in three of five banks in Southern Illinois that he had designated as official depositories for bankruptcy funds.

In the fourth bank, the Union Trust Co. of East St. Louis, a son of Judge English was employed. The president and cashier of the fifth depository, the National Bank of Carmi, were former attaches of Judge English's court.

One provision of the resolution asking for an investigation, which was introduced in Congress by Representative Harry B. Hawes of St. Louis, calls for an inquiry into the deposits of bankruptcy funds in banks designated by Judge English.

Creditors Got No Interest.

An investigation by the Post-Dispatch has disclosed that neither creditors nor bankrupts ever received any interest from funds in depositories designated by Judge English, although interest was demanded in some cases and is customarily paid on such accounts in most cities, especially on large deposits and long-standing accounts. In two of these banks, and possibly a third, the daily balances of bankruptcy funds exceeded $100,000.

The bank in which Judge English owned stock were the Drovers' National of East St. Louis, which failed last May; the Merchants' State Bank of Centralia and the First National Bank of Coulterville. Referee in Bankruptcy Thomas also owned stock in the Drovers and the Coulterville Bank. He and Judge English sold their stock in the Drovers shortly before it failed, but still appeared as stockholders of record on the books when the institution closed.

Sold Centralia Stock.

Judge English owned 10 shares of stock in the Drovers' National Bank; his son, T. Faris English, owned 10 shares, and Thomas owned 40 shares. In the Centralia Bank Judge English owned 12 shares. In the Coulterville Bank English owned 21 shares; his brother-in-law, J. E. Carlton, owned 67 shares, and Thomas owned 16 shares, which gave them a controlling interest in the institution.

Judge English was a director in the Centralia and Coulterville banks, and when the Hawes resolution, based on disclosures by the Post-Dispatch, was introduced, he sold his stock in the Centralia Bank. This automatically removed him as a director. It could not be learned whether he has disposed of his interests in the Coulterville Bank.

Melville Thomas, a son of former Referee Thomas, is assistant cashier of the Centralia Bank, and J. E. Carlton, a brother-in-law of Judge English, is cashier and the heaviest stockholder in the Coulterville Bank.

Ex-Appointees Run Bank.

The former attaches of Judge English's court in the National Bank of Carmi are Arthur W. Charles, president, and J. J. Harrell, cashier. Charles formerly was clerk of Judge English's court and Harrell, first assistant clerk.

The son of Judge English, who was employed in the Union Trust Co. of East St. Louis, where more than $100,000 in bankruptcy funds was on deposit most of the time, is T. Faris English, who previously had been employed as cashier at the Drovers' National Bank.

Judge English first became a stockholder in the Merchants' State Bank of Centralia in 1912, but later disposed of his holdings. After he became Federal Judge, in May, 1918, he again purchased stock in the bank, and in 1923 was elected a director. He was re-elected director Jan. 13 last, and when the Post-Dispatch two

G. O. P. TO MAKE TEST CANVASS ON MAYORALTY RACE

Voters in One Precinct in Each of 28 Wards Will Be Asked About Preference Among Entrants.

RESULT MAY GUIDE COMMITTEE'S CHOICE

Purpose Is to Determine Whether Mayor Kiel or Aloe Would Make the Strongest Candidate.

The Republican City Committee, viewing with some apprehension a crowded mayoralty field which already includes four definite candidates and six possibilities, will attempt to gauge public sentiment within the next few days by having trained workers canvass one precinct in each of the 28 wards.

These workers have been instructed to ask each voter in the precinct selected his preference as betwen Mayor Kiel, Louis P. Aloe, former president of the Board of Aldermen; Circuit Judge Robert W. Hall and Victor J. Miller, former president of the Police Board. Politicians believe that a cross-section view of sentiment thus obtained represents a fair picture of the city-wide sentiment.

What Committee Wants.

Primarily, the committee desires at this time to determine whether Mayor Kiel or Aloe would make the strongest candidate. It also desires to learn what inroads the independent Miller organization has made and whether Judge Hall will detract materially from support which Kiel or Aloe otherwise would receive.

It is likely that the position of the committee in the race will be governed to some extent on the results of the canvass. It will make no public indorsement. That gives rise to cries of "machine" and "break the slate." But the committee will quietly drop in behind the man it believes to be the stronger. Politics must be kept on a practical basis.

Grimm Not Included.

Circuit Judge J. Hugo Grimm is not included in the list whose strength the committee is desirous of testing. This probably arises from the fact that Judge Grimm is generally recognized as a candidate of City Collector Koeln, who has successfully opposed the organization on several occasions.

Aloe has a majority of the committee at the present time, but whether he will keep it or gain more adherents depends largely upon the result of the canvass.

The fourth candidate who definitely entered the field was George E. Dieckman, president of the Zoological Board, who filed with the Republican City Committee yesterday. His candidacy will be based upon eliminating wasteful expenditures by the city. He is a stock and bond broker and was born in St. Louis. He is 50 years old.

Dieckman's Statement.

"I believe a man with business experience should be Mayor," Dieckman said. "The affairs of the municipal corporation should be conducted in the same manner as those of any large corporation, and wasteful expenditures would not be tolerated for a moment in private business firms. I know money is being squandered and, if elected, I will eliminate unnecessary positions and pay a deserved sum to competent officials."

Dieckman had been an ardent supporter of Comptroller Nolte, but when he filed again for Comptroller, Dieckman decided to enter the race himself. He is running as the "machineless candidate," and says he has no political backing, but believes an independent candidate can win.

Aloe's Record.

Aloe has announced that he will run but has not yet filed. He will run on a business administration platform. He served six years as President of the Board of Aldermen, was acting Mayor on numerous occasions and was a member of the Board of Estimates and Apportionment. He also had a prominent part in drafting the City Charter and preparing the schedule of the bond issue.

AFTER MAYORALTY

GEORGE E. DIECKMAN.

Miller and Judge Hall have filed. The former is running on a law enforcement, tax reduction and economy platform. Judge Hall has not definitely announced his platform.

Others mentioned for the Republican nomination, in addition to Circuit Judge J. Hugo Grim, are City Collector Koeln, Director of Public Welfare Nelson Cunliff, President W. J. G. Neun of the Board of Aldermen. Recent years have not seen such a field.

William L. Igoe, former Congressman from the Eleventh District, apparently will receive the bulk of the Democratic City Committee support. Lawrence McDaniel, former Circuit Attorney, will run. James W. Byrnes, Democratic nominee four years ago, is backed by friends who believe he should be the nominee without opposition in view of his race against Mayor Kiel four years ago.

Sam Ben Payne, an insurance broker, without organization support, will also seek the nomination. He was formerly Mayor of Purdin, Mo.

GOLD HOSE FAD ON RIVERA

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Gold and silver stockings have become quite a fad with the charming feminine gamblers in the casinos of the Rivera. They caused quite a sensation when they first appeared in the private gaming rooms of Monte Carlo, but Paris was spared the shock because the world of fashion goes South after New Years to get away from the capital's bad weather.

These costly looking stockings, of metallic thread and which really sell at about $7 a pair, are keeping short skirts in the vogue and are a boon to the shoemakers, who are turning out quiet, sober kids in golden brown, light tan, champagne and white, that are as expensive as they are simple in design. The skirts worn with this footwear have a slight flare. There is a regular peacock parade afternoon and evening on the little square outside the Monte Carlo casino which, for no particular reason, has been affectionately dubbed "the cheese." Satin crepe, reps and taffeta are the popular dress material, being worn in black, brown, gray and beige for afternoon, and bright colors for dinner.

Forward-Looking Home Buyers

Spring time may be moving time, but February is the time to look for just the right home. The "Real Estate" columns of the Post-Dispatch are listing remarkably good buys. Foresight now will prove profitable later.

TARIFF BODY IS ABOLISHED BY VOTE IN HOUSE

Plans to Make Commission a Partisan Organization in Hands of President Led to Action.

APPROPRIATION IS WIPED OUT

Garner Leads Successful Surprise Attack When a Number of Republican Members Are Absent.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The Tariff Commission, long regarded as the instrument which was to take the tariff out of politics, was wiped out of existence in the House of Representatives today.

It was disposed of because, it was charged, it is proposed to make of it a partisan organization in the hands of the President.

An attempt made by the Republican leaders to remove all restrictions as to matters in which members of the commission might interest themselves officially, regardless of their pecuniary interest, in the questions involved was responsible for, what happened to the commission.

Representative Garner, ranking Democrat of the Ways and Means Committee, moved to wipe out the entire appropriation of $712,000, and it was done by a vote of 63 to 56.

The action of today was taken in committee of the whole when Democrats caught the Republicans napping. There are still two chances of restoring the commission. One is when the bill comes up for final passage on report from the committee of the whole. The other is when it comes back from the Senate for final approval.

May Be Dead for "Keeps."

Despite these two chances and a disposition on the part of Republican leaders to regard today's action as snap judgment which would be reversed later, the feeling of the House indicated the Tariff Commission may be dead for "keeps."

The appropriation involved is included in the appropriation bill for independent offices. The Tariff Commission may continue to function despite this action, but without salary.

Discussion of the item brought about a partisan interchange and a review of the checkered fortunes of the Tariff Commission. It also brought out some interesting views as to the function of the commission. Democrats insisted it should confine itself to fact-finding.

Representatives Wood (R.), Indiana, and Begg (R.), Ohio, expressed the opinion the commission should be partisan in its organization and that this was the only way to get a tariff report from it which would be worth while.

'How can you get a nonpartisan report from a partisan organization?" interrupted Representative Garner, who charged the President was ignoring the law calling for bipartisan commissions by packing them, either with Republicans or with Democrats in name only.

The motion to remove all restrictions from the law concerning the cases in which the members might interest themselves was made by Representative Chinkbloom (R.), Illinois.

Recites Commission's History.

In countering with his own amendment, Representative Garner recited the history of the commission. He pointed out that the practice of commissioners acting on tariff matters in which they were financially interested had resulted in a provision to the effect that no commissioner might draw his salary if he insisted on acting on issues in which his own pecuniary interests were involved. This provision drove Commissioner Glassie out of the consideration of the sugar schedule. With Glassie out, the commission finally submitted a report recommending a reduction of the duty on sugar which is still somewhere in the files of the White House.

The next step, Garner pointed out, was the succession to David J. Lewis, a Democrat. Lewis was one of those who voted to recommend the reduction on the sugar duty.

Garner called attention to the fact that the President had announced he would reappoint Lewis but had never sent his name to the Senate.

"He never will appoint David J. Lewis," Garner shouted. "He will name some Republican or some scalawag Democrat."

Arraigns Administration.

Garner bitterly arraigned the administration for its alleged partisan appointments and pointed out the selection of Thomas F. Woodlock to the Interstate Commerce Commission as an example in point.

"I suppose," Garner said, "he could not have found a Democrat who was the representative of special interest. He would not be a Democrat if he was such a representative."

With the bit in their teeth the Democrats then reduced the salary of Caldwell Jenkins, assistant to the chairman of the Shipping Board from $10,000 to $6500.

Republican leaders were considerably worried over the manner in which they were bowled over today by the Democrats. They are fearful that when the bill comes up for final action, the Wisconsin radicals who were read out of the party may elect to vote with the Democrats in which event efforts to revive the Tariff Commission are likely to be unavailing. In the teller vote on the question today, Wefald and Qvale, Minnesota Farmer-Laborites, voted with the Democrats, but Browne of Wisconsin voted with the Republicans.

It is recalled that it is Senator La Follette who opened the fight on the Tariff Commission in connection with the sugar report.

1057 TREES IN TOWER GROVE PARK RUINED BY STORM

Wanton Destruction of Birds and Vicious Misuse of Movable Property Also Described in Report.

Ravages of man and nature in Tower Grove Park are described in the annual report for 1924 of the Board of Commissioners to the Board of Aldermen. Of these matters the report says:

"The year 1924 was a difficult one for the park, with weather conditions very unfavorable for the growth of trees and shrubs, as well as other outdoor vegetation. But for the great losses of time, of opportunity and of money caused by the severe disturbances and abnormalities of the weather conditions, more might have been accomplished in needed road work and other improvements. The very beginning of the year showed severe changes of temperature, with thawing weather rapidly alternating with zero readings, and not only were roses and other other shrubs destroyed, but grass suffered more than in many a year. In the spring the lawns were in many places bare and brown, and several hundred dollars were spent for grass seed for restoration. The summer, however, was rainy, and before the end of the open season the grass was of extraordinary thickness, though interspersed with much wild or annual growth. Large quantities of this grass were cut, but little of it became ripened hay, because of the almost incessant rainfall. The mowing problem proved a trying one, with little reward for the labor expended.

Storm Ruins Trees.

On July 17 last the park was swept by the most destructive wind storm that has been experienced since the memorable tornado of 1896. The losses amounted to 1057 large trees ruined or injured, but the damage to buildings was singularly trivial. Trees more than 6 inches in diameter, uprooted or broken off, numbered 140. More than 400 additional trees were badly broken, and a still larger number crippled. Soft maples were in the majority, with 387 casualties, There were 133 tulip trees, 117 sweet gums, 65 elms and 50 oaks injured or destroyed.

It has been the aim to plant, each year, no fewer than three for every tree lost, old or young and this ratio has often been exceeded. Now, with great and sudden losses to report, the results of this planting are gratifying.

Traffic Dangers.

"The large amount of home planting in connection with new real estate developments has virtually exhausted the supplies of well-grown trees in local nurseries, and it is increasingly difficult to find trees of the kinds, size and grade required for the park within the radius of economical shipment. The need for strongly established trees has suddenly become more urgent than was expected, for the December ice sheet caused enormous damage.

"The problem of motor-car driving is as acute in this park as elsewhere, and all park traffic presents peculiar dangers because of the large numbers of children and elderly persons who are on foot.

Squirrels Hunted.

"Injuries caused by careless driving and the vandalism of visitors are of serious moment. It may seem almost unbelievable that bird houses cannot be maintained in the park, because boys wantonly destroy them. Worse still, perhaps, squirrels are pursued as game, whereas in most city parks they are welcomed as interesting pets. Wild life of every variety wages a losing fight for existence. Movable property is viciously misused. During the time when skating is possible on the small lake, new benches have been burned in bonfires, despite provision of wood for that purpose, and many newly planted trees and shrubs have been broken by the skaters."

Receipts for the year of the park, which is controlled by commissioners under the will of Henry Shaw, were $45,683.21, including $40,000 from the city, $5412.09 from coupons and interest, and $271.12 from sale of hay, etc. Expenditures were $46,713.93, the chief items being $31,741.35 for labor and salaries and $5769.03 for material for the drives.

ENGLISH HAD STOCK IN BANKRUPTCY DEPOSITORIES

days later began publication of the articles that resulted in the introduction of the Hawes resolution, Judge English sent for A. G. Veach, vice president of the bank, and said he wanted to dispose of his stock and withdraw as a director to avoid further criticism, according to Veach, who bought the English stock.

Cashier a Relative of Judge.

It was learned that a daily balance of about $100,000 in bankruptcy funds was maintained in the Centralia bank.

Neither Cashier Carlton, brother-in-law of Judge English, nor other officials of the First National Bank of Coulterville would discuss the holdings of Judge English in that institution, nor would they tell whether interest had ever been paid on bankruptcy funds. Carlton answered all questions with, "It's none of the Post-Dispatch's business what goes on here."

The last statement published by the Coulterville bank showed demand deposits amounting to $133,000, a large part of which is believed to be bankruptcy funds. Cashier Carlton would not tell how much bankruptcy money was on hand.

Cashier Harrell of the National Bank of Carmi said that neither Judge English nor Thomas were stockholders in that bank. Harrell and Charles resigned their positions in Judge English's court in October, 1923, and bought an interest in the bank.

Harrell said that Judge English made their bank a depository for bankruptcy funds out of friendship for them and that they had never had more than $15,000 in such funds on deposit there, nor had interest ever been paid on these funds. President Charles is trustee in two bankruptcy cases, the funds of which are on deposite in his bank.

No Legal Barrier.

There is no statute against a Federal Judge owning stock in any bank, whether it is a depository for bankruptcy funds, or not, nor is there any law against a Federal Judge throwing business to a bank that employs members of his family.

Other Federal Judges, and attorneys who have specialized in the study of Federal statutes, say that, while this practice may not be illegal, it would tend to show a condition that would justify an investigation for the good of the court, as it savors of using official acts of the court for the personal profit of the judge or his friends or relatives.

When seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter for a statement on the reasons for designating banks, in which he or Judge English owned stock, as depositories for bankruptcy funds, former Referee Thomas asked to be excused from making a statement on the ground that he had been the lifelong friend of Judge English.

Thomas Knows Why, He Says.

"I do know why Judge English designated those five banks as official depositories," said Thomas, "but I will not tell. That is a matter that should not be discussed by me. Judge English and I have been bosom friends for 25 years and I will not say anything to embarrass him.

"The main reason for my resignation as Referee and later as receiver in those cases was that I didn't want the Judge packing me around. I want him to be free of me.

"All I care to say for myself is that I had just got to a point in life, after years of the hardest kind of labor, where I was earning above $50,000 a year. But I am now a ruined man. I am not broke, but what can I do? Can I practice law with this thing against me?

"You will find after an investigation that I am as clean as a hound's tooth. I might have overreached myself, as lawyers sometimes do, but I never took a case that another lawyer would not have taken. I think you will find that I never did an intentional wrong. I might have taken a pretty high fee here and there, but who doesn't take all the business he can get?"

Would Not Embarrass Anyone.

Thomas would not answer direct questions based on his remarks, explaining that he did not wish to "embarrass anyone." He occupies a suite of offices on the second floor of the Metropolitan Building in East St. Louis, adjoining the suite occupied by his successor, Referee in Bankruptcy James G. Burnside.

Judge English yesterday declined to see a Post-Dispatch reporter who sought a statement concerning his private interests in banks that he designated as depositories for bankruptcy funds

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—The question is: did a Northwestern University student, by the name of Sara Ann Schweich fool the whole University of Chicago into the belief that she was a persecuted Russian Countess?

She says she did. The Daily Northwestern says she did. And the Daily Maroon says she didn't. In any event she tried to. Miss Sweich's ambition is to become a great actress, she says, and by way of practice she did her incognito stunt at the Midway campus during the summer course, posing as "Countess Olga," while a chum posed as 'Countess Volga." She says they both got away with it, fooling even the faculty. "All we had to do to get the atmosphere," she says, "was to read a half a dozen books about Russia."

SPECIAL POLICE SQUAD ON AUTO MISHAPS URGED

Grand Jury Complains of Lack of Essential Facts in Its Inquiry Into Such Cases.

FINAL REPORT BY DECEMBER BODY

Management of City Institutions and Heads of Police Department Commended for Efficiency.

Automobile accidents in St. Louis are increasing at an "alarming rate" and a special police squad should be created to deal with the problem, the December grand jury recommended in its final report to Circuit Judge Frey, yesterday.

"It has been the experience of the grand jury," the report stated, "that comparatively little difficulty was had in obtaining a unanimous verdict in practically all cases, with the exception of those cases pertaining to automobile accidents, in which cases a marked difference of opinion of the members of the grand jury frequently existed.

"The cause of this divergence of opinion is, we believe, partly due to the manner in which facts pertaining to such accidents are collected. Too frequently, for instance, the exact location of the place of the accident, of the distance traveled by an automobile, between the time of the impact and the time of complete stop of the machine, is quite uncertain.

Essential Facts Lacking.

"Other conditions surrounding the place of the accident, such as obstructions, kind of street lighting, etc., frequently remain either questionable or undetermined. The average observers, whether civilians or policemen, frequently are too greatly exercised by the accident to make such observations as would enable a jury to properly visualize the place of the accident. We have been informed that the Coroner's office has experienced the same difficulties."

The report continues that "this matter is of particular importance at this time, when automobile accidents are increasing at an alarming rate." The suggestion of a special police squad followed, with the further suggestion that the present homicide squad might appropriately make these investigations.

Work Done by the Jury.

The grand jury, of which Gaston DuBois, president of the Monsanto Chemical Works, was foreman, reported that it had investigated 29 cases, examining 155 witnesses, and returned 19 true bills and 11 no true bills. As customary, the jurors visited all teh city institutions, the managements of which were uniformly praised. Among the particular recommendations as to these were:

Provide occupation for workhouse inmates, during cold or inclement weather; early completion of the City Jail; erection of a fireproof pavilion at Koch Hospital to segregate contagious cases; segregation by race, and if possible as to offense, of juvenile offenders in the Children's Home, formerly the House of Detention, and relief of the overcrowded condition of the City Sanitarium, as is promised by transfers to the Feeble-Minded Farm.

Police Department Commended.

The grand jury reported that its contact with the Police Department, in its investigations, led it to the conclusion that the department is "ably and efficiently managed." "The salary question is an important one," the report continued, "to enable our force to retain efficient men and we recommend that the bill referring to this matter, and before our State Legislature, be given favorable consideration." Addition of 100 automobiles, which the jury estimated as the equivalent of 300 additional men, also was recommended.

As to Circuit Attorney Sidener's office, the jury reported: "We are satisfied that his staff of assistants are competent and efficient, but that they are underpaid. It is our observation that the salaries allowed assistants are insufficient to attract capable men to those positions or to retain them."

In its summary, the report concluded that "the efficiency of city management cannot be too strongly emphasized, and in this connection we welcome the investigations and reports which have been made by the Municipal Research Bureau, and urge our city officials to co-operate to the utmost with this bureau, which is doing excellent work in keeping teh public informed and interested in the affairs of our city."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 31.—Two women, each claiming to be his widow, yesterday attended the funeral of James B. Derby, 41 years old. Each was aware of the other's claims. Derby died Wednesday. In a sparsefuly furnished apartment at 1407 Belleview, Mrs. Mary E. Derby, who, according to her marriage certificate, was wedded to Derby 15 years ago, told of how she learned of the other woman's existence.

"Last September," she said, "my husband bought a meat market at 3409 East Twelfth street. On the day following his death I went to the market and introduced myself as Mrs. Derby to the clerk.

"There was another woman in the market at the time, a blond woman younger than I, and rather good looking. The clerk said: 'You are not Mrs. Derby. I know Mrs. Derby. She is here now. She is here every day.'

"The younger woman came forward and I was told she was my husband's wife. We talked for a few minutes and she told me my husband had said the Mrs. Derby who lived at 1407 Belleview was his mother." The second Mrs. Derby was found in an apartment at 2113 East Thirty-third street. She said when she first met her husband he represented himself as a prohibition agent and in this manner accounted for his frequent absences from home.

She said she had seen Mrs. Derby number one three times and that her husband had said she was his mother.

Night Riders Fire Barns.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA FE, N. M., Jan. 31.—Night riders last night fired barns of Moises de Vargas at Ojo Caliente and burned them with their contents, including 200 tons of hay. De Vargas, whose barn was burned in November, 1923, said he was sitting in his house writing a letter, when he suddenly heard the clatter of horses' hoofs and, looking out, saw his barns spring into flames. Three members of De Vargas' family have been assassinated in the last 15 years.

MAN RUN DOWN BY AUTO; DRIVER FLEES

Motorist, Pursued and Caught, Denies His Machine Was One Figuring in Accident.

Injured.

Charles Eddington, 42, of 1437 Tamm avenue, possible fractured skull, fractured left shoulder, and cuts.

Harry Grueber, 75, of 5559 Manchester avenue, fractured right collar bone and ribs and internal injuries.

George Daish, 54, of 7116 Forsythe boulevard, bruises.

Christopher Volz, 50, of 7116 Forsythe boulevard, cuts.

Mrs. J. C. Hull, 3427 Shenandoah avenue, cuts and bruises.

Charles Eddington, 42 years old, of 1437 Tamm avenue, was run down and injured seriously at Clayton and Oakland avenues last night by an automobile which was rapidly driven from the scene.

A passing motorist pursued the fleeing driver and several blocks east crowded an automobile to the curb. The driver, Jacob Lorenz, of 1043 Louisville avenue, was arrested on charges of felonious wounding and flight. He insisted he had hit no one and declared his pursuer had erred. Eddington was taken to city hospital suffering with possible fracture of the skull, a fractured left shoulder and serious cuts.

Harry Grueber, 75 years old, of 5559 Manchester avenue, was struck and injured seriously by an automobile as he waited for a westbound Manchester car near his home, at 7 o'clock last night.

The car tracks at that point are on the south side of the roadway. Grueber and his nephew, William, were waiting for an approaching westbound car when the automobile of Clay Smith, a negro, of 1925 Lucas avenue, eastbound, hit the elder man, causing fractures of the right collar bone and ribs and internal injuries. Smith said the street was so dark he could not see the men waiting by the car track. He was arrested.

George Daish, 54 years old, of 7116 Forsythe boulevard, forgot last night that Chestnut street ends abruptly at Beaumont avenue. Driving west at 9 p. m., his machine went straight ahead and was wrecked against the east wall of the Polar Wave Ice & Fuel Co. loading platform there. At City Hospital it was found he suffered bruises. His companion, Christopher Volz, 50, of the same address, was seriously cut about the head by windshield glass.

A westbound Compton street car struck the automobile of Mrs. J. C. Hull, 3427 Shenandoah avenue, as she drew away from the curb before her home yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Hull was cut and bruised.

JUSSERAND TOOK FURNITURE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

It Belonged to Him, but New Ambassador Didn't Know It.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Emile Daeschner, new Ambassador from France, is having his troubles. On his arrival he proceeded to the French Embassy, intending to install himself there without delay. He found the embassy, but that was about all. His predecessor, Jules Jusserand, who graced the diplomatic circle in Washington for 22 years, had taken the furniture with him when he moved. This was right and proper, as it was his personal property, but new Ambassadors do not always think to inquire about such matters, therefore M. Daeschner had to get an apartment near the embassy building.

C. K. Gleeson's Etching Wins $250 Post-Dispatch Prize

Harry Marbein, Washington U. Student, Gets Second Honors in Black and White Competition at Artists' Guild.

Charles K. Gleeson's etching of the St. Louis Courthouse as it nestles among the shadows of tall buildings nearby was awarded first prize of $250 in the Post-Dispatch's first annual black and white competitive exhibition at the Artists' Guild last night. The second prize of $100 was given Harry Marbein, student at the Washington University School of Fine Arts, for his pencil drawing, "The Levee," looking toward the Free Bridge, while the third prize of $50 was won by Miss Esther Silberg's pencil sketch, "In the Ghetto," a scene from a corner overlooking the back yards in a tenement district.

To these awards were added honorable mention given F. Ray Liemkueller for his etching of the Republic National Bank Building, Wallace Bassford for his drawing of Olive street canyon, and E. T. Fritton for a pencil sketch of the Art Museum.

Judges were Henry Thiede and J. Allen St. John of Chicago, and Adolph Blondheim of the Kansas City Art Museum. All are artists in black and white.

35 Artists in Contest.

Thirty-five St. Louis artists had submitted 139 pieces of work in this first black and white competition. Choice of subject was limited to scenes of St. Louis and its environs. The three judges recognized some fumbling among the works shown but expressed surprise at the quality and promise of the whole.

"It will have the effect of teaching even your artists to recognize beauty in some of the old corners of St. Louis," said Thiede, "and will help St. Louis to understand that it has an atmosphere which is characteristic and charming. One cannot have looked carefully at this exhibit without being certain that next year will see more and better work."

Results Gratifying.

"The exhibitors were not always sure of themselves or their medium," commented St. John, "yet among even these we found things of great promise. There was fine work by those who were masters of their technique and there were some unusually good things by frank experimenters."

"It is only a beginning," Blondheim said, "but a notable beginning. Such an exhibit must prove a stimulus to St. Louis artists and must, through its result, create a greater interest in the beauty spots of St. Louis."

HERRIN STIRRED BY NEW APPEAL FOR TROOPS AFTER POLICE DISPUTE

ing peace, beyond the time of its own duration, is questionable.

Mayor C. E. Anderson, who is antiklan, said tonight he believed the Chief had the right to discharge a patrolman on his own motion. However, the matter is expected to come before the Board of Aldermen at its meeting Monday night. The klan faction predominates in the board. Chief Walker and his son, Patrolman Harry Walker, were formerly klansmen, but at present are at outs with that organization.

Two Policemen Leave City.

Harry Walker and Ross Lisanby, two of the four policemen regularly on night duty here, went to Marion this evening, fearing that they would be harmed if they stayed in Herrin. The other two policemen were on duty.

There were few gatherings on the streets tonight. Some leading klansmen sat about the Ly-Mar Hotel and no other group appeared to be seeking a conflict with them. But the situation was a tense one, and only a test could have shown whether a chance shot in the street, or some other occasion of excitement would have had results similar to those which followed such a shot last Saturday night.

Sheriff Galligan, bitterly antiklan, insists that there can be no peace so long as so many men in and about Herrin have permits to carry weapons. He says there are 500 such permits, and that the first duty of troops, if called here as he desires, would be to disarm everybody.

Coroner's Verdict on Last Saturday's Tragedy.

S. Glenn Young, the Ku Klux Klan two-gun raider, and Deputy Sheriff Ora Thomas, leader of the anti-klan faction, killed each other in the pistol fight here Saturday night, the Coroner's jury found in a verdict returned at 2:30 p. m. today.

An open verdict was returned in the deaths of Homer Warren and Edward Forbes, followers of Young, who were killed in the fight.

The decision was reached after the jury had been in session four days and had examined about 60 witnesses. Every person who had expressed a desire to testify was allowed to appear on the stand and several who had given accounts of the fight to newspaper men were also summoned.

Coroner Thanks Reporters.

Coroner Bell made a statement to the jury and reporters at the conclusion of the inquest, in which he thanked the newspaper men and said:

"The reports on this investigation, I believe, are the fairest Williamson Couunty ever had."

The afternoon session was short. Long Taylor, the first witness, said he was downtown during the shooting but did not see any of it.

Ellis Armstrong, a coal miner, testified he heard some Italian coal miners say, "Soldiers will be in Herrin in a short time," the Friday morning before the shooting. He was followed by James A. Clock, who testified he heard an Italian the same morning say: "Pretty soon the soldiers come."

Mrs. Young Tells Her Story.

Mrs. Young, 25 years old, blind widow of the Ku Klux Klan gunman, was the first witness today, when the inquest was resumed.

Clad in black coat, black dress and wearing a black turban and smoked glasses, Mrs. Young was led to the witness stand in an atmosphere surcharged with sympathy for the unfortunate woman whose husband's career as a gunman was indirectly responsible for her double affliction.

After a few formal questions, Mrs. Young, in a quivering and subdued voice, testified that on the afternoon of the day of the killings, her husband came to her in their room at the hotel and remarked that he had met Deputy Sheriff Thomas on the street and that the latter reached for his pistol.

Says Young Warned Thomas.

"If you make another move, Ora, I will kill you." Mrs. Young testified her husband told her he said to Thomas.

Later in the afternoon Young left the hotel, the widow testified, but she was not there at the time. She did not hear the shooting that took place a short distance from the hotel, but later was told by friends that her husband had been slain.

She testified that she received an anonymous letter by special delivery today from Springfield, in which it was stated that three East St. Louis gunmen-bootleggers had taken part in the shooting as friends of Thomas, but little weight was given to this testimony.

It was with great difficulty that Mrs. Young retained her composure during the few minutes she was on the witness tand, which was in sharp contrast with the composure maintained by the widow of Deputy Sheriff Thomas, who appeared at the first hearing.

Another witness today was John H. Smith, business man, who was reported to have witnessed the shooting. He denied that he was at the scene, and proved by a witness that he was at his place of business, some distance away.

A testimonial to the unerring marksmanship of Williamson County's gunmen was contained in the testimony of the two undertakers, who described the autopsies they performed.

Young was shot twice through the heart, the bullets entering his body within two inches of each other. Thomas was shot in the brain. Warren was shot twice through the brain and Forbes was shot in the heart. Any single shot that found a target would have been fatal.

GALLINGAN IN PLEA FOR CO-OPERATION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., Jan. 31.—Sheriff George Galligan today made the following statement:

"It is my earnest hope that the citizens of Williamson County will get behind my office and assist me in carrying out the law through due process. I am the duly elected Sheriff of Williamson County and positively will not resign my office. Some people have insisted upon usurping the powers of my office in times past and raids have been made without proper warrants and by persons who had no lawful authority. These raids have been conducted without any regard for the sanctity of the home, no respect of womanhood and with the terrorizing of children.

"People who did not even resist these unlawful intrusions of their homes were brutally beaten, and the most vile language used to both women and children, and I fail to see how we can expect the law to be respected unless persons who seek to enforce the law conduct themselves properly, with decency, and only use such measures as are necessary to protect their own lives or persons in the matter of making lawful searches and arrests.

Promises No Discrimination.

"The elements that heretofore opposed me have now got an opportunity to demonstrate their sincerity and assist me to carry out this declaration. I promise that I will carry out the duties of my office without favor, discrimination, and past actions shall not prejudice me in the procedure. We have an opportunity to show the world that Williamson County is capable of self-government, also to see that all laws are enforced without preference. I regret to state that, in my opinion, some of our citizens seem to think that the prohibition law is the only law to be enforced, and some have violated other laws in their zeal to enforce the prohibition law.

"My record as a peace officer has been brought into question on many occasions by people who have no knowledge of what my record really is. I submit to the citizens of Williamson County that my record of arrests compares favorably with that of any other Sheriff in the State of Illinois, especially in consideration of the paid help that I have at my disposal.

Urges Friendly Co-Operation.

"In conclusion, I wish to state that I do not intend to appoint anyone to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Deputy Sheriff Ora Thomas. I have hopes that the County Board of Supervisors will now pay my present Chief Deputy, Adron Smith, all money due him, and also pay Mrs. Thomas the money due her deceased husband in the performance of his duties as Deputy Sheriff, and then continue to pay my chief Deputy, along with my other two deputies. I believe this will be a sufficient force if the citizens of Williamson County will co-operate with me in the future, let us try more brains and fewer bullets.

"I also invite the co-operation and advice of all who have heretofore opposed me, and trust that the lives of those sacrificed in the recent tragedy may be an added incentive to peace, more friendly relationship and higher regard for human life and property."

THREE HUSBANDS FOR EVERY WOMAN URGED BY EDITOR

Mrs. Ralph Tennal of Sabetha, Kan., Explains Triple Needs of Modern Life.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 31.—At the dinner the Santa Fe Railway Co. arranged for the members of the Kansas Press Association and their wives last night. Mrs. Ralph Tennal of the Sabetha Herald, talked about husbands, declared every woman was entitled to three, one to make money, one for society and a third for housekeeping.

"The husbands we have chosen or who have chosen us, I mean, are very satisfactory as far as they go," she said. "They are sharks at their leading characteristic of making money.

"Rarely is there a husband who takes naturally to domestic demands. But there is another line of resistance which he must go up against. That is social obligations. The husband who may consent to the demand of refrigerator and lawn mower, rebels violently at dining, dancing and bridging.

"The sound of jazz orchestra sets his teeth on edge; the words 'no trumps' send a cold shiver down his back, the very thought of changing his collar to go out to a dinner party, after a hard day's work, throws a gloom over his soul that even the prospect of a good dinner will not dispel. This has grown worse in these Volstead days when his better judgment tells him that no offering is safe.

"My solution for this matter is that every woman be permitted to have three husbands. The one she has for bread-winning purposes, at which he is eminently and happily successful. A husband No. 2, who will attend us gladly, joyfully in our social pursuits and who dances and likes to dance; who enjoys the theater regardless of weariness or weather. Husband No. 3 is needed to keep the domestic wheels turning without fraction. He would naturally be of the tabby-cat variety, who loves his home an dall little matters pertaining to it."

$500 PAYROLL TAKEN IN DOWNTOWN HOLDUP

Two Armed Men Force Vandevoort Annex Employes to Lie on Floor.

Approximately $500 in payroll money was taken yesterday morning from a safe in the office of a warehouse of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Dry Goods Co., on the second floor of a building at 915 Locust street, by two young men, who forced three employes to lie on the floor while a fourth employe, W. P. Schiller, warehouse superintendent, was made to open the safe.

The young men, both of whom were armed, reached the office by causing an elevator operator to violate a company ruling forbidding the hauling of persons other than employes by nonchalantly remarking: "We wish to go to Schiller's office." Two unsuccessful attempts were made by the youths to have William Irion, a freight elevator operator, take them to the office before they successfully worked the ruse on the passenger elevator operator, Glendo Nagel.

They entered the elevator after the robbery, went to the first floor, ran west in the alley to Tenth street and disappeared. Schiller said they arrived after most of the payroll money had been disbursed. The money stolen was insured.

One of the robbers was about 18 years old and the other 21. Both were well dressed.

Catholic Club to Give Banquet.

BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS DEPRIVED AIRMEN OF SLEEP

"Feel Like We'll Have to Go Around World Again for a Rest," Was Verdict After They Had Been in U. S. Few Days; Nelson's Engine Went Dead Almost in Sight of Washington.

By LOWELL THOMAS.

(Copyright, 1925; By the Chicago Tribune Newspapers Syndicate and the McClure Newspapers Syndicate.)

President Coolidge greeting the world flyers on their arrival in Washington.

BEFORE their arrival in Boston the world flyers had flown across the Pacific, across the continents of Asia and Europe, and across the Atlantic. But the continent of North America still lay ahead of them.

In the first place, their world cruisers had long passed the average life of an airplane, and until they were thoroughly tested by experts in Dayton no one knew for certain but what they might go to pieces in the air as a result of the abnormal strain they had been subjected to while flying in both arctic and equatorial regions, and while buffeted about by rough seas in Alaska, the Kurile Islands, and the North Atlantic.

Secondly, there was the ordeal by banquet and reception which the airmen were subjected to from the time they reached Boston until they completed their great undertaking at Sand Point Field, Seattle. The manner in which they survived the latter is surely one of the outstanding feats of the world flight.

They were so overwhelmed with hospitality on their way across America that they ruefully remarked, when they reached Seattle, that they guessed they would have to fly around the world again to get rested.

"At two minutes past 12 on Sept. 8, we left Boston air port for New York," said "Les" Arnold. "Ahead of us in three escort planes flew Gen. Patrick, Assistant Secretary of War Davis, and Senator Wadsworth of New York. Behind us came 10 other planes carrying journalists and photographers. Then there also was a radio operator who broadcasted everything that happened as far west as Omaha.

"Riot Call" for Welcome.

"As we passed over Providence, R. I., we could see jets of steam coming from every factory whistle; all traffic in the streets had stopped and the roofs were black with people waving to us. After leaving Providence, Gen. Patrick turned off the course so we could fly over New London, Conn., which was my home town. In New London they have a big whistle, used as a fire alarm, but the continuous blowing of it means a riot call. Although I had been away from home for a long long time and was now merely speeding by through the sky at the rate of 90 miles an hour, darned if they weren't blowing the riot call! Naturally I got a big kick out of that.

"As we passed over Bridgeport, 10 more planes from Long Island came out to escort us to Mitchel Field. After passing Greenwich, Rye and a lot of other small cities, we crossed the East River, and, turning south from the Bronx, flew right down the heart of Manhattan Island. It was a glorious sunny day, and to look down on Times Square, Fifth avenue, old Broadway and the towering skyscrapers at the lower end of the island, was another of the most thrilling experiences of the entire world flight. This was Erik's home town. But we all felt that little old New York belonged to the rest of us as well. My, how remote Labrador, Greenland, Iceland, the Balkans, the minarets of Constantinople, the mosques of Bagdad, the cities of India, the pagodas of Rangoon, the jungles of Malaya, the volcanoes of Japan, and the ice-capped mountains of Alaska now seemed to us!

N. Y. Greatest Thrill.

"Every ocean liner, every tug and every ferry seemed to be blowing a welcome to us. Strange as it may seem, this was the first time that one of the six of us had ever visited New York. 'Hank' Ogden had had to fly all the way round the globe to get here! Even crowds in this busiest of all the cities of the earth stopped for a moment to greet us and we could see that even the traffic on Broadway was held up. Although we had been thrilled at seeing Bangkok, Calcutta, Aleppo, Stamboul, Vienna, Paris and London from the sky, we all agreed that looking down on Manhattan Island was the most inspiring sight of all.

"We flew over the Battery and on out to salute the Statue of Liberty before cutting across Brooklyn on our way to Mitchel Field. As we swung over Meadowbrook Country Club we looked down and saw rows and rows and rows of autos. There must have been 10,000 of them, and the edge of Mitchel Field was black with people.

"Gen. Patrick and the two planes accompanying him landed first. The crowd, thinking it was us, nearly mobbed them. We had to circle round until the police cleared the field. Then we glided down into the wind right over the heads of the people. When we taxied into position the crowd broke through the police lines again and for 10 minutes we had to fight to keep souvenir hunters from pulling the planes to bits.

Wales on the Job.

"When we were in London the Prince of Wales had told us that he intended to visit America and he promised to be waiting for us in New York. Sure enough, there he was. He came over, his face all smiles, and as he shook hands he said: 'Great show, boys. Well done.'

"Instead of going right on to New York, as we would liked to have done, we ran our planes into the hangars and then did our usual evening's work, looking them over carefully and servicing up.

"Sept. 9 was a dark, foggy day and it was not until nearly 10 o'clock that we got off, with Gen. Patrick again leading. A stiff head wind held us up seriously, and, although our three planes had plenty of gas on which to get through despite the wind, our escort had to come down at Aberdeen, Md. From Mitchel Field we flew over Coney Island, Governor's Island, Hoboken, Philadelphia and Wilmington. Gen. Mitchell, who had flown out from Washington, met us at Aberdeen, while the escort planes were taking on more gas.

New Orleans Goes Dead.

"Ten miles beyond Baltimore the motor of the New Orleans suddenly stopped dead. Can you imagine what it feels like to be sailing along several thousand feet in the air and all at once to have your engine freeze? If so, then you can only realize about half the emotions of disgust and distress that swept over Erik and Jack, for here they were within a few miles of Washington, where they knew that many of the heads of the Government of the United States, possibly even the President himself, were waiting to welcome them at the most important reception of all."

But luckily the engine of the New Orleans had picked out the right place to go wrong. At that moment the world flyers happened to be directly above the only field in that locality suitable as a landing ground for such large planes. Several of the escort ships, including Gen. Patrick's, landed beside the New Orleans. At the General's request Erik jumped into a De Haviland and took the place of Lieut. Louis Meister, who had been piloting Gunner Nelson. So he flew into Washington with his brother for a passenger. Jack stayed with the New Orleans and discovered that the timing gears had slipped, thereby causing the motor to freeze.

All Officialdom Waits.

When the flyers arrived at Bolling field they were welcomed by the President and Mrs. Coolidge, the members of the Cabinet, and practically every high official in Washington. Owing to the delay caused by the bad weather and high winds and because the General did not want the boys to take any unnecessary risks at this late stage of their flight, the world cruisers were several hours behind their schedule. But in spite of dreching rain and important engaments, the President and his Cabinet waited patiently, passing away the time by looking over the various planes at Bolling field.

Meanwhile Harding was busy changing engines in the New Orleans so that she could be flown on to Washington the next morning. Hundreds of people came out from Baltimore to watch him, and nearly all the girls asked "Smiling" Jack for permission to inscribe their names on his plane's tail surface.

Hundreds of telegrams and cables of congratulation were pouring in from all parts of the world. They came from people in every walk of life, from the King of England to the Western Union messenger boys of Boston.

The King's cable read:

"Will you kindly convey to Lieut. Smith and the other flyers my hearty congratulations on completion, for the first time in history, of the circling of the world by airplanes? I have followed with interest and admiration the progress of this heroic undertaking."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

BILL WOULD PLACE BUS LINES UNDER REGULATORY BODY

State Senator McCawley to Amend Bill or Offer New One That Would Distribute Taxation.

ST. LOUIS WOULD GET ENTIRE LICENSE TAX

Proposal Would Indemnify Passengers Hurt in Accidents and Prevent Wild Financing of Companies.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 31.—Regulatory legislation applicable to the organization and operation of bus lines in advance of an expected extensive development of this mode of transportation in Missouri has been undertaken by Senator McCawley of Carthage. The Senator is preparing amendments to a bus line bill he introduced 10 days ago.

He today said the changes he will propose in the bill he offered may take the form of amendments or of a complete new bill to come from the Committee on Roads and Highways. He said the present bill, which contains many provisions which have been subject to criticism because seemingly drawn without sufficient consideration for the interests of the public, was handed to him by an attorney engaged in private practice, and did not meet his opinion of the requirements.

Would Regulate Lines.

McCawley said he believed there should be complete regulation, with protection for the bus companies, which would make it possible for them to be financed on safe lines and yet prevent the will financing of the early days of railway and street railway development.

It is proposed to place bus lines under the supervision and regulation of the Public Service Commission, requiring them to obtain from the commission a certificate of convenience and necessity and with power to the commission to control the type of equipment, the routes to be followed and the rates to be charged.

A license of 8 per cent of the gross receipts is to be fixed in McCawley's bill, the money to be divided between the State, the counties, the municipalities and the roa ddistricts through which the lines operate in the proportion that the road mileage of each is used. Thus, in St. Louis the city would receive the entire license tax for the use of its streets from bus lines operating entirely within the city.

Protection for Public.

Except for this tax, it is proposed to prohibit municipalities from levying another tax or fee against the bus companies.

"Within 10 years," Senator McCawley said, "the bus line will be the principal short-haul mode of transportation in the country. It is due the public that the Legislature anticipate this development and provide protection for the public.

"When the railroads and street railways were in process of development there was no regulation of financing, which resulted in a deplorable condition the country was called upon years afterward to correct. The Legislature should take the matter in hand now and provide a protection which will enable the bus companies to finance themselves on safe lines and in a way which will make certain the installation of the highest type of equipment to assure the maximum safety for the traveling public.

"It will be necessary to require every bus company to insure its passengers under policies payable to the passenger and not merely indemnifying the bus company.

Public Hearing on Bill.

"The main idea should be the interests of the public, but we must approach the matter in the knowledge that the interests of the public in the matter of dependable and safe transportation can only be safeguarded by making it possible for the companies to operate profitably."

Senator McCawley expects to have his amendments in shape within a few days. When they are ready a public hearing of the bill will be set and all persons interested will be given an opportunity to be heard.

WRONG BUSINESS ADDRESS GIVEN FOR MAN SENTENCED

Leo Lefkowitz Had Place at 2217 Franklin Avenue, Not at 1722.

Mrs. Sarah Zweig Day, who conducts a dress and millinery store at 1722 Franklin avenue, under the name of the New Model Store, has called attention to an error in a news item printed in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, which caused it to appear that a man sentenced to the penitentiary was in business at that address.

The man sentenced was Leo Lefkowitz, and his address was 2217 Franklin avenue, not, as it was printed, 1722 Franklin.

$500,000 'WINDFALL' FOR THE STATE REVENUE FUND

Balance Left From Retirement of Capitol Bonds May Be Transferred.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 31.—Financial advisers of the Baker administration, who are seeking means of bringing the State expenses within the anticipated revenue for the next two years, without too drastic reductions in pay rolls and other appropriations, have found a "windfall" in $500,000 balance in the sinking fund for retirement of State Capitol bonds. They propose to transfer this balance to the general revenue fund, thus making it available for department appropriations.

The last of the State Capitol bond issue of $3,500,000 was retired this month, and the State now owns the Capitol, clear of encumbrance. However, money from the one-cent State tax levy for retirement of the Capitol bonds still is coming in, and the Treasurer today estimated the balance would be $500,000 when all tax collections for 1924 are received.

Heretofore the costs of decorating the Capitol have been paid out of the Capitol bond tax levy, and the Capitol Decorations Commission is asking for $50,000 to finish up its work. The Board of Fund Commissioners is planning to give the Decorations Commission only $25,000, it was said, and turn the rest into the general revenue fund. The Board of Fund Commissioners, which has authority to make such transfers from funds, comprises the Governor, Attorney-General, State Auditor and State Treasurer.

LIQUOR HIDDEN IN 'SKY PARLOR'

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 31.—Bootleggers, hard pressed by dry agents here, are using "sky parlors" as depositories for their prohibited liquors, it was revealed early today, when detectives and Federal men raided a cafe.

No trace of liquor was found until it was noticed the wall had been freshly plastered. The wall was broken and a copper pipe was found, which was traced to three large copper tanks on the roof. These were filled with moonshine. The pipe ran down through the wall and under the floor to a cleverly concealed spigot near the bar.

MOST DANGEROUS ON THE STREETS AT 5 P. M.

Chart Showing Time of Auto Casualties Prepared by Safe-Council Engineers.

Five o'clock in the afternoon is the most dangerous hour to be on the street. This is the conclusion of Safety Council engineers, who tabulated all 1924 traffic accidents reported to the police. A chart with time-of-day surves, prepared for the first meeting of the Statistical Committee of the St. Louis Conference on Street and Highway Safety, last week, shows clearly that the peak of all traffic accidents is at 5 p. m.

Other interesting statistics prepared for this committee are:

Of the 187 motor fatalities in 1924, 127, or 67.9 per cent, occurred between 4 p. m. and midnight.

The Pedestrian Fatalities.

Of the 128 pedestrian fatalities, 97, or 75.8 per cent, occurred between 4 p. m. and midnight.

The peak hour for fatal accidents is 8 p. m., 28 of last year's fatalities being charged to that hour.

Forty adult pedestrian fatalities occurred at places other than intersections, indicating that "jaywalking" is clearly a distinct hazard.

Thirty-five children of school age or under were killed on St. Louis streets in 1924.

The Nonresident Drivers.

Nonresident drivers were involved in 15.6 per cent of the pedestrian fatalities.

The Statistical Committee consists of representative citizens from business, profession and political life and is headed by Coroner R. S. Vitt as chairman. A second meeting will be held next Tuesday evening, when they will prepare a complete report on the 1924 statistics with recommendations.

SCHOOL HEAD IN COUNTY DISCUSSES PROPOSED BILLS

Two bills in the State Legislature providing for changes in the State Public School system, were discussed by R. G. Russell, St. Louis County Superintendent of Schools, at a meeting at Clayton High School yesterday of members of county school boards. Russell is opposed to a bill sponsored by State Superintendent of Schools Lee and favors one introduced by State Senator Ralph of St. Louis County.

The Lee bill, which would substitute county school boards for the present county superintendents, would thereby place the schools in politics and cause partisanship, friction and inefficiency, Russell said. He also declared certain provisions in the Lee bill for State aid to counties would add about $2,000,000 annually to the State public school expense, which was $34,603,763 in 1924. The Ralph bill, according to Russell, will improve educational conditions without greatly increasing expenditures.

Dr. Joseph Sibley to Speak Here.

Dr. Joseph Sibley, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Chicago, will speak on the subject, "The Price Lincoln Paid," at a Lincoln birthday dinner-dance to be given by the Traffic club at the City Club, Feb. 10.

HEARING THIS WEEK ON MUNICIPAL NURSE BILL

Representatives of 100 Organizations Want Measure to Increase Staff Enacted.

A public hearing on an ordinance, recently introduced in the Board of Aldermen, providing for the immediate increase of the number of municipal nurses now operating in St. Louis will be held at City Hall at 10:30 a. m. next Tuesday.

Representatives of more than 100 social, philanthropic, civic, and medical organizations, interested in the passage of the bill, are expected to be present at the meeting. The ordinance was drafted following research work by Mrs. John A. Haskey, chairman of the Community Council's Department of Health, in co-operation with Chancellor Hadley, Washington University, Dean Loeb of St. Louis University Medical School, and Dr. A. J. McLaughlin, U. S. Public Health Service.

The research disclosed that St. Louis is far below the accepted standard in the number of municipal nurses now available. It also was ascertained that salaries paid the nurses here do not compare favorably with those in cities of similar size. Field nurses in St. Louis are paid $110 a month. In New York the pay is $116.66 to $140.25; in Chicago, $130 to $160; in Detroit, $130 to $158; in Cleveland, $120, and Boston, $116 to $134.

The committee sponsoring the proposed ordinance is not making capital of salaries, however. In January the 34 nurses were caring for 2923 tuberculosis cases, 9374 child welfare cases and 414 prenatal cases, a total of 12,711 patients, making a "case load" of 373.8 patients per nurse. The normal case load has been fixed at 100 to 125 patients for each nurse.

The proposed ordinance provides for the immediate addition of 16 nurses to the staff and 10 additional nurses each year until the number shall be one nurse for each 10,000 persons in the city. Last year the nurses' expenditure amounted to $64,655.99 of the $68,300 appropriated by the city for the work. The 16 additional nurses would necessitate an increased appropriation of $23,400, according to the committee.

SOCIALIST CONGRESSMAN IS 'STILL PROUD' OF LA FOLLETTE

Berger Charges Some of His Colleagues With Deserting Progressive Party.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Representative Berger of Wisconsin, the only Socialist in Congress, declared in the House today he was "still proud" of supporting Senator La Follette for the presidency and charged that "some of my progressive friends" are "busy crawling into their holes and trying to hang on to the Republican party." "Any man who claims to be progressive," he said, "ought to be willing to pay the price. If not—then he is a weakling."

The Republicans have a right to control their own organization, Berger continued, and "to decide who is to represent their views on committees and they plainly proved these gentlemen are no more Republicans than I." "As a matter of fact," he continued, "we preached the same things in the last campaign."

"Nothwithstanding my sympathy with some of the efforts of my progressive friends, I am free to say their position always was inconsistent—and that it always was politically dishonest. They were sailing under a false flag and were using false labels and they need not be surprised if they lose the confidence and respect of the voters of both sides."

HOUSE LIKELY TO REFUSE SENATE'S POSTAL MEASURE

Ways and Means Committee Holds Upper Branch of Congress Usurped Its Prerogatives.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Day by day the legislative jam in the House and Senate increases.

A fresh complication was added today by the unanimous decision of the House Ways and Means Committee to recommend that the House declines to receive the postal pay and postal rate increase bill passed by the Senate yesterday.

Democrats and Republicans alike the committeemen hold—and cite numerous authorities to prove—that the Senate, in passing the postal bill, infringed upon the constitutional provision that all revenue-raising measures must originate in the House.

The House will vote Tuesday on the recomendations of the committee. With leaders of both parties apparently determined to uphold the prerogatives of the lower body, it looks as if the unwanted postal bill will be thrown back on the Senate's doorstep. This can be done by a majority vote, and the Senate will have no appeal from the decision.

Taxing Point Raised.

In urging that the measure be refused the hospitality of the House, the Ways and Means Committee recalled that on three previous occasions, the first in 1859, the House either returned to the Senate or refused to consider revenue proposals initiated by the Senate. The committee asserted that the revenues sought to be raised by the postal bill, as a means of meeting the proposed salary increases, were plainly a tax within the constitutional meaning of that term. It attached no weight to the contrary argument advanced by Senator Reed of Missouri and others when the same constitutional point was under debate in the Senate.

According to Reed's theory, which prevailed against a point of order raised by Senator Swanson (Dem.), of Virginia, the proposed rate increases are not a tax on the public, but a specific charge for services rendered.

If the House accepts the view of its Ways and Means Committee the only course open to those who are trying to satisfy the President will be to have a combination pay increase and rate increase measure passed by the House and sent over to the Senate for its concurrence.

Assuming the passage of such a bill by both branches in the short time remaining of the present session, the quetsion arises whether it will meet the President's specifications. He vetoed the original salary bill because it did not, within itself, provide the means of paying the increases.

The bill which passed the Senate this week carried the same salary increases, an annual total of $68,000,000, and sought to increase the postal revenues by an amount, estimated by Senator Moses, in charge of the bill, at $46,650,000.

Here is a difference of more than $21,000,000. If the bill should get to the President in essentially its present form, would he still consider that it violated his "economy" program too greatly to permit his approval? Or would he feel that the gap between intake and outgo had been closed sufficiently to give him an exccuse for signing.

What Moses' Bill Does.

In point of fact, the gap in the Moses' bill between the proposed salary increases and the expected new revenue is much more than $21,000,000. The bill provides that the new postal rates shall come into effect on April 15 of this year and remain operative only until Feb. 15 of next year—a period of 10 months. The salary increases are made retroactive on July 1 of last year. In other words, the Moses' bill sets off 10 months of new rates, estimated to yield $46,650,000, against 19½ months of a new salary scale, representing an increased outlay of about $110,500,000.

It is certain, moreover, that the salary increases would go on after Feb. 15, 1926, while it is by no means certain that the next Congress would put through a new rate schedule by that date.

The more the Moses bill is subjected to analysis the more apparent becomes its makeshift character. Some of its leading champions in the Senate obviously had their fingers crossed every time they defended it. The debate brought out clearly that postal rates and postal salaries constitute two entirely separate and distinct problems, which ought never to have been linked in the same bill.

The effort to make postal salaries depend on the amount of revenue received by the postal service is hardly less illogical than would be a mandate to Federal District Attorneys to increase their collections of fines from offenders againts the Government in order to get their salaries boosted.

The pay bill, if put through, will make only a small dent in the mountain of pending legislation. The session has run for two months without constructive accomplishment of any moment. It has left only 27 working days.

Onry two of the annual appropriation bills have gone to the President, eight others being in various stages of completion.

In addition to the appropriations bills, Congress has before it a dozen more or less provocative of controversy.

If the session gives the President only a small fraction of what he has asked for, he can count himself lucky.

MISSOURI BILL WOULD HALT 'BOOTLEGGING' IN GASOLINE

Object Is to Plug Up Holes in Provisions of Road Proposition No. 5.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 31.—A "Volstead act" to prevent "bootlegging" sales or purchases of gasoline in Missouri, in evasion of the State tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline used for motor vehicle fuel, will be introduced in both houses of the Legislature Monday by Representative Lon S. Haymes of Springfield, and Senator Phil M. Donnelly of Lebanon.

Objects of the bill are to plug up holes in the enforcement provisions of initiative proposition No. 5, adopted last November, which increased automobile license fees 50 per cent and imposed the 2-cent gasoline tax, to provide revenue for road construction.

The bill would prevent large concerns, such as taxicab companies, from evading the tax on tank car lots of gasoline purchased in other states and shipped into Missouri, on the plea that the shipment was interstate commerce and not subject to State regulation.

The measure also prohibits automobile owners from driving across the Missouri line to another state to stock up with gasoline, either in their automobile fuel tanks or in drums, to evade the Missouri tax. This would apply to St. Louisans who drive across the Free Bridge to buy gasoline in East St. Louis.

The penalty would be doubling the tax on the smuggled gasoline, a fine not to exceed $1000 or a jail sentence of not more than one year.

Conroys Welcome 1925—and 1925 Welcomes Conroys

The piano market of today is a searching market. Buyers, for their own protection, are weighing values with extreme care.

They are demanding quality—not merely surface quality or flashy cases, but deep through and through goodness of design, material and construction.

They are demanding value—not ficticious price concessions, but real dollar-for-dollar value in a piano which will remain fine for generations.

They are demanding economy—not the expensive economy of short-lived instruments, but true economy represented by long, reliable service and high trade-in value.

They are demanding security—not promises, but proof of quality, in pianos of sound, tested design. Conroy security is backed by nearly four decades of continuous service and countless thousands of contented purchasers.

Conroys welcome 1925—and Conroys' increasing sales volume indicates very clearly that 1925 welcomes Conroys.

HEARINGS ON FARM RELIEF THIS WEEK

House Agricultural Committee to Call All Members of President's Commission.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The House Agricultural Committee decided today to invite all members of the President's Agricultural Commission to appear before it to discuss recommendations for relief of the farmers. The committee also decided to call representatives of various farming organizations. After the hearings, which will start Monday, there will be an effort to draft legislation in time for action at the present session.

Scant hope is held for favorable action by the present Congress. Public hearings will be the first order, with the House committee beginning its sittings on Monday and the Senate committee the day following. Both committees want to hear members of the Agricultural Commission not only in explanation of the recommendations, but also as to whether they think their proposals have covered the whole farm problem.

Representative Jones, Democrat, Texas, declared in the House that the commission's report is made up of hazy generalizations which fail to offer a solution to the farmer's problems.

Criticism of Report.

"At the only point where it gets down to real substantive matters," said Jones, who is a member of the Agricultural Committee, "the report bristles with recommendations, the principal effect of which would be to create new Federal jobs."

The Texas member charged that during the campaign President Coolidge made a "play for the farmer vote by pitching hay on a Vermont farm for the benefit of motion picture men and photographers."

"The President has held public office continually for 26 years," he said, "and he has never been notified of his nomination without being caught pitching hay, milking a cow, mending a farm wagon, fixing a fence, greasing harness, cutting cockle burrs or chopping weeds."

Representative Tincher of Kansas, a Republican member of the Agricultural Committee, defended the commission, which he declared should not be treated in a partisan way. He said he would not attempt to answer specifically the speech of Jones as he doubted if some of the remarks were "within the rules of the House."

Up to Congress to Act.

"Our campaign is over," he added, "and it's up to this Congress to do the best it can."

Passage of the Smith-Hoch resolution, he concluded, was worth more to the farmers than the "paltry" $50,000 that the commission cost the Government.

Chairman Norris of the Senate committee takes the position that the recommendations do not go far enough. He declared that all familiar with the general situation were in favor of Government stimulation of co-operative marketing, but added that the plan suggested could afford no immediate relief since it would be several years before a widespread system could be installed.

The Nebraska Senator said there was one other "defect" which he described as fundamental in that there was no proposal for co-operative banking to furnish the basis of credit for the marketing system. Without such basis, he said co-operative marketing could never be a complete success.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—A resolution authorizing acceptance of gifts of historic furniture for installation in the White House was adopted today by the Senate.

NATIONAL GUARD AIR UNIT IN NEED OF 25 RECRUITS

Replacements Necessary to Bring 110th Observation Squadron to Authorized Strength.

Twenty-five recruits for the 110th Observation Squadron of St. Louis, National Guard, are being sought to bring the organization to its authorized personnel of 100 enlisted men.

The replacements are necessary because of resignations and the recent discharge of a number of men who could not qualify for places in squadron. The type of recruits desired are motor experts, chauffeurs, cooks, woodworkers, photographers, radio operators and electrical experts.

Recruits are promised an opportunity to learn to fly, the squadron having eight planes at Lambert-St. Louis Field for training purposes. Plans for the summer training period, according to Capt. C. Ray Wassall, commander, include the mapping of emergency landing fields from the air between St. Louis and Kansas City. Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 45 years, and should apply to Lieut. G. J. Stumpf at the Armory, Grand boulevard and Market street, any Monday evening during February.

Nurses' Pension Bill Passed.

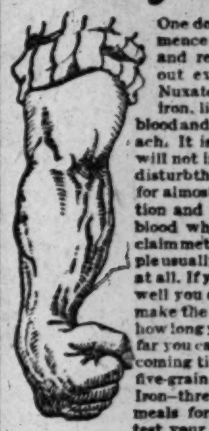
There is Strength in Every Tablet



One dose often helps commence to enrich your blood and revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves—Nuxated Iron is organic iron, like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach. It is so prepared that it will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. It is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood while some physicians claim metallic iron which people usually take is not absorbed at all. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron—three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.

'BIG JIM' O'LEARY LEFT ESTATE OF ONLY $10,000

Chicago Bookmaker, Who Handled Millions, Had Lost $25,000 Home, Will Indicates.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Race track followers and gamblers in other lines were astonished today when the will of "Big Jim" O'Leary was filed for probate, showing he left an estate of only $10,000. It was all personal property, according to the widow. That the man who had handled millions and frequently took bets of $20,000 could have sunk a fortune estimated at a quarter of a million baffled his friends.

"Jim must have been trimmed in the stock market," is one explanation. The family offers no solution.

His winter book in the old days of local racing frequently carried $500,000 in bets on the Derby and other classics at the three race tracks. He never was accused of welching and his big barroom on Halstead street opposite the stock yards was a money-maker for years. O'Leary attracted much attention by taking all sorts of bets on the weather, especially in periods of drouths. Years ago he bought a $25,000 home for his family, but, according to the widow, he died possessed of no real estate.

"Big Jim" laughed for years at the yarn that his mother's cow kicked over the lamp that started the great fire of 1871. He denied it.

FOUR UNSOLVED KILLINGS, TWO BY AUTOS, IN MONTH

City Police Have Only Meager Clews in Three Cases and None in Fourth.

TWO MERCHANTS AMONG VICTIMS

One Slain by Bullet Fired by Fleeing Negro — Other Hacked to Death With Cleaver.

An old army overcoat, a blood-stained cap, the numerals "767"—these are the chief clews in three of the four unsolved killings, two of which were murders, recorded for the month that ended yesterday. In the fourth case, in which the victim was killed by an automobile, no clew was found.

Two of the victims were merchants, One was killed with a bullet, the other was hacked to death with a meat cleaver. Speeding automobiles killed the other two, and sped on.

A negro wearing an old army overcoat, dyed black and with a fur collar attached, entered the little clothing store of Ruben Pass at 117 North Jefferson avenue, the night of Jan. 2. The negro announced he wanted to buy a new overcoat. Pass fitted him with a gray one, and turned to wait on another customer. The negro, who had been admiring himself and his new overcoat in a mirror, suddenly dashed from the store.

The merchant pursued. On the sidewalk outside he grabbed the negro. The negro jerked free and, drawing a revolver, fired. The merchant fell, with a mortal bullet wound in his abdomen, and his slayer escaped with the stolen gray overcoat.

Overcoat Only Clew.

The discarded army overcoat, left behind in the store, was seized by police. It was not much of a clew. Thousands of such coats were dyed and otherwise disguised after the war, and many passed into possession of men who had no military records. The murderer is still at large.

A well-worn meat cleaver lay beside the body of George Sassani, half owner of a saloon and rooming house at 401 South Broadway, when his partner, Mike Giaminetti, stumbled across the body in an upstairs room at that address, the afternoon of Jan. 24. Giaminetti removed evidence of illicit liquor, then called police.

Sassani had been to the bank that morning and had returned to the saloon with about $600, to be used in cashing pay checks for customers of the bar. The money was stolen from him, before or after death. A pocket of his trousers was turned inside out.

Twenty-five persons were arrested, before information was received of a Chicago pile driver, named Ward. He had been in St. Louis for 10 days before the murder, and he had disappeared immediately thereafter.

"I'm Chicago bound when I can raise the fare," he had told an acquaintance, the morning of the murder.

Informed of this, police searched Ward's room on Spruce street and found his abandoned clothes. The apparel included a blood-stained cap. A Coroner's jury charged Ward with the murder. Police are looking for him.

The numerals "767" formed part of the number on a license plate of a sedan that sped east in Easton avenue at Euclid avenue the evening of Jan. 23. At that intersection, the automobile struck and fatally injured Patrick J. Lavin, 35. The automobile, occupied by two men, skidded around, then sped away. A motorman on a passing street car glimpsed the license plate and saw "767."

Lavin, a World War veteran, was secretary of W. C. McBride Inc. "Homicide at the hands of parties unknown," was the Coroner jury's verdict.

No Clews in This Case.

No clews were uncovered in the case of Andrew Wahoski, a clerk, who died on Jan. 1, a few hours after he was found lying in a gutter, his clothes badly torn, on Gravois avenue, near Blow street.

Police learned Wahoski had celebrated New Year's eve with a party of friends. Early the next morning the party parked their car outside a saloon, near where Wahoski's body later was found. Wahoski was dozing in the car, when his companions left him to enter the saloon.

An hour later Wahoski's body was found. Presumably, he had awakened to find himself alone, and had decided to board a street car to go home. In crossing Gravois avenue, for that purpose, an automobile struck him and continued on its way.

Catholic Union to Meet.

The monthly meeting of District League No. 1, Catholic Union of Missouri, will be held at the Goller Hall, Eighth street and Allen avenue, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. A lecture will be delivered on a timely topic.

SAYS HE SAVED $1000 BY DRIVING CATTLE OVERLAND

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 31.—Cowboys driving cattle herds across Kansas are not yet of the past, according to Earl Barker of Fowler, Kan., who owns 18,000 head of cattle, a witness on behalf of the livestock men plaintiffs in their plea before an Interstate Commerce Commission examiner here for a reduction of 50 per cent in freight rates on livestock west of the Mississippi River. Fowler owns 12,000 acres of cattle land in Meade and Clarke counties.

He said that he drove a herd of 700 cattle across the prairies from Higgins, Tex., to Fowler last spring to escape what he termed exorbitant freight rates.

"What's the distance?" asked J. H. Mercer, Kansas Livestock Commissioner.

"About 125 miles," answered Barker.

"Do you figure you saved money by not shipping them by rail?" Mercer asked.

"I figure I saved $1000, at least," replied Barker.

Burglars obtained a number of negotiable postal money orders from a safe in the office of the Century Auto Parts Co., 4106 Olive street, Friday night by knocking off the combination.

OKLAHOMA QUINTET DEFEATS PIKER FIVE BY ONE POINT

Nurmi Is Victor in 2-Mile Race

Great Finnish Runner Fails to Crack Ray's Record, Time Being 7 Seconds Slower Than Joie's Mark.

PLANT AGAIN BEATS FRIGERIO

American Sets a New World Standard in Defeating Italian in 3000-Meter Walk.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Jan. 31.—Paavo Nurmi, blond Finn, holder of 24 world's running records, flashed ahead of his field to victory tonight in a two-mile special at the thirty-sixth annual Boston Athletic Association indoor games, but failed for the second successive night to set a new indoor mark.

The meet, however, saw two world's marks shattered. Willie Plant, New York, walked to a new world 3000-meter indoor mark when he defeated Ugo Frigerio, Italian and Olympic champion, for the second time within a week. And E. E. (Laddie) Myers of Chicago established a new world's indoor pole vault record of a board vaulter.

Plant in winning clipped one and one-fifth seconds from his own world's mark by covering the distance in 12 minutes 52 4-5 seconds.

Myers cleared the cross bar two and three-eights inches higher than he did when he set a world's record for the pole vault indoors in 1922. The new record was 12 feet 10¾ inches.

Nurmi's race, scheduled to be a handicap, was raced from scratch at his request. He led his two countrymen, Ilmar Prim and Gunnar Nilson to the finish by a lap and a half. August Fagor, the fourth starter, dropped out before the end of the first mile.

The strain of constant racing appeared to have told on Nurmi, for his time was more than seven seconds lower than Joie Ray's world's record for the distance. His time for the distance was 9 minutes 16 1-5 seconds.

Nurmi in attempting to set a record for the distance here undertook what was considered an almost impossible task, since the Boston track is 12 laps to the mile. Ray's record was made on an eight-lap track.

Ray Dodge, Illinois A. C., defeated a field of three in the Paul Keith 600-yard event. "Jake" Driscoll, who holds two legs on the trophy, lost his lead at the beginning of the last lap. Dodge won by 10 yards.

Murchison Wins Again.

Loren Murchison, of the Newark A. C., flashed to his fifth consecutive victory in the 40-yard dash, opening event of the program, nosing out Al Miller of Harvard at the tape.

Carl Christiernson of Newark A. C., led the four finalists in a bunched finish, in the 45-yard high hurdles. His time was 6 1-5 seconds, a fifth of a second behind the record. He was hard pressed by R. V. Merrick of the Boston A. A. Ivan Riley, Illinois A. C., was third.

Georgetown won a gruelling one-mile relay with Holy Cross a close second, and Boston College close behind, in a triangular contest.

Joie Ray, veteran Chicago miler, won the Hunter mile and possession of the Hunter trophy by leading J. J. Connolly and Lloyd Hahn to the tape in an easy victory.

Georgetown's great relay team scored an impressive victory over Boston College in a two-mile race. Brooks, lead-off man, was never headed, and his lead was increased to over half a lap by his teammates in their third triumph of the season over Boston.

"STRIKE" OF MUSHERS HAMPERS DOG RACE

By the Associated Press.

THE PAS, Manitoba, Jan. 31.—The "strike" of dog mushers in The Pas continued today and unless officials of the 200-mile nonstop derby change the course, many of the racing stars of the North country will not compete this year.

The race is scheduled for Feb. 3 over the Hudson Bay Railway track to Herb Lake. Traveling over the railway track, mushers claim, would do great injury to their dogs and they demand that the old course of the lumber company's trail to the north be used.

It will be the eighth annual dog and winter carnival.

Cleveland Defeats Soldan, 26-23 In Over-Time Game; Central Wins

Teams Battle Furiously for Lead in Feature Game of High School League Double-Header—Yeatman Is Defeated.

So well matched were the Cleveland and Soldan basketball teams in their league match last night and so desperately did they fight for supremacy that an extra five-minute period was necessary to decide the issue. Then, Cleveland grasped a slight advantage and won, 26 to 23.

In the second game, Central, the league leaders, defeated Yeatman, 32 to 18. Yeatman out-scored Central in the second half, 9 points to 8.

Cleveland and Soldan opened at a furious pace and they were seldom more than two points apart. Some idea of the tenseness of the struggle may be had from the score. At the end of the first quarter the teams were tied at 4-4. At the end of the half they were tied again, 8 to 8. At the close of the third period Cleveland held a one-point advantage, 16 to 15, and then, just before the close of the game, Layman of Soldan shot a field goal, which tied the score at 22-22.

Layman Ties Score.

Cleveland held a three-point lead in the closing minute of play, 22 to 19. Emo, Soldan forward, scored a foul throw, making the score 22-20 and giving Layman his chance to momentarily save the situation by tieing the score at 22.

Cleveland was dangerously rough in its desperate defense of the basket and as a result Soldan had several opportunities to score from the foul line, but poor shooting proved costly.

In the extra period, Mowry, who starred all evening for Cleveland, was the first to score. Emo of Soldan was fouled as he prepared to shoot and was awarded two free throws at the Cleveland basket. He made the first, but missed the second with a chance to tie. Then Layman and Hemker both missed free shots. Fowler then sank a field goal to win the game.

Billikens Defeat Rolla, 42 to 11

Miners Unable to Penetrate St. Louis Defense—Kapl Returns to Game.

St. Louis University continued to run rough-shod over its basketball opponents when Dan Savage's crew defeated Rolla, 42 to 11, at the St. Louis University High School gymnasium last night. A capacity crowd of about 500 persons watched the game, which was a parade for the Blue and White.

St. Louis scored more than 20 points before Rolla scored. Only two field goals were shot by the visitors throughout the game, one in the first half and the other in the second.

Kapl, W. Bradburn and Stanton were especially conspicuous in the Billiken play.

Cardinals to Depart for Camp Feb. 20; Browns' First Squad Will Entrain Feb. 24

Rickey to Take Squad of 33 Men to Stockton, Cal., Where Almost Daily Games Are Scheduled — Sisler's Batterymen to Report in Advance at Tarpon Springs.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Baseball's annual migration to towns south and west will begin shortly and young city chaps who have formed the winter habit of eating coffee and rolls and young country boys who are surfeited with sow belly, will prepare their appetites for juicy steaks and other luxuries which go with the sore arms and heads of the baseball training camp.

Two weeks from next Friday the athletes who hope to wear Cardinal uniforms in the 1925 major league pennant race will entrain for Stockton, the best-named town in California, and three weeks from Tuesday the first contingent of Brownie hopefuls will depart for Tarpon Springs, their new Florida training camp.

Rickey has decided to take his men to the coast in one squad and it will be the smallest squad that the Cardinal leader has ever piloted to a training camp. Thirty-three men are on the Cardinal list, compared to 40 or 50 in other years. The railroad fare to the coast and back is $132, and that's too much for Hi Mason to put out for hopeless rookies, even if it's Sam Breadon's money.

Battery Men Report Early.

George Sisler will send his catchers and pitchers to Tarpon Springs Feb. 24, and the regulars will depart March 2. Twenty-one men are in the squad scheduled for departure Feb. 24, the total including 17 pitchers and four catchers. One of the pitchers will be taken off the list prior to departure. The list as given out by Bill Friel last night follows: Catchers, Severeid, Rego, Dixon and Porter; pitchers, Bush, Gaston, Giard, Vangilder, Davis, Grant, Pruett, Peterson, Springer, Wingard, Danforth, Blaeholder, Lasley, Beck, Smith, Stauffer and Falk. The group includes 11 right-handers and six left-handers.

Sisler's second squad will include Infielders McManus, Gerber, Robertson, Rice, Simon, Lamotte, Burke and Berringer and Outfielders Tobin, Williams, Jacobson, Bennett, Evans, Elmore, Mizeur and Hawkins. It is likely that several of the raw recruits will be detached from the squad prior to the departure, for the good of the treasury.

Friel announced yesterday that the game scheduled with the Brooklyn Dodgers March 26 had been moved up to March 19, to permit the Dodgers to schedule a

Chester Falk, Texas University Pitcher, To Report to Sisler

BUSINESS MANAGER BILL FRIEL of the Browns announced yesterday that an agreement had been reached with Chester Falk, 19-year-old brother of Bib Falk, White Sox star, and that the left-handed pitcher would report to Manager George Sisler at the Tarpon Springs training camp.

Young Falk, besides being a pitcher, has made a reputation as a slugger and in dickering for his signature the Browns had to compete with several other clubs. However, the Browns had an ace in the hole in Pat Monohan. Pat engaged Falk in conversation several times and the last time was fatal. Pat is the scout who says that he can make anybody sign anything if given an hour alone with him. And Pat is some talker. The only time he ever failed was when a hold-up man recently met him. Pat tried to talk the stick-up man out of it and informed him that he was a good scout, but Pat had to hand over the intended rent money.

Having landed Falk, Pat now figures he is back on his stride.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Louis Cure, the old-time billiard champion who retired following his defeat by Willie Hoppe in Paris in 1911, will make his re-entry in tournament play in the first European three-cushion professional billiard championship which opened here today.

Fifteen contestants are entered in the three-cushion tournament, representing France, Belgium, Spain, Holland and Czecho-Slovakia, have been divided into three groups, the best two of which will play in the final round. Roger Conti, the European billiard champion, is not entered.

GOBERT WINS IN FRENCH COVERED COURT EVENT

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—The French national covered courts tennis championships opened today with former chamipon Andre H. Gobert staging a comeback after two years absence from the big tournaments. He won his first-round match and will meet Jean Borotra tomorrow.

The present championships are open to all nationalities, as were the former "world championships" which were played last year for the last time. The tournament comprises men's and women's singles, doubles and mixed doubles. The finals probably will be played Feb. 8.

Basket in the Last Minute of Play Beats Washington, 26 to 25

St. Louis Team Leading at 25-24 When Moore, Sooner Substitute, Cages Ball From Field—Team's First Defeat.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NORMAN, Ok., Jan. 31.—The sensational Washington University basketball team met its first defeat of the season at the hands of a Missouri Valley Conference team here this afternoon when the Oklahoma Sooners won a roughly played game, 26 to 25. The score was tied six times and the Pikers led at 25 to 24 with only half a minute to play. The winning basket was shot by Moore, a substitute player.

As a result of the defeat the Pikers dropped to a tie with Nebraska for second place, each having won three games and lost one. Kansas, by beating Nebraska tonight, went into the lead in the Conference race, with four victories and one defeat.

Superior floor work and a remarkable defense enabled the Pikers to hold the Sooners even throughout the game in spite of the fact that Oklahoma showed a deadly accuracy in shooting at the basket.

The Pikers had 29 shots from the field at the Oklahoma basket, while Oklahoma, forced by the great Washington defense to shoot from greater distance, had only 19 shots from the field. Still, because of better shooting, Oklahoma won out.

Sensational Finish.

The game wound up in a sensational manner. Guard Wylie Cox put the Pikers in the lead at 25 to 24 with only half a minute to go. Then Moore, shooting from the center line, popped the ball through the Washington hoop, putting Oklahoma in the lead.

Fighting furiously, with only a few seconds remaining, Washington assailed the Sooners' stronghold, and their opportunity to tie the score came when Cox was fouled. With the verdict hanging in the balance, the Pikers' captain, one of the stars of the game, blew his shot and the game was over.

The Pikers came here prepared for a hard game. They had defeated Oklahoma by two points in the game at St. Louis and there was no question that the Sooners would devote their time to stopping Jack Minner.

Instead of playing a defensive game, the Sooners jumped off into the lead by scoring two field goals, Ruppert and McBride counting. However, Cox, the Pikers' great running guard, popped in a goal from the field and Seago tied the score.

Thereafter the game was a hot affair. The score was tied again at 11-all and at 12. At the close of the half, Oklahoma lead, 14 to 12.

Pikers Take the Lead.

Again, at the start of the second half, the Sooners assumed a good lead, but Minner and Seago sank goals from the field and Cox counted on a foul shot, putting the St. Louis five ahead, 17 to 16.

Washington held the lead then, raising their advantage to 20 to 17. The Sooners put on a storm and caught their opponents at 23-all. Then came a field goal by Cox, a foul goal by an Oklahoma player and Moore's long field goal, which won the game.

The game was featured by the Pikers' general proficiency in all-round play and by the unerring shots of the Oklahoma men, who were at all times forced to shoot from less favorable positions than the Pikers.

Oklahoma has won three games and lost two in the conference race, while the Pikers have won three and lost one.

New Proposal For Division of Soccer Receipts

Stockholders Would Get 20 Per Cent and Pay Park Rental.

The Players' Association of the St. Louis Soccer League has made further demands upon the officials of the St. Louis Soccer & Exhibition Co., it was learned yesterday. A resolution, passed at a meeting attended by 42 players last week, was received by President Winton E. Barker yesterday.

This resolution, signed by Frank Vaughn as chairman, John Redden, James Dunn, Irwin Wimer and J. F. Burke, is as follows:

"That the operating expenses (which are at present deducted from the players' share) be taken from the gross receipts and the balance to be split in five shares, 20 per cent to the stockholders and 20 per cent to each of the four clubs; the corporation to continue to carry their present expenses as in the past."

This resolution was decided upon following the refusal of the St. Louis Soccer and Exhibition Co. to grant the sixth demand of the players, which had to do with the paying of secretaries.

The stockholders were given until Tuesday to give an answer to the new resolution.

Up to Stockholders.

President Barker, when seen yesterday, asserted that he could make no comment on the latest demand until after a meeting of the stockholders. Among the known expenses of the St. Louis Soccer and Exhibition Co. are $100 each for park rental and $16 for two footballs.

When asked to comment upon the latest report from New York that no sanction had been given the American Soccer League to play the St. Louis pennant winner, Barker stated that as far he could see there was nothing which could interfere with the plan. He asserted that the U. S. F. A. officials, when they sanctioned the American League interclub competition, knew that the series to decide the professional championship was the objective.

"No Rule Against Series," Says Barker.

"There is no rule in the U. S. F. A. which forbids a club from playing a game or series of games with

KANSAS DEFEATS NEBRASKA, 25 TO 20

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 31.—The Jayhawker jinx that has baffled Cornhusker basketball teams for three successive seasons in Missouri Valley Conference cage circles, again was in evidence tonight as the Kansas tossers conquered Nebraska, 25 to 20. Peterson, Langy, center for the Jayhawger quintet, hurled baskets with almost unerring accuracy, putting the ball through the netting for eight successful shots, from the floor. The Jayhawkers were making pace, 15 to 13, at the intermission, but the Cornhuskers rallied late in the second period and, with two minutes to play, were in front, 20 to 17. Successive baskets by Peterson, Wilkins, Campbell and Ackerman clinched the victory for the Jayhawkers.

GIANTS AND DODGERS LIKELY TO PRESENT UNCHANGED BATTLE FRONTS

Other National League Clubs Expected to Make Changes During Spring

Recruits Have Slim Chance of Crowding Any of McGraw's Regulars Out of the Lineup—Brooklyn Is Still Dickering for Coast League Infielder.

This is the third of a series of three articles dealing with the probable battle fronts with which the major league clubs will start the 1925 campaign. Today's article treats the National League teams.

By Herman Wecke.

Only two clubs, the Giants and Dodgers, first and second placers in the National League pennant race last season, are expected to stand pat for the opening of the coming campaign. John McGraw will again try out a good number of recruits, but it is not figured these will be able to oust the regulars from their berths.

The Dodgers are still in the hunt for an infielder, but to date have been unable to obtain the player. The athlete, said to be wanted, is McCann, a second sacker with a Coast League club. The other teams will show plenty of changes.

Giants to Stand Pat.

Unless a lot more comes out of the O'Connell-Dolan scandal, the Giants will start with Kelly, Frisch, Jackson and Groh as regular infielders, with Terry and Lindstrom as first aids, and Young, Meusel, Wilson, Southworth and Walker for outfielders. McGraw has rounded up some real veterans for catchers in Snyder, Gowdy, Hartley, one-time Brownie, and Devine from the International League. Wisner from Rochester is the chief addition to the hurling staff, which also includes Baldwin, Barnes, Bentley, Dean, Huntzinger, Jonnard, McGrew, from the Southern; McQuillan, Maun, Nehf, Ryan and Watson.

Brooklyn's Outlook.

Additions made to the Dodgers do not seem to have added real strength to the team which finished second to the Giants. It looks as though Robinson's infield will be chosen from Fournier, High, Berg, Johnston, Jones, Mitchell and Stock. The outfielders are Wheat, Brown, Griffith, Nels, Cox, Loftus and Simpson. Catchers are Taylor, DeBerry and Hargreaves. The pitching staff will again have Vance, Grimes, Doak, Ehrhardt, Henry, Hollingsworth, Greene, Osborne, Roberts and Schreiber.

The Pirates.

Pittsburg will be forced to experiment. The club traded Grimm and Maranville, two stars in 1924. At first, McKechnie will use Niehaus, a youngster from the Southern League. At second, Grantham from the Cubs and Thompson, grabbed from the Western, and Moore will fight it out. Wright and Traynor are almost certain to be at short and third. For the outfield, there will be Carey, Cuyler, Bigbee and Barnhart, unless McKechnie sticks to his intention to use Grantham in the meadows. The catchers are Gooch, Knox and several rookies. The hurling staff will be picked from Adams, Aldridge, Kremer, Meadows, Songer, Stone, Yde, Koupal from Omaha and some rookies.

The Cubs should be better in 1925. Killefer added strength at first and second with the addition of Maranville and Grimm. Hollocher, if he is in condition, will be at short and Friberg at third. Adams, Cotter, Michaels and Pittenger are the chief reserves. The outfield also will be changed. Heathcote will probably play right, with Barrett, Weis, Miller and Vogel to fight it out for the other places. Hartnett and O'Farrell will do the bulk of the catching. The addition of Cooper should help the pitching staff, which will have Alexander, Blake, Bush, Jacobs, Kaufmann, Keen, Milstead, Root, Brett, Collins, Dumovich, Stueland, Morgan and Westnedge, at the start of the training season.

Cincinnati Reds.

The Cincinnati club is a question mark. The Reds need infielders and outfielders. From present indications it looks as through "Rube" Bressler, a made-over pitcher and outfielder, will be at first, with Topel from Oneonta giving him a fight. The other places are uncertain. Waivers have been asked on Caveney and Fonseca. Hendricks will have Bohne, Fowler, Pinelli, Dressen, from St. Paul, and Critz for the various positions. In the outfield, Roush and Walker are the holdovers. Statz, obtained from the Cubs; Smith from Louisville and Zitman from Newark, are the chief additions. Hargrave, Wingo and Sandberg will be the catchers. The hurling staff will include Benton, Dibut, Donohue, Luque, May, Mayr, Rixey, Sheehan and several recruits.

Those Boston Braves.

The chief addition to the Braves will be Welsh, a former St. Louis boy, who was purchased for outfield duty from the Seattle club for $50,000 and players. Manager Bancroft will be at short, McInnis will get a battle at first from Burrus from the Southern, Tierney is expected to again play second and Padgett looks best at third. In addition to Welsh, Bancroft has Mann, Powell, Sperber, Stengel and rookies for the outfield. O'Neil and Gibson are the chief catchers, with Couiseneau to help. The flingers will be selected from Barnes, Batchelor, Benton, Cooney, Genewich, Lucas, McNamara, Marquard, Muich, Thomas, Vargus and Wilson.

Fletcher's Phillies.

Trades made during the campaign should help the Phillies. Holke will have a fight on his hands from Hawks from the Southern. Ford is expected to start at second and Sand at short. Kimmick, from Vernon, who at one time was in the big tent, is scheduled to open at third. Wrightstone, Lord, Metz and Huber are others. Outfielders are Mokan, Harper, Williams, Leach, Schultz, and Ulrich, from Waterbury. Henline will will again do the bulk of the catching, assisted by Wendell and Wilson. Pitchers will be chosen from Betts, Carson, Couch, Glazner, Mitchell, Oeschger and Ring, veterans; O'Neal and Fillingim, from Beaumont; Yordy from Waterbury; Knight, one time Cardinal, from the Texas League, and Pearce.

Bush Expects to Pitch Best Ball of Career for Browns

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BRAINERD, Minn., Jan. 31.—Radio Station WCCO last night carried a message from Joe "Bullet" Bush that his arm was in good shape and that he expected to pitch the best ball of his career for the St. Louis Browns. Bush extended an invitation to all his friends in the Northwest to come to St. Louis and fill the stands when he works.

CARDINALS DEPART FOR TRAINING CAMP FEB. 20

game with the Yankees on March 19.

A message from Tarpon Springs reached the Browns' office yesterday, stating that everything was ready for the reception of the Browns. The hotel accommodations are adequate, it is alleged, and the ball park is in fine condition. The turf on the playing field is progressing and the Tarpon Springs city manager in his message paid a tribute to the grass-growing skill of Bill Stocksiek, the well-known agristologist.

Both baseball offices are busy and will be occupied for some time with the arrangement of contracts for 1925. Both clubs are silent as to the progress of negotiations, but both state that there will be no difficulty. It is known, however, that Hornsby of the Cubs and McManus of the Browns are not signed. Hornsby, it was stated last year, was willing to accept a three-year contract calling for $33,333.33 a year, a total of 100 grand for the three seasons. McManus was dissatisfied last year, chiefly because he thought he was underpaid. McManus is a star of high rank. The Browns need him and everybody who wants to see a winner here hopes that Marty will be a satisfied player in 1925. There is no better second-sacker in the game.

Friel had a man's sized job on his hand when he started the contract business this year. Johnny Tobin was the only holdover. His contract has another year to run. Rickey's task was about as difficult, though Bottomley, Sherdel, Stuart and Lester Bell already were under contract. However, Hornsby was and is the chief business with Rickey. When Rogers is in line the team will be in line.

Rickey said last night that he was well pleased with the Cards' training arrangements, which call for exhibition games virtually every day in camp.

Play Is the Best Work.

"I have come to believe more and more in the value of training camp games," said the Cardinal talker. "The men enjoy the games and that is important. Hornsby, for instance, loves to play a game of ball, but routine training is distasteful to him. And when training becomes toil it loses much of its value.

"There will be no other squad at work at Stockton and we will have two sessions a day. I am a firm believer in plenty of work at camp and as we have a game scheduled nearly every day we will have to have a morning workout to take care of the necessary training features, such as bunting, sliding, etc. While our squad now numbers 33 there will be a number of young players picked up by scouts in California who will be given a chance to show their stuff."

WRAY'S COLUMN

It's Just as Well.

THERE are those who are thinking today that Jack Dempsey would be a wise man to convert his publicity-seeking retirement announcement into a real fact.

An unbeaten champion is always a card; but a defeated Dempsey would beat in vain against the door of the screen promoter, when begging a contract.

And this DEFEATED is said advisedly, if somewhat guardedly, lest we commit lese majeste; and also lest we do violence to our own previously expressed views on the subject of Jack the Killer.

If Dempsey fights again, one of two opponents only would be acceptable. These two are Tom Gibbons and Harry Wills. In a 12-round or 15-round contest with either, it passes even the confidence of Jack's friends to predict with certainty that he would knock out his, crafty, saefty-first opponent.

Rusted for Two Years.

THE fact remains that Dempsey, having been idle two years and having fought only two battles in nearly four years, is a question mark of large proportions.

As often suggested before, the rust of idleness is the greatest wrecker of athletic efficiency of the many that beset champions. It only takes a trifling relapse to bring a champion back to the class of a near-champion.

As between a title holder idle for two years and a near-champion who has been battling steadily during that time, it isn't any certainty that the champion will come through safe, even though he's Dempsey.

To further weaken Dempsey's position, both Gibbons and Wills are masters in the art of prevention; in tieing up the other fellow's arms and hands they are without equals. In case of the negro, we predict that if Dempsey ever meets him, he will find himself lifted and swung around like a toy.

Firpo a Child in Wills' Hands.

THIS powerful stevedore met the giant Firpo and fairly amazed the Argentine by the ease with which he rendered him powerless to move. At times the Bull actually ROARED in pain and protest.

Dempsey is faster and far more experienced than the Bull and probably, aided by the fear his terrific drives compel, would probably get a few hooks through the negro's guard, if the referee made the black behave. A lenient referee like Daugherty proved to Gibbons at Shelby, would minimize Dempsey's hopes.

Unless Dempsey began his preparations two months before the date of a contest and boxed the very best big fellows he could find, his timing, judgment of distance, footwork and even his punch would be in question, and the chance of his defeat on points not beyond reason.

Therefore, if Jack is wise and needs no more of this world's goods, he would do well to quit the game in his heydey and prime, and with all the wonderful prestige which, as a fighter, he now enjoys.

How the Great Nurmi Got Start as Distance Runner at Age of Ten Youngster Pestered Timers Until They Gave Him a Chance to Run Against Stop Watch.

This is the first of a series of articles on the remarkable athletic career of Paavo Nurmi, the marvel of Finland. At ten years of age he ran 1500 meters in 5 minutes and 2 seconds, and now is breaking world's records every time he faces the starter. He is generally recognized as the greatest runner of all time. The articles are by Charles E. Parker of the New York World sport staff, to whom Nurmi told the story of his athletic career.

By Charles E. Parker,

(Copyright, 1925.)

CHAPTER I.

Nurmi, the Boy Wonder.

"MY watch says five minutes and two seconds."

"I've got five minutes, one and one-fourth seconds."

"I show the same as Jonni—five minuets and two seconds."

This conversation among the expert timers of the Abo Urheiluiitto—the athletic association of that small Finnish coast town—took place one Sunday afternoon in June, 1907, and amazement was discernible on their faces as they compared the stilled hands of their stop watches.

The distance covered in the run they had been clocking was 1500 meters—a few yards short of the mile. The world's record for the course at that time was nearly one minute faster than the figures they quoted. Yet their wonderment rendered them almost speechless as the runner trotted up to learn his mark.

There was reason for that attitude, for the runner was an awkward, thin-limbed, flaxen-haired kid—an Abo grammar school youngster, just 10 years of age.

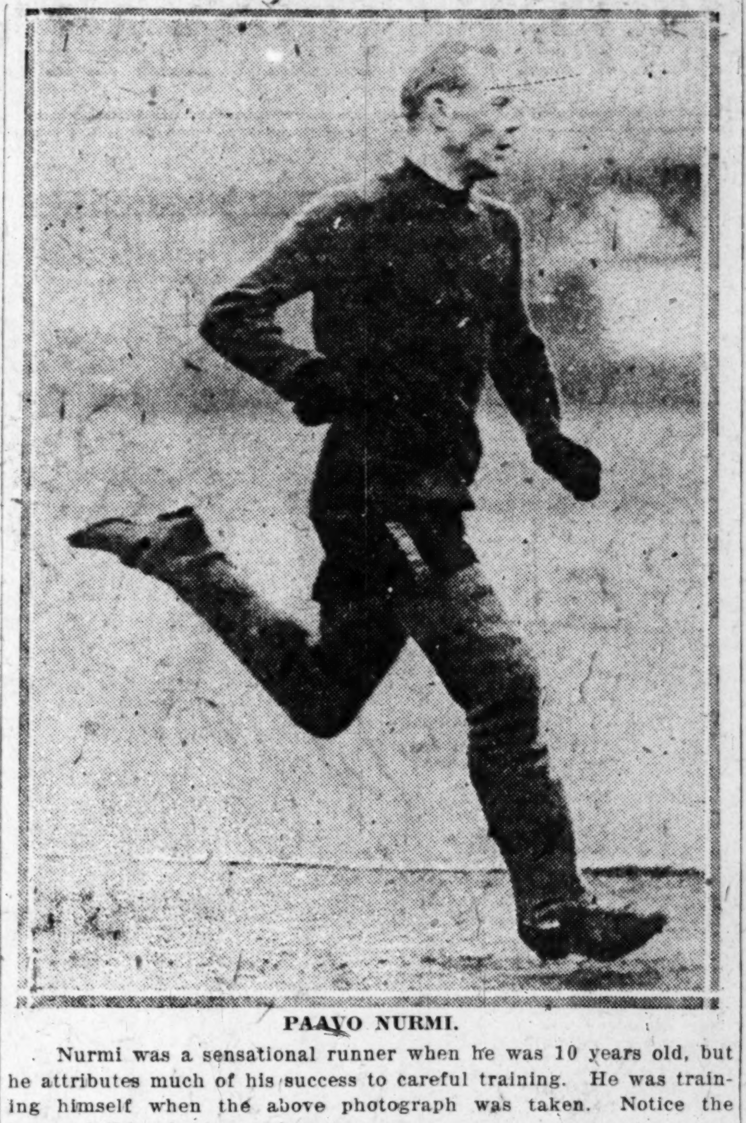
What Awakened the Finns.

For days the little chap had been pestering them to hold their watches while he circled the lumpy track which so recently had become the center of Aboian interest.

His had not been an unusual request. The urge to athletic conquest had just taken hold of the little Baltic nation. Only the year before the latent ability of its hardy sons had been revealed to Finland by Ville Jaervinen, and throughout the land there were ambitions to emulate this newly acclaimed hero.

Ville Jaervinen, as the record books will disclose, won the discus throw (Greek style) in the Athens Olympic games of 1906. Some months before he had come upon a discus, and through experimentation had learned to scale the heavy plate great distances. He did not know the form employed in modern discus tossing—it was by sheer strength of arm that he propelled it. But in Athens the Greeks had insisted that not only the modern but the ancient style of discus throwing be given a place on the program and it was in the discus throw (Greek style)—an event no longer found in Olympic games competition—that Ville achieved the triumph which was to serve as the incentive for Finland's phenomenal rise to its present high place in international athletics.

Finland scarcely could wait for the snows to disappear in the spring of 1907 to launch an intensive campaign in preparation for the London Olympic meet of 1908. Running tracks were staked out on the fields and along the roadways; field event equipment, rudely fashioned, was set up, and weekly meets in every hamlet became a regular feature. The enthusiasm of the older athletes spread quickly to the youngsters.



PAAVO NURMI.

Nurmi was a sensational runner when he was 10 years old, but he attributes much of his success to careful training. He was training himself when the above photograph was taken. Notice the heavy clothing he is wearing.

A Whole Town on the Run.

On Sunday afternoons in Abo every schoolboy could be found perched upon some vantage point in or near the athletic field, each studying the form of some favorite as he scampered or leaped to victory. Throughout the week the journeys to and from the Abo grammar schools were not made with lagging feet. The little Villes, Hannes, Jonnis and Marttis no sooner spotted one another en route than a challenge was flung and a wild race under way.

In these impromptu races there was one youngster who outfooted every rival. With the speed of a whippet he would dash from the starting mark; in a dozen strides he would be out in front, and he would dance up the schoolhouse steps yards ahead of his rival or rivals and apparently unfatigued by his effort. The same result would come when those rivals demanded a "head start." And the Villes, Hannes, Jonnis and Marttis, acknowledging his superiority and impressed with the speed of his stringy legs, urged him to compete against the older athletes in the Sunday programs of the Abo Urheiluliitto.

"Run Away, Little Boy."

There was a condescending smile but a very positive shaking of the head when this 10-year-old summoned sufficient courage to ask the athletic officials if he might race the older runners.

"No," they replied, "little boys like you would get in the way and you might get hurt. The older ones run too fast."

The 10-year-old turned away and reported to his waiting companions. For two days they discussed the case among themselves. They did not know how fast the older athletes ran. They must find out. And the next Sunday the 10-year-old was putting this new question to the Urheiluliitto officials. When he had learned the time made between this stake and that stake—the stakes that marked the 1500-meter course—he was anxious to learn the time in which he could cover the distance, and then began the pestering campaign which finally gained their indulgence.

The youngster was not equipped for speed racing when he crouched on the starting mark to await the signal. He was clad in his everyday clothes and wearing a stout pair of iron-heeled shoes. Only his coat had been removed to lessen the binding burden.

At the shout "Go!" he flashed away and with his scrawny limbs twinkling, his thin arms flailing the air, and his nostrils expanding with each breath, he whirled around the course to be caught at the finish in the almost unbelievable time of five minutes and two seconds.

That 10-year-old was Paavo Nurmi. That race against time started a career in track athletics which has no parallel in athletic history.

Langford Says He Never Agreed To Carry Any Fighter Along

In Final Article of Life Story He Also Asserts He Never Did Anything Intentionally to Bring Disgrace to the Boxing Sport.

Sam Langford, negro heavyweight boxer, in the accompanying article, the final of the series, tells a representative of the Post-Dispatch that never during his entire career, running over 23 years, did he agree to carry a fighter along.

WELL, boys, the story's about done. For about 23 years you've been reading now and then about Little Thammy, and how he was doing this and that; how, maybe he was quitting in a fight; of faking, or saving up the other boys, or doing some dealing or agreeing and all that.

Sure, I quit in a fight—ONCE. That's when I went blind. Sure, I saved up boys once in a while for another day when business got bad, and I didn't have many customers. Sure, I went into some fights without meaning to knock the other boy loose from his brains. Ketchel was one, Gunboat Smith was another, and there was Jeanette, too.

But, boys, this is true, whether you believe it or not:

I never agreed with any fighter that I'd carry him along.

I never agreed with any gang of gamblers to fight the way they wanted me to—and I had a lot of chances.

I never fought a "dirty" fight with any man and I don't remember that in 23 years of nearly 500 fights that I ever lost on a foul.

I won a lot of money betting on fights—but the ONLY BETS I ever made were on MYSELF.

No one can say that I was a fighter OUTSIDE the ring.

I thought that boxing was an honest way of making a living and that it was an honorable sport. So I never intentionally brought any disgrace to it.

And now, after 23 years, I'm about done. I've grown beyond the useful days of a fighter and the sight of one of my eyes is gone.

Earned a Lot of Money.

IN MY day I earned a lot of money. I don't know just how much. Maybe it was $500,000. When you first see that you think it an awful lot and figure I ought to have a pile of it left. But, boys, I haven't any of it left and I don't think I was what folks can call extravagant.

My manager got his share out of that $500,000. Let's say his cut was 25 per cent, about $125,000. Through the years I had to pay trainers and handlers and their expenses. I guess I spent $100,000 that way. Any top notch fighter who can operate on $4500 a year for trainers, etc., is mighty economical.

Sometimes my traveling expenses were paid. Most of the time they weren't. I guess I spent about $25,000 that way and I had friends who were "broke," and they needed money and another $50,000 went to them.

Those expenses or gifts took away $300,000 and left me $200,000. Divide that by 23 years and you find that in all my fighting lifetime I didn't average much more than $9000 a year.

Started 20 Years Too Soon.

I GUESS I started fighting about 20 years too soon. I should have started about three years ago. A first-class man now gets as much for one fight as I used to get in 20.

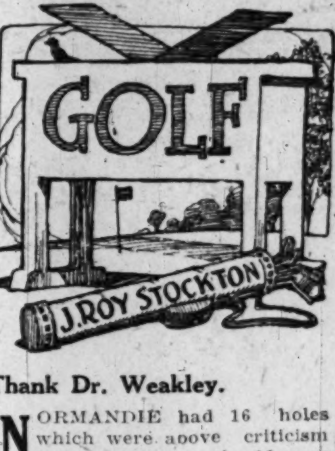
The biggest money I ever got for a fight was about $10,000 for meeting Iron Hague in London. The next biggest was $7500 paid me by Hugh D. McIntosh in Australia. I don't just remember top money in this country, but it was around $3000, and I think that came through fighting Gunboat Smith in Boston.

I once fought Joe Jeanette on percentage in a house where the "gate" was only a few hundred dollars. I boxed in New Orleans on percentage for a negro promoter. It drew $75, and I got one-fourth of that. Very often I got no more than $150 or $200 for my fights. That wasn't only at the beginning, but also in the last few years.

From 1916 to 1924 I fought about 120 battles and my total earnings were around $110,000, about $900 a fight.

But I'm not complaining. That's the way things go. You either win or you lose. I still can do a little laughing about some of those funny things that happened to me in my fighting days.

GOLF



Thank Dr. Weakley.

NORMANDIE had 16 holes which were above criticism last year. Among the 16 were golf holes which ranked with the best in the country, golf holes which were the object of praise wherever golfers gathered and discussed golf architecture and topography.

When the 1925 golf season opens there will be 18 holes at Normandie which will be above criticism. In the past it seemed that an expert course builder had laid out 16 holes and then the club had just used what was left for No. 17 and No. 18. And now 17 and 18 have been remade.

The ground in front of the tee at No. 17 has been graded so that the fairway can be seen from the tee. The tee has been moved back about 15 feet and the green has been moved to the east, and enlarged. The distance from the tee is about the same as previously. Ditches have been built in all across the fairway, 330 yards from the tee. The hole always was a trying one, but now it is a better hole and more difficult. It takes two good wooden club shots and a long pitch to reach the green.

An Undulating Green.

THE rebuilt No. 18 hole is 240 yards from the tee and it will take a good wooden club shot to find the green. The green has been rebuilt and Dr. E. V. Weakley, chairman of the Normandie greens committee, says it will rank with the prettiest greens in the country. There are 12 places on the green where the flag can be placed and the undulations are destined to be pitfalls for the careless putter.

Greens on No. 3 and No. 10 have been rebuilt. The ground to the left of the green on No. 3 has been banked so that a ball hitting on that side will not find a ditch. The green is 210 yards from the tee and it takes a carry of 170 yards to clear the ditch which guards the green.

Many St. Louis golfers have described No. 10 as the best golf hole in the St. Louis district. The green there has been resurfaced and now stretches to the edge of the ditch which guards the green. The four new greens have been completely covered with bent, taken from the course.

Doctor, Spare No. 16.

Other changes have been made at Normandie. There were many complaints about No. 16, that teasing pitch shot hole, but the only change was in taking down a tree which made the shot more intricate.

Dr. Weakley and his associates on the Normandie Greens Committee deserve praise for their work in improving the course. But they are fortunate in having a live-wire membership, men who want their golf course to be second to none.

Off to Florida.

DICK BOCKENKAMP has departed for Florida, where he will spend two weeks on the golf course at Miami. Dick expects to put up a battle for honors in the St. Louis district, in the State and at the Trans-Mississippi this year. He will golf at Miami with Louis Rosen, president of the St. Louis District Golf Association.

Hot Springs Tourney.

ART LONGWORTH, Country Club pro, is at Hot Springs preparing for the South Central open Tournament which will be played Feb. 4 and 5 at the Hot Springs Country Club. Art set the course record at the Springs and always has shot fine golf over the course. Cyril Walker will be in the tourney, but most of the other national figures are tied up in the Florida Winter Golf League.

A. J. Reach Sent To Phillies in First Transfer

Original Athletics Was Member of National League 50 Years Ago.

By John B. Foster.

(Copyright, 1925.)

(This is the fourteenth of a series of articles which John B. Foster is writing to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the National League, which will be celebrated this season.)

It is not known to the modern baseball generation that the Athletics of Philadelphia were members of the National League in the first year of that organization's existence, but they were.

Players on the team were: A. J. Reach, Alonzo Knight, W. D. Fisler, W. Fouser, D. W. Force, F. G. Malone, E. B. Sutton, G. W. Hall, W. R. Coons, Davy Eggler, George Zettlein, L. Meyerle. The manager of the Athletics was Al H. Wright.

The Athletics of those days were not much more successful than the Philadelphias of today. For some reason the Philadelphia National League team never has had the best of luck, even when it has had most excellent players. It has won one championship in its history and in the year that it won the championship the actual playing strength of the team almost surely was not as powerful as that of some of the Philadelphia teams of old.

Head of Sporting Goods House.

Of the original Athletics none acquired more fame in baseball than A. J. Reach, who is now at the head of the A. J. Reach Co. of Philadelphia, one of the largest manufacturing plants in the world for athletic goods. Mr. Reach with all his years, is strong and vigorous and can take his round of golf with anyone who wishes a brisk partner.

Force and Sutton developed into great ballplayers. In their time they were known from the Atlantic to the Mississippi River, both of them as infielders who were very proficient, and Sutton as a hard driver when he met the ball.

First Player Transfer.

Reach was the first ballplayer whose contract was transferred from one club to another and the system of dealing in baseball contracts, which is now in vogue in organized baseball, began when he was sent to Philadelphia from Brooklyn, a move which proved in the long run to be of material advantage to him as he developed his business in that city.

Davy Force was not a ballplayer of great size physically and wherever baseball was talked about in those days much was made of the fact that the somewhat diminutive Davy could field the ball across the diamond as well as if he were a six-footer. There was a popular notion in the old times that the great ballplayers must be six feet tall or almost that at least.

Fisler was the first baseman and the first of the first basemen to attract attention by his speed. The generally accepted idea of first base was that a huge giant had to play it, without particular attention to his agility. A very tall man, it was thought, was most necessary that he might be able to reach high to catch poor throws. Little heed was given to the fact that he might have to stoop to get bad ones.

(In his next article Mr. Foster will tell about the New York Mutuals, who represented the metropolis in the National League before the Giants.)

BEZDEK ADVOCATES EASTERN CONFERENCE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Speaking before the New York Association of Western Conference Universities late last night, Hugo Bezdek, football coach at Penn State, advocated the establishment of an Eastern conference in football, similar to that which prevails in the Big Ten of the Middle West.

"The formation of an Eastern conference, while not of special benefit to the Big Three, would be a boon to the smaller institutions," Bezdek said. "It would greatly aid in the making of schedules and would combine the entire section under one concept of amateurism."

DEMPSEY WON'T RETIRE UNTIL HIS PUNCH HAS GONE---KEARNS

"Champion Not Likely to Quit Until I Tell Him To," Jack's Manager Says

Man Who Brought Title-Holder From Obscurity to Fame Declares His Protege May Get Married, but Expects Him to Listen to His Advice.

the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 30.—When Jack Dempsey loses his punch, will be retired as heavyweight boxing champion, and Jack Kearns, manager, will tell him when that is, Kearns announced today in interview giving his opinion of the hue and cry recently raised er Dempsey's repeated admissions that he and Estelle Taylor ex-cted to be married soon and that he "would probably quit fight-g" about the same time.

Kearns admitted he was resigned the fact that Dempsey intends marry the motion picture ac- s. He expects to hear wedding ls, but he cannot believe their gle will sound the knell of empsey's ring career.

"I know Dempsey has talked bout retiring for a long time," he aid, "just like doctors, lawyers, ankers and others who get tired f the profession they are in. Jack ad felt that he wanted to pack is gloves away in moth balls. He lso has a conviction that there is o one in the game today capable f giving him a real fight.

Too Young to Quit.

"But Dempsey is too young to etire," he continued. "He's only 9 and he has a lot of good fights n his system yet.

"Furthermore, I think I'll retire im when I decide that he is hrough as a fighter.

"Don't ever get the idea that our ntract is up when Dempsey steps he altar. I have no contract th Dempsey for his services in he ring except his word with me. 's been good enough for both of s for eight years. I guess it will e good enough for some time to me.

"When I said fight, Dempsey ught," explained the champion's anager, recalling some of his ex- iences during the eight years he tioned, adding that in all that Dempsey never questioned his gment or asked for an account- in money matters.

The possibility of Dempsey's ac- lly retiring appeals to Kearns as most too terrible to contemplate.

None to Replace Dempsey.

"Just suppose he did," he said. here is no outstanding heavy- eight contender on the horizon ong the whites.

"Tommy Gibbons would be mped off by either Harry Wills Godfrey and you would have other black champion. A return the tempestuous days of Jack Johnson's reign and the black eye boxing received as a result of his escapades."

Late today Dempsey said he would "probably quit fighting about May 20," which happens to be Miss Taylor's birthday and a day that appeals to both of them as a good date for a wedding.

He added, however, that he was keeping in training and would be "open for bouts until that time."

After his retirement from the ring he said he thought he might "go into pictures or open a gymnasium."

Dempsey Declares He Has Asked Kearns to Arrange a Title Bout

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.

JACK DEMPSEY'S reply to Tommy Gibbons' claim of last night to the world's heavyweight boxing championship was this statement made late today:

"I have told Jack Kearns to arrange a title bout."

He did not specify that the bout should be with Gibbons.

Dempsey, visibly aroused by Gibbons' statement that he claimed the championship because the champion was not doing any fighting, declared:

"I have NOT stepped out, and Gibbons has no license to claim the title until I have officially stated that I have retired.

"I am content to let Gibbons have another chance at my title, but it is all up to Kearns."

Kearns said later that he had opened negotiations with Tex Rickard, New York promoter, for a title match, probably about July 4, with an unnamed opponent for Dempsey.

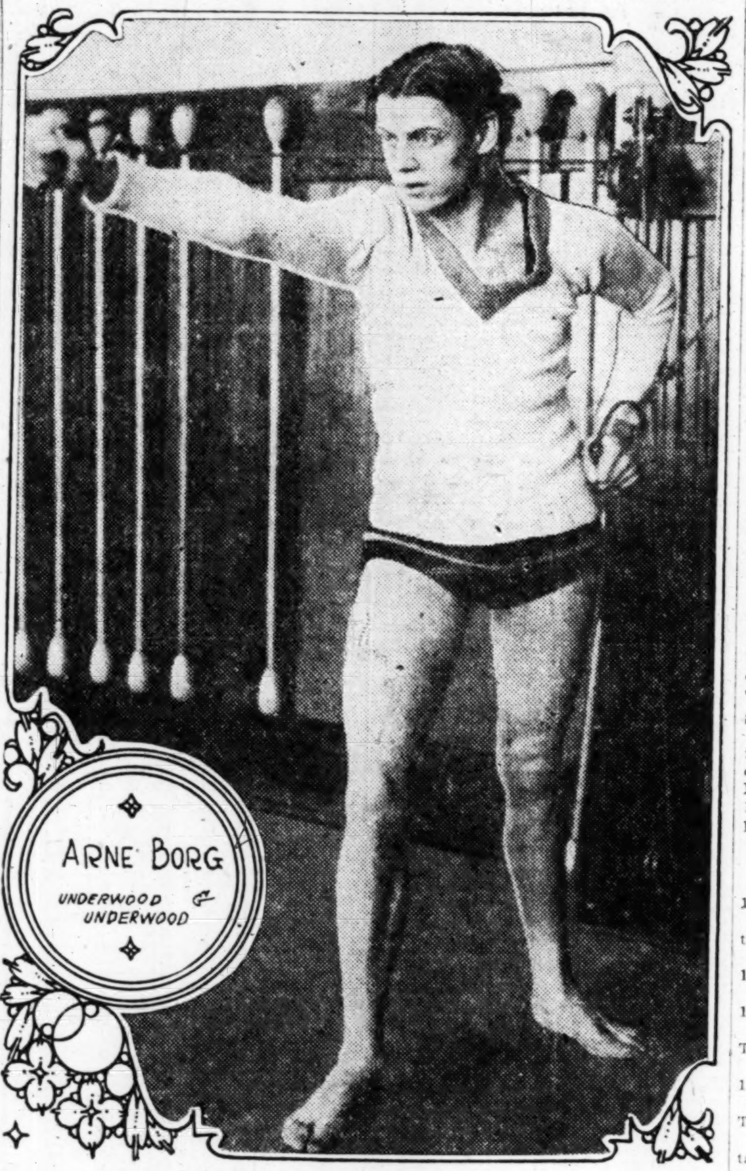
Weissmueller's Formidable Rival



BORG, Sweden's great swimmer, at present is in the United States bent on capturing some of the National A. A. U. championships. Borg is one of the geratest paddlers of the world. Recently, in Stockholm, he established a new world's record for the 500 meters, slashing Johnny Weissmueller's figures from 6:24 1-5 to 6:19 3-5. In the Olympic games, last summer, Borg was defeated by Weissmueller in both the 100 and 400 meter events.

Last winter, Borg set marks of 10:42 3-5 for the 880-yard open swim and 22:34 for the mile. This is better than the marks owned by the best American milers and half-milers. The National A. A. U. championships will be held in San Francisco next April. Borg, it is understood, has signified his intention of taking permanent residence in the United States.

While Weissmueller swims only in races up to 500 meters, Borg competes in all regulation events.

Willie Hoppe Ranks Billiard Players of All Time; Gives First Place to Young Jake Schaefer

Consensus Ranking by Ten Leading Cue Experts Puts Hoppe First and Schaefer Second—Champion Ranks Charley Peterson 11th Among Present Day Stars.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—"Young Jake" Schaefer of San Francisco is the greatest match player ever faced by Willie Hoppe, world's balk-line billiard champion. This is the outstanding conclusion drawn from ranking lists of his opponents compiled by Hoppe in which the cue wizard places Schaefer at the top of the "first ten" of all times as well as the list of modern stars.

Next to Schaefer in his modern "first ten" Hoppe puts Welker Cochran, sensational young Los Angeles player and Roger Conti of France, who recently shattered several world's records in capturing the European championship. In his "first ten" for all time, however, Hoppe ranks Frank Ives second and "Old Jake" Schaefer, father of a brilliant son, third.

An interesting comparison with Hoppe's all time list is afforded by a similar selection based on the consensus of opinion of ten leading billiard experts. Hoppe naturaly heads this array, but it is interesting to note that, although in slightly different order, the remaining nine named all are on Hoppe's list. Cochran Calls Balkline Better Test of Skill

Ordinary Amateur May Defeat World's Champion at Three-Cushions, He Says.

By Dent McSkimming.

Having been advised that Welker Cochran, one of the world's greatest balkline billiard players, had defeated Robert Cannefax, world's three-cushion champion, in a 300-point exhibition match last October, local billiard fans were somewhat surprised when Cochran lost two three-cushion matches to local amateur players at Peterson's Friday. Cochran had also defeated Clarence Jackson, a leading professional three-cushion star, seven straight matches of 50 points each.

Cochran, himself, was bitterly disappointed when Dr. L. P. Macklin and Gene Deardorff defeated him, 25 to 15 and 25 to 23.

"Here I am, a near world's champion, losing to a couple of amateur players," said Cochran after the match. "And still, we hear billiard followers say that three-cushions is a harder game than balkline. Any ordinary three-cushion player is liable to beat the world's professional champion. If three-cushions were such an exacting game this condition would not prevail. No ordinary amateur player has a chance to beat a champion at balkline.

Better Test of Skill.

"Balkline provides the better test of skill. These casual three-cushion matches prove the point. They also prove that when a man is training for balkline play he cannot just change his jacket and shoot good three-cushion billiards. That's why I believe Willie Hoppe is showing poor judgment in agreeing to play Cannefax a week before the balkline tournament."

In speaking of the coming world's championship tournament, Cochran said that he believes each of the five challengers has a good chance to take the title.

"I think Willie Hoppe is not so confident as most observers believe him. Hoppe knows that each of the rivals today is a great player. He knows, too, that there will come a day when the balls will not respond for him as they did in the past. He knows that each of the rivals can make any shot that he can make, and he knows that they are gaining steadier nerves through repeated tournament experience.

A Conservative Player.

"It is not Hoppe's wonderful shot-making ability that has won for him in the past. It has been his faculty for taking the right shot when there was a choice. He is a conservative fellow and he will almost always take the surer shot.

"For instance, with the balls in this position," and Cochran illustrated an ordinary draw shot, "Hoppe will go to the rail, making sure of the shot, although getting less favorable position for the next shot. Most of the other players, including myself, will take the straight draw back on the ball, a little more daring but the 'proper' shot and one leading to better position.

"Hoppe's advantage in judgment, born of greater tournament experience, is not so pronounced as it formerly was and his task becomes harder. We shall see."

NEW PROPOSAL FOR DIVISION OF RECEIPTS AT SOCCER CONTESTS

another, so long as that eleven is a bona-fide member of the organization," said Barker. "For that reason I do not see how the winner of the American League cup competition can be prevented from playing the St. Louis champions.

"Our object is to decide a professional soccer championship of the United States. In the U. S. F. A. challenge cup play, amateur elevens are permitted to enter into competition with professionals.

"In order to prevent this series, it would be necessary to pass a new rule. And this could be done only at the annual meeting."

President Barker indicated that if no sanction was forthcoming for the proposed championship series with the Eastern team, the St. Louis League would withdraw from the U. S. F. A.

DERBY FAVORITES QUOTED AT 10-TO-1 IN EARLY WINTER BOOKS

Stimulus, Captain Hall And Lee O. Cotner Ranked At Top by Western Expert

Master Charlie, Because of Rumors of His Being Unsound, Is Quoted at 50 to 1—Nominations for Turf Classic at Churchill Downs May 16 Will Close Feb. 21.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 31.—Stimulus, Captain Hal, Lee O. Cotner, Sunny Man, Candy Kid, Singlefoot, Mother Goose, Star Lane, Kentucky Cardinal and King Nadi is the way one prominent Western layer of prizes ranks the first flight of eligibles for the $50,000 added Kentucky Derby, at one mile and a quarter to be decided over the historic Churchill Downs course on the afternoon of Saturday, May 16. Nominations for the coming classic close on Feb. 21 and will not be announced before March 1.

The racing enthusiasts naturally are taking it for granted that the leading 3-year-olds of the country, without exception, will be nominated for the Derby. It is the general prediction that the entries will surpass in number those of any previous Derby, and taking the racing last year of those which now appear on paper to be the most formidable contenders as a criterion, it also looks as though it should develop into the most open race in the long and honorable history of the brilliant event.

It will be observed that in the above ranking 10 the name of last year's champion 2-year-old, Master Charlie, is not included. The name of the best 2-year-old of 1924 is classed among the "doubtful starters" because of the fact that reports from New Orleans where the colt is wintering have him a cripple and not likely to be a starter in the next Kentucky Derby.

His Future Is Doubtful.

Master Charlie would be the logical winter book favorite for the classic were he a sound colt. How far his unsoundness goes is merely rumor. One story has it that Trainer Andy Blakely has done nothing with the imported colt during the entire winter, further than give him the usual exercise for horsse out of training. Another story is that Master Charlie has been "fired" and will not even be named for the Derby. How true these stories are will be disclosed when the nominations are announced.

With Master Charlie out of consideration the question arises as to what horse the handicappers will make the favorite for the Derby in the future books following the announcement of the nominations. Naturally, the favorite is made by the public after the opening odds are posted. Easterners probably will favor for choices such good colts as Stimulus or Sumpter. Star Lore, Sunny Man, Singlefoot and Candy Kid also will be held to reasonable odds. In the West such good ones as Capt. Hal, Lee O. Cotner, Kentucky Cardinal, Tilka, King Nadi and Adolphus will have a strong following.

Three Horses at 10 to 1.

The Western layer who ranked the above 10 candidates has made Stimulus, Captain Hal and Lee O. Cotner equal favorites and has quoted them at 10 to 1 each. Single foot and Mother Goose are his second choices at 15 to 1. Candy Kid, Swinging, Star Lore and Sunny Man are his third choices at 20 to 1. As for Master Charlie, the layer has classed him as a 50-to-1 shot, due to reports that have been coming in about the colt's condition.

Louisville Bookies, Early Winter Prices On Derby Eligibles

FOLLOWING are some early winter book prices quoted a Louisville bokmaker on some of the prominent Derby eligibles:

10 to 1—Stimulus, Lee O. Cotner, Captain Hal.

15 to 1—Singlefoot, Mother Goose.

20 to 1—Candy Kid, Swinging, Star Lore, Sunny Man.

25 to 1—Sumpter, Kentucky Cardinal, King Nadi, Young Martin.

30 to 1 — Blue Warbler, Brown Sugar, Zuker.

40 to 1—Tilka, Adolphus, Annihilator, Reputation, Swope, Quatrain, Almadel.

50 to 1—Step Along, Flying Ebony, Abstract, Master Charlie, Supremus, Nicholas, Sweep Park, Little Visitor, American Flag, Billstrap.

100 to 1—Barney Google; Brave Bob, Cup Bearer, Singlehand, Down Town, Sir Peter.

Stimulus, Winner of the Pimlico Futurity, Has Taken on Weight

With the exception of Master Charlie, the leading candidates for the coming Derby have been reported to be wintering unusually well at this time of the season. Stimulus, Marshall Field's grand colt, is reported to be progressing nicely in his early work at Belmont Park. He is reported to have taken on considerable weight and is a grand-looking colt. Stimulus has his own romance. He was bred by W. B. Miller of the Greenwich stud, and was sold at the Saratoga sales of 1923 for $4000 to Marshall Field. The day after the sale some fault was found with the colt and there was a desire to turn him back. He finally remained in George Odom's hands and, as in similar cases, he raced so well that both owner and trainer have reason to thank their good fortune that Mr. Miller did not accept their proposal. By Ultimus, grandson of Domino, and out of Huraken, by Uncle, he confounded the breeding theorists by winning the Pimlico Futurity at a mile and only lost the other and more valuable Futurity at Belmont Park by the margin of a few inches to the lightly weighted Mother Goose.

Capt. Hal Looks Good.

Captain Hal is in winter quarters at Churchill Downs, under the watchful eye of Trainer Walter Hopkins. The Black Toney colt is having a wonderful winter and, to tell the truth, looks ready for a race at this early stage. He has filled out immensely and it is the general opinion that he is a colt who will go on. Hopkins says that only death will prevent his charge being entered in the Derby.

It is the general opinion of Westerners that R. W. Collins, the youthful turfman of Bashford Manor, Ky., has a grand Derby prospect in Lee O. Cotner, by High Time out of Last Coin, also stabled at Churchill Downs. This colt went on the shelf near the close of last season, due to an injured hind leg, which he suffered in a race at Latonia. The injury has healed entirely and the colt is taking kindly to his daily galloping exercises. This colt is a real streak of lightning, as it will be remembered that he ran the fastest three-quarters of a mile run by any horse at Churchill Downs last season. He went the distance in 1:11 2-5, winning by eight lengths eased up, beating among the good ones King Nadi. Many wise turfmen say that Lee O. Cotner is 15 or 20 pounds a better horse than Sarazen ever was. He is a straight forward runner and once in the lead he never falters. Lon Jones, who is training Lee O. Cotner, says the colt now weighs about 1100 pounds.

Rowe Handling Candy Kid.

Sunny Man belongs to Willis Sharpe Kilmer and according to word from Sun Briar Manor in the East, the colt is wintering about as well as any other 3-year-old. Candy Kid, one of the best Derby colts in the H. P. Whitney string, is going through his daily exercises on the Whitney farm at Red Bank, N. J. The veteran trainer, Jimmy Rowe, is looking after Candy Kid, so he can be expected to be fit and ready as early as the other candidates. Rowe is a wonder when it comes to getting a horse in shape early in the season.

Singlefoot, the property of J. E. Griffith, is in training at Bowie and said to be doing nicely. Mother Goose is the grand filly also in the Whitney barn at Red Bank. They say she is a certain starter if she trains on, for Rowe is of the opinion that she is another Regret. Kentucky Cardinal and King Nadi are in winter quarters at the Lexington track. Both are wintering well, and from all indications will be certain starters.

SARAZEN ALLOTTED TOP WEIGHT, 128 POUNDS, IN BELMONT PARK RACE

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. — Sarazen Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt's famous gelding, is allotted top weight of 128 pounds for the Metropolitan Handicap, annual classic of the spring meeting at Belmont Park according to the lists made public today. One hundred and two thoroughbreds are handicapped for the event.

The three conquerors of Epinard, French star, in the three international specials last season, are at the top of the list. Sarazen, victor in the third special at Latonia, has a two-pound margin on Ladkin, former Belmont horse recently sold to W. Averill Harriman, which beat Epinard in the second special.

Wise Counsellor, Kentucky thoroughbred which won the first special, is bracketed with Ordinance another former Belmont star, now owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney, at 124 pounds. Chilhowee, speedy Western thoroughbred, is fifth with 123 pounds, one more than the allowance for Mad Play, of the Rancocas Stable.

In the Realm Of Bird Dogs

Belle the Devil Proved "Dark Horse" in National Trial Derby.

By A. F. Hochwalt.

When Belle the Devil won the Derby championship of the National trials at Union Springs, Ala., during the second week in January, it no doubt created some surprise and not a little consternation among some of the older handlers, for she was in every sense of the word a "dark horse." Belle the Devil is a pointer, owned by Joseph Crane Jr.

The first place Crane started his puppy was in the Southern Derby at Union Springs, in December. Somehow, the judges did not value her at her true worth. She was entirely unknown and possibly they did not figure that young Crane had a real one. Nevertheless many were of the impression that she was much better than most of the dogs that were placed. At all events, Belle the Devil was not even called back in the second series.

In less than a month after this the Derby championship took place at Union Springs. One of the judges was a veteran in the game and past precedents do not enter when he is judging dogs. To him a dog is just what he appears to be on the day that he is competing. He had heard of most of the competitors many times before, but Belle the Devil was an entirely new one. That made no difference to him, however. Belle ran a good race, found birds and handled them; the result was that she won the stake over a field of dogs that had been winning all the way down the line. Belle the Devil proved then and there that she is a new star and young Crane was the happiest lad in Alabama.

The second dog in the stake was Walnut Grove Lucy, another pointer, belonging to R. W. Norman of Salisbury, N. C., handled by R. K. Armstrong of Roba, Ala. Walnut Grove Lucy is one of those snappy, fast-going dogs and a bird finder of the first magnitude. She made seven points during her heat and was easily the second dog in the stake. Lucy was also one of the contenders in the Southern Derby in December. In that race she was given a divided third. It did not take long for this little North Carolina pointer to vindicate herself. She was an easy second to Belle the Devil and thus two dogs which were practically unknown during the early part of the season came out in this field of select ones and beat the entire lot in such a decisive manner that no one doubted the wisdom of the judge in placing them.

Cyclops Captures Feature Race At New Orleans

Lang Guides Massey's Horse to Victory in Comus Handicap—Chilhowee Again Defeated.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 31.—H. Massey's Cyclops conclusively demonstrated that he was capable of duplicating his feat of last week when he came down to the wire an easy winner in the Comus Handicap, sprint feature of the program, at the Fair Grounds this afternoon. Mom's Boy got up in time to take second place from Little Visitor, which hung right at the end after being prominent throughout the six furlongs dash. Cyclops ruled the favorite at odds of 17 to 10 and was the third consecutive choice to score.

"Chick Lang, who was astride the black son of Heno, immediately took him to the front to cut out the running and his pace literally set the field behind him dizzy before the stretch turn was reached. Little Visitor forced the pace until the last sixteenth and then showed that the task had been too great.

Chilhowee Finishes Third.

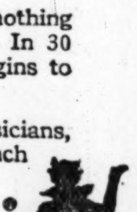
Chilhowee, the record breaker, was humbled for the second time at the meeting, when the best he could do was finish third in the Once Around Purse, secondary feature on the card. H. C. Riddle's consistent gelding, Everbold, got the honors by a nose over the Vintner, while Chilhowee grabbed off the show.

For a time it appeared to be strictly a two-horse race, between Chilhowee and Thundering. This pair raced almost on even terms after going a quarter of the mile trip, the balance of the field far behind them. Turning into the lane that leads to the finish, both showed signs of tiring from their early efforts, and the rest of the field closed in on them. The Vintner went into the lead. Everbold drove past Chilhowee after passing the sixteenth pole and went after The Vintner, which was still leading under hard urging. They raced as a team for about 20 yards, then Everbold poked his snoot in front and gathered in the coin.

It was Everbold's eighth victory out of 10 trips to the webbing at the Fair Grounds since the meeting was inaugurated.

Quatrain a Winner.

Frederick Johnson's Quatrain qualified as a strong contender for the Louisiana Derby by the impressive manner in which he captured the Dixieland Purse, which came third on the program and was at one mile. High Water took second place, five lengths to the rear of the leader and held a like advantage over Alexander Moore. The winner was odds-on choice.



Stomach Sour?
A thorough cleansing internally may be your need

THERE is nothing more exasperating and distressing than a chronic upset stomach condition. Yet, many persons resign themselves to a lifetime of misery on this account when they could find relief.

Often, all that is needed to correct fermentation and sour stomach is a series of internal baths with Pluto Water. For this purpose, you just take Pluto in the regular way—and its flushing, cleansing action does the rest. The disturbing, clinging accumulations in the bowel area are released and eliminated.

Unlike over-night cathartics there is nothing sickening in the effect of Pluto Water. In 30 minutes to two hours after taking it begins to work. It never gripes after use.

Try Pluto today. It is prescribed by physicians, sold by druggists and bottled at French Lick Springs, Indiana.

EVERYWHERE you go everybody is figuring out a Cross Word Puzzle. Nobody is working or even exercising. America will lose the next War but win the next Puzzle Contest. It's the greatest craze that has hit this country since Prohibition. People say to me, "Why Will, you don't understand; it is an Education, it learns you more ways to say one word." If you know one way to say a word what do you need to know any more for? Nobody is going to give you anything for nothing, I don't care how many ways you ask for it. Our nation has never been short on words. We might lack ideas sometime but never words. This puzzle has done one thing, it has learned us which is Horizontal and which is Vertical. But a Cross Word Puzzle is not new. Railroad Time Tables have been out for years. Smoke 'Bull' Durham while working one, that is, if you want to, if you don't why smoke wherever you want to.

STREET WIDENING FUND TIED UP BY EXCEPTORS

To Be Kept Intact Pending Ruling by Court on Validity of Condemnation Petition.

The $1,939,000 paid into the treasury of the Circuit Court by the city as compensation to property owners for taking of property in the proposed widening of Olive street, from Twelfth boulevard to Channing avenue, will remain intact until Judge Grimm decides whether the petition in the condemnation suit providing for the improvement is valid.

Approximately 100 defendants have filed exceptions to the report of the commissioners who assessed the benefits and damages. The exceptors contend that the awards made to them were inadequate and that the condemnation petition did not state a cause of action.

Argument of Exceptors.

Arguments on the latter point were heard Friday by Judge Grimm, in whose court the case is pending, and the matter was taken under advisement. Lambert E. Walther, attorney for a group of exceptors, argued that the petition was defective because it failed to comply with a provision of the city charter requiring that in condemnation suits of the kind at issue the property which is sought to be taken be designated as well as the interest of each property owner shown. He cited a decision of the Supreme Court in support of his argument.

On the other hand, Assistant City Counselor Eggers contended that the petition in the main covered all essential requirements of the charter. The alleged defect, he said, was a formal on and could be remedied by amendment of the petition. If Walther's motion should be sustained, it was stated, it would be necessary to pass a new ordinance and file a new condemnation suit, with new Commissioners to do the work over. This would mean months of delay.

Condemnation Fund Deposited.

Circuit Clerk John Schmoll has deposited the condemnation fund in the National City Bank, the Security National Bank, the National Bank of Commerce, the Boatmen's Bank, American Trust Co. and the Liberty Central Trust Co. These financial institutions have agreed to pay 2¼ per cent interest, which is the customary rate received by the city. Schmoll will ask for an opinion of the City Counselor as to whether the city or the defendant property owners are entitled to the accumulated interest. But no part of the fund will be paid, he said, until Judge Grimm orders him to do so.

There are 167 parcels of real estate involved in the suit. Largest amounts awarded were $126,500 to the Burdeau Real Estate Co., $100,500 to the Century Electric Co., and $91,700 to the Essex Investment Co. Attorney Walther's clients are A. J. Siegel, H. L. Cornwell and former Circuit Judge James E. Withrow. If the court overrules his motion a time will then be set for hearing exceptions based on the alleged inadequacy of the awards.

No Share For Schmoll.

In answer to a question, Schmoll said he was not entitled to any part of the interest. "The salary of the Circuit Clerk, as fixed by a law enacted 46 years ago, is $5000 a year and he can't legally take any more," Schmoll declared.

He called attention to the fact that in his recent report for 1924 he accounted to the city for $571.91 interest on deposits. This is said to be an innovation. Other Circuit Clerks, according to an attache of the clerk's office, have not required the banks where the court money was deposited to pay interest, as the daily balances were not large. The banks in return for the business would pay the premium on the clerk's bond, amounting to $500 a year, which otherwise would have been charged to the city.

Schmoll's report also showed that he turned over to the city a surplus of $22,513 after paying the expenses of his office. This was $12,000 more than was shown for the year 1923, Schmoll's first year in office, and is said to be the largest balance ever received from the Circuit Clerk's office. The report was made to the City Comptroller.

RAISULI IS CAPTURED BY RUFFIAN TRIBESMEN

Bandit Leader Is Held Prisoner in His House; Spanish Troops Neutral in Affair.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Jan. 31.—The Riffian tribesmen have captured Tazarut, and Raisuli, the bandit leader, is a prisoner in his house, guarded by soldiers of the shereef, says an official statement today.

The statement declares that Raisuli's position "has become considerably worse, and he is believed to have been forced to surrender to those he fought." The Spanish forces, it is added, are watchfully awaiting developments, but have thus far remained neutral.

The statement concludes: "When our lines were rectified, Raisuli preferred to stay outside our front and carried on on his own account. As for Spain, she can recognize no other native government than that legally constituted at Tetuan."

CONSTIPATION means SICKNESS

More human suffering, physical and mental, has resulted from constipation than from any other source. The entire future life of a child can be ruined by lack of attention to the proper daily movement of the bowels. If the bowels do not act at least twice daily it means constipation—that means the bowels are clogged up with the accumulated residue of five to fifteen meals or more with consequent pollution, poison and disease.

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN

—relieves constipation. It is a combination of Egyptian senna, pepsin and aromatics prepared in liquid form, inviting to the taste, and smooth, pleasant and easy in its action. It is the kind of a prescription a good doctor will give you. Used nationally over 30 years.

People complain about the public taxes they pay, but all these are really a very small affair compared with the taxes they saddle upon themselves—for instance, the tax on health and vitality exacted by neglected vision.

It is a well established fact that nine out of ten headaches are caused by some form of eyestrain, and these chronic headache sufferers are without pep, ambition or interest in life.

SIX KILLED IN FIRE TRAPPING 34 FAMILIES

Chicago Students Make Rescues and Some Tenants Jump Into Fire Nets.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Six persons were burned to death and half a dozen others injured, one probably fatally, in a fire early today which virtually destroyed a four-story brick apartment building on the South Side, housing 34 families.

One entire family was wiped out in the apartment building fire, Anthony Hardie, his wife and their 19-months old daughter, Doris, perishing. The other victims were Mrs. Elizabeth Pryor, her daughter, Loretta, 16, and Mrs. Dora Jones.

While it is believed all the victims have been accounted for, firemen tonight still searched the ruins for the bodies of persons who might have been in the building without the knowledge of others.

Students Make Rescues.

Scores of lives were saved by the courage and resourcefulness of people from the neighborhood and several persons were carried from the burning building by students of the University of Chicago, nearby.

The building, an old structure erected in World's Fair days, had every apartment occupied and many of the families had subleased some of their rooms to others. Next to the building is the Del Prado Hotel, which for a time was threatened by the fire.

Three investigations of the fire were started. Defective electric wiring was the theory of the blaze being investigated.

Tenants Jump Into Nets.

The flames, which had gained headway on lower floors when discovered, spread through the old building so rapidly that many of its tenants were forced to jump into nets to save their lives, while others crawled from windows to windows of adjoining building on boards placed on the sills. Three of the bodies were burned so badly that they were identified only through rings or shreds of clothing. A small boy and girl were tossed from a second-story window by their frenzied mothers, and escaped with nothing worse than a few bruises.

The Hardie family suffered the worst fate, as it was impossible to get through the smoke and flames to where they had fled in fright. Hardies stayed with his wife until burned and was killed when he jumped from the fourth story.

TRACED BY GERMAN PISTOL, PAIR CONFESS KILLING MAN

Weapon Which Was Thrown From Taxicab Leads to Arrest of Men in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Traced by the number on a pistol, Edward J. Smith and Bernhardt Mylen, of Milwaukee, police said, have confessed here that they killed Russell Dickey, express messenger on the Viking, Chicago and Northwestern Railway passenger train, in an attempted holdup near Chicago Dec. 30.

The pistol was thrown from a taxicab in which Mylen fled after he jumped from the train at Highland Park, a suburb.

Unable to open an express company strong box which contained upward of $200,000 after shooting Dickey, Mylen commandeered a taxicab and drove to Evanston, where he disappeared, the authorities said.

Smith planned the robbery and agreed to furnish the revolver, Mylen's confession said. Both returned to Milwaukee after the robbery.

The men will be taken to Waukegan, Lake County, the authorities said, and will be charged with murder.

MISS FOSTER WRITES IN EXPLANATION OF SPEECH

Says Professors Have Said Nothing That Has Disturbed Her Religious Beliefs.

Miss Katherine Foster, Washington University postgraduate student, whose talk before the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Diocese of Missouri was reported in Wednesday's Post-Dispatch, has written to the Post-Dispatch regarding one statement made. That statement, she said, carried the inference that a professor in Washington University had said things, in the course of his work of instruction, which had disturbed Miss Foster's religious beliefs.

Such a conclusion was not warranted, Miss Foster writes, for in her four and one-half years at Washington University she has never heard any professor, in lectures or instruction, say anything directed to raising religious doubts in the mind of any student. The statement which she made as to religious doubts among students, Miss Foster says, related to the general problem of reconciling scientific teachings with religious beliefs.

More Girlhood

More girlish beauty—perennial youth

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I am trying to bring to girls and women what I got. For 40 years I have searched the world for the utmost in beauty helps. They made me a famous stage beauty. And now, at a grandmother's age, they keep my youthful bloom.

I look like a girl of 19.

My experts have combined 52 ingredients in four preparations. That makes these helps convenient, economical. These four helps offer you the best modern science knows.

You will find them on every toilet counter. I will send you any one to try if you will mail the coupon.

My Youth Cream

Is a remarkable creation, combining many factors. It contains products of both lemon and strawberry. Also the best helps science gave me to foster and protect the skin.

It comes in two types—cold cream and vanishing. I use it as a night cream, also daytime as a powder base. Never is my skin without it. My velvet complexion shows what that cream can do. The cost is 60c per jar. Also in 35c tubes.

My Facial Youth

Is a liquid cleanser I owe to France. Great beauty experts the world over now advise this formula, but their price is too high for most women.

It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. The skin cannot absorb it. So it cleans to the depths, then departs. My facial Youth will bring you new conceptions of what a clean skin means. The cost is 75c.

White Youth Clay

A new-type clay, white, refined and dainty. Vastly different from the crude and muddy clays so many have employed.

It purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. Removes the causes of blackheads and blemishes. Brings a rosy afterglow which amazes and delights. Combats lines and wrinkles; reduces enlarged pores.

No girl or woman can afford to omit it. It multiplies beauty. White Youth Clay costs 50c and $1.

My Hair Youth

The cause of my luxuriant hair, thick and silky, finer far than 40 years ago. I have never had falling hair, dandruff or a touch of gray.

A concentrated product combining many ingredients. I apply it with an eyedropper directly to the scalp to tone and stimulate. No man or woman will omit it when they see what Hair Youth does. The cost is 50c and $1 with eyedropper.

My Face Powders

They are supreme creations. No face powders you have used can compare. Mine are exquisite. They come in two types. One a heavy, clinging, cold cream powder, in square box, $1. I like that best. The other is light and fluffy, in round box, 50c.

All toilet counters supply my beauty helps. If you send the coupon I will mail you a sample of any one you choose. Also my Beauty Book. Clip coupon now.

KILLS TWO CHILDREN IN RELIGIOUS FRENZY

Pennsylvania Farmer Insane Following Deed—Brother, 73, Dies From Excitement.

By the Associated Press.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 31.—Walter Bingaman, a farmer of Warwick Township, near here, while in a religious frenzy today, beat to death two of his three children. When police broke into the farmhouse they found the farmer's father, George C. Bingaman, 73 years old, also dead. His death, Coroner Russell James of Chester County said, probably was due to excitement and heart disease.

Tonight Bingaman was in the county jail, violently insane, the police said.

Attempted to Strangle Wife.

Bingaman's wife was at a neighbor's house when the tragedy occurred. The dead children are Priscilla Bingaman, 3 years old, and William Bingaman, 18 months.

Thursday night, according to Mrs. Bingaman, her husband tried to convert her to his way of thinking in religion.

An argument followed and he tried to strangle her. She was rendered unconscious for some time. Friday night her husband again attacked her and she fled to the house of a neighbor and remained there over night, fearing to return to her home.

Prompted by "Spirits" to Kill.

Today she became alarmed when nobody was seen about the house, and the authorities at West Chester were notified. Breaking into the house, they found Bingaman and a 5-year-old son, Walter Jr., stretched across a bed, with the dead grandfather and two lifeless children in the same room.

The officers seized Bingaman and manacled him hand and foot. He said he was prompted by "spirits" to kill the baby.

When his aged father died, Bingaman said, he had to "sanctify the home by sacrificing the 3-year-old girl." Her skull had been crushed.

The Coroner held an inquest and decided that Bingaman had killed the two children and that the father died from excitement and heart trouble.

LONGEST TUNNEL IN WORLD TO BE COMPLETED SOON

Florence Lake Project in California Will Divert River 45 Miles From Course.

By the Associated Press.

FRESNO, Cal., Jan. 31.—Reports from the Southern California Edison company, building the Florence Lake tunnel under the Kaiser range in the high Sierras, 100 miles northeast of Fresno, are that the work, which was started in 1920, will be finished sooner than had been estimated. The last blast may be placed about Feb. 11 or 12, it was said.

The tunnel will be the longest in the world, being two or three miles longer than Simplon tunnel under the Swiss Alps, now the longest, and much longer than the Rodgers pass tunnel on the Canadian Pacific Railway, it was added.

Today there remained only 509 feet of rock to be blasted out.

When completed the tunnel will divert the upper waters of the San Joaquin River about 45 miles from their course, and under Kaiser Mountain and into Huntington Lake, the seven-mile long storage reservoir of the Southern California Edison Co., at an elevation of 7200 feet.

FRANCE'S TRICOLOR IN RUSSIA FOR FIRST TIME SINCE WAR

Flag Raised Over Temporary Embassy in Moscow to Strains of National Hymn.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Jan. 31.—France's tricolor made its first appearance in Russia today since the regime of the Czars. To the strident strains of the Marseillaise played by the orchestra of the State opera house, the French flag was formally raised over the house of the Nansen relief mission, which serves as the temporary headquarters of the French embassy. No government or foreign officials were present.

The Russians in the neighborhood startled out of their usual lethargy by the martial notes of the French national hymn, asked: "When will the American embassy be re-established? When shall we hear the American national anthem?" But nobody ventured a reply. Meantime the old American embassy building in Leningrad, which was rented from a former member of the nobility, remains deserted and decaying.

WANTS GOVERNMENT RELIEVED

Congressman Seeks Inquiry Into "Overburden of Activities."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The increasing multiplicity of Federal Government activities led today to the introduction by Representative Sumners (Dem.), Texas, of a resolution proposing appointment of a congressional commission to determine how the Government can get relief from its "overburden of responsibilities." Three Senators and a like number of Representatives would serve on the commission with no time limit fixed for the filing of a report.

Sumners declared the development of the country and the shift of new responsibilities to the Federal Government has overloaded the governmental machinery and is making it increasingly difficult for it "to discharge with efficiency and economy through the agencies at its command either its original or acquired responsibilities."

New light on some of your common daily ailments that supplants former medical findings

How modern science now traces scores of our common discomforts to simple lack of "Acid Balance" in the stomach that determines amazingly the way we feel —the simple way recently discovered to overcome it

By F. MARTIN DE BRINON

THIS throws a new light on some of your common daily "ailments" and disorders.

On why you lack a constant flow of energy and vigor—get up two mornings in three feeling unrefreshed and logy.

On how to get relief from those frequent headaches.

On how to overcome bowel irregularities, constipation, "sour" stomach, "gas," etc.

On how, literally, to make a new person of yourself.

• • • •

As part of a nation-wide movement for better health, a test is being offered. A test based on the method, today the most widely prescribed by medical authority in the world. Note the coupon below.

ACID—that's the trouble
A lack of acid balance in your stomach
You must re-establish it

Almost 80% of headaches, biliousness and stomach discomforts are now traced to a lack of acid balance in the stomach and to certain bowel conditions.

That means an abnormal acid condition from the food fermentation that fosters scores of stomach and systemic disorders. You must neutralize it. Former methods took only bowel evacuation into count. And that is where they failed.

That discovery has changed former conceptions of stomach and intestinal treatment.

Has changed the medical view of purges and laxatives, of the use of calomel, salts, etc. Has supplanted previous scientific findings.

Purging won't do it—drug dosing may tend to intensify it

Old-time methods call for purging. Others for pepsin, for calomel—soda.

Now, in acidity, these have been found inadequate.

Frequent drug dosage tended often to increase this condition, rather than to correct it.

Now new methods—based on a new form of magnesia

To meet that condition, men of medicine turned to a new form of magnesia—Mintrated Cream of Magnesia—that acts in these distinct ways, yet at once.

It combats absorption into the blood of toxic poisons from the intestinal tract that keep people below normal and constantly ailing.

It neutralizes excess stomach acids, thus aiding in re-establishing correct acid balance. It relieves the intestinal tract. And it acts to expel stomach gases as well.

Magnesia alone was incapable of effecting all those results. It lacked the stimulus of an active carminative—(a substance to expel gas).

Now, in this new form, carminative mintration has been achieved. And that is making the use of this basic remedy a national scientific topic. It brings to thousands a new freedom from ailments and discomforts.

Make the test

Now a bottle is offered to you at our expense. Obtain it. Note the simple directions that come with it.

Then see what a difference a single day will make.

Note the freedom from gassy, sour stomach. From constipation—the almost clocklike regularity of your bowels.

Mark the relief from mental inertia, from the systemic poisons. See what a world of difference it will make in your general health and feeling.

MR. J. M. BEARDSLEE'S WAS ONE OF THE WORST CASES THAT EVER CAME INTO MY OFFICE. TODAY HE IS SOUND AND WELL. SENT HIS COUSIN, MR. GUPTON, AND BROTHER, MR. BEARDSLEE, OF MORLEY, MO., TO ME.

Steelville, Mo., Dec. 27, 1924.

Dr. C. Matthew Coe, 501 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Dr. Coe—I came to you suffering from a complicated case of piles. You treated and cured me sound as a dollar. My case was of ten years' standing, and I can truthfully recommend your treatment to anyone suffering from this awful disease. My advice to anyone is not to put off being cured. You may refer anyone to me.

With many thanks and kindest regards, I am, yours truly,

WALTER WAELTZ OF LENZBURG, ILL., CAME—WAS CURED—THEN HENRY WAELTZ OF LENZBURG, ILL., CAME—WAS CURED—THEN J. C. WAELTZ OF BELLEVILLE, ILL., CAME—WAS CURED. IT OFTEN HAPPENS THAT SEVERAL MEMBERS OF THE SAME FAMILY COME TO ME.

Lenzburg, Ill., Nov. 13, 1923.

Dr. C. Mathew Coe, 501 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Dr. Coe—You cured me of a very bad case of Piles, of four years' standing. I suffered terribly, and could not work with any comfort. I went to my local doctor, but got only temporary relief. So I decided to go to you, which I did on Sept. 21, 1923.

I worked all the time I was under treatment. I visited you at your office and was treated by you just seven times. Dr. Coe, I can honestly say that I suffered much less from your treatments than I did from the affliction before I went to you. Your cure certainly is mild and easy on your patients. Your charges are reasonable, and you are kind with your patients.

I sincerely recommend you and your treatment to any and all who are troubled with Piles. Your friend and former patient,

Walter Waeltz

MR. G. W. ROWLAND HAD A CASE OF PILES OF 15 YEARS' STANDING—HAD SUFFERED DAY AND NIGHT—DOCTORED WITH ALL KINDS OF REMEDIES—GOT NO BETTER. OCT. 15, 1924, MR. ROWLAND BROUGHT HIS SON, WALLACE, WHO LIVES AT VERSAILLES, KY., AND I CURED HIM.

Dupo, Ill., Nov. 12, 1923.

Dr. C. Matthew Coe, 501 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

My dear Dr. Coe—On Sept. 10th I went to you afflicted with a very bad case of external Piles and Tabs, with which I had been troubled for 15 years. During practically all of this time I suffered pain, almost day and night. I doctored with all kinds of advertised home treatment remedies, such as salves, lotions, etc., without receiving one bit of benefit.

I certainly regret that I did not know about your treatment many years ago.

With all my heart I recommend anyone who is troubled with piles or any rectal trouble to go to you and get cured, and not prolong their suffering. I am, yours truly,

G. W. Rowland

MR. GEO. F. TOUSSAINT AFFLICTED OVER 8 YEARS—TODAY IS PERFECTLY WELL. MR. TOUSSAINT IS A COAL MINER, WORKING IN THE MINES AT COLLINSVILLE, ILL.

Caseyville, Ill., Sept. 22, 1923.

Dr. C. Matthew Coe, 501 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

My dear Doctor—I was suffering with a bad case of Piles that I had been afflicted with for over eight years. The Piles kept growing worse all the time, although I used all kinds of salves, lotions and home remedies, but got worse. I visited you at your offices about eight times for treatments. Today I am perfectly well and feel just as fine as I did before the Piles came on me.

I am a miner, working in the mines at Collinsville.

Dr. Coe, I greatly appreciate your kindness and recommend any who are afflicted.

Dr. C. Matthew Coe, St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Doctor—Inclosed please find check for $50 as balance for treatment.

I am very grateful to you for having me cured in such an easy way, having at no time suffered any pain.

My visits to your office were no more unpleasant to me than those to the barber shop. Yours truly,

Business, Household Duties and Pleasure Are Sacrificed by Those Who Are Afflicted With Piles, Fistula, Fissure or Any Similar Disease.

There is nothing that so completely unfits a man for business, a woman for looking after her household and social duties, and for the usual pleasures of everyday life, as these annoying diseases. There is no cure as safe, sound and reliable, and yet so very simple, and almost painless, as mine. This is proved by the thousands whom I have cured during my 29 years' practice as a specialist in the treatment and cure of Rectal Diseases. Hundreds and hundreds freely testify through the press, etc., to my marvelous success, solely because they desire to do a kindness for others who are afflicted as they were and who are seeking a cure and relief through the use of various kinds of so-called Pile cures, or their family physician. Being cured, they realize how much it would have been to their advantage had they come long before they did, because they were soon cured, although some of them had suffered for as long as thirty and forty odd years, during which time they had constantly suffered, and spent many times as much money as it would have cost them had they come to me and been cured years before they did. Think of the suffering they would have spared themselves, the business and pleasure advantages they would have enjoyed.

No man or woman can afford to go on suffering with Piles, or any similar disease, when a guaranteed cure, backed up by the recommendations that my treatment has, is in such easy reach.

INVESTIGATE, THEN ACT.

Don't take my statements alone in this matter, but investigate my work by inquiring of my former patients, and learning from them whether or not my statements are based on actual and substantial results. If they say I do not accomplish what I claim, don't come to me. If they say I do, it will pay you to do as they did—come and be cured.

My free book contains much information of great value to the afflicted. I will be pleased to send it to you upon request.

PEOPLE OUT OF THE CITY.

Don't deceive yourself in the belief that you cannot afford to come to my office and be cured. All I say in this advertisement applies to any and all who are afflicted, regardless of where you live. Write to as many as you like of my former patients who come from the country—they will tell you whether or not it will pay you to come and see me.

SPECIAL TO AFFLICTED WOMEN.

Women who are afflicted with Piles and other diseases of the rectum should not permit false modesty to stand between them and a cure. A cure means health, comfort and happiness. I do not use the names of my lady patients in the press at any time, or under any circumstances, although I am frequently asked by women who come to me why I do not use them for the benefit of other suffering women; therefore, I urge upon you the importance of being cured and not let anything stand in the way of your coming to me.

I make examination and give free consultation at my office or by mail. It will pay you to write to me. DR. C. MATTHEW COE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Oil sha held the center of the stage ag the early trading this morni while the rails came to the fr the second and final hour.

The advance of 25 cents a ba Pennsylvania crude oil led rther heavy buying, in the cou which new records were ma r the season. NEW YORK, Jan. 31. — The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"With wheat crossing the $2 mark, the other speculative markets have regained their balance after recent reactions. There has been little tendency for the general level of stocks to break through to new highs; on the other hand, there has been little real weakness. Oils have been stimulated by favorable developments in that field, but the market as a whole plainly has displayed a waiting attitude. The continuance of cheap money limits the tendency to take profits, but the inconclusive tenor of business news and reflection on the robust character of the previous advance restrains public enthusiasm for purchases at the present level. The market is waiting; and is waiting to see whether, as the new year develops, the money and investment situation is to change and whether the autumn revival in industry is to be carried through without interruption.

Little Change in Money.

"The latest bank statements indicate that the usual January contraction in credit demands has about passed. It has left the money market in general little changed and has brought call money back to something like an equilibrium at 3½ per cent. There was no immediate prospects of much further change in the commercial demand for funds. What might become more of a factor is the gold export movement. Something like $160,000,000 worth of the metal has been exported since the beginning of December. Further extensions of credit to Europe by American banks might easily form the basis for a continuation of the export movement. So far the exports have been offset, as far as the reserves of the Federal reserve banks are concerned, by the return of the currency that was called out by holiday trade. A sufficient volume of gold certificates has been drained out of circulation to make up for the loss of metal. This sort of thing can be continued if the Federal reserve banks desire. Nevertheless, as we come into the spring, expanding trade, coupled with a continued gold export movement, should make the market for short term funds moderately higher.

"That the steel industry will have a good first quarter appears certain. The Steel Corporation was able to show earnings of $1.56 a share during the last quarter on operations that averaged about 90 per cent of capacity. Since then the prices charged on deliveries have risen appreciably and operations have expanded to about 9? per cent of capacity. Sufficient orders are booked to assure a high rate of output during February and March. What will happen during the second quarter remains to be seen. The industry as a whole is now working at 85 per cent of capacity or better. This means that a great deal of steel is being delivered to consumers. There is some question as to whether this rate of production can be improved on, or, in fact, maintained for long without weakening the market. On the other hand, prices are firm and the manufacturers are distinctly unwilling to give way in the matter of prices. To do so would be to return to a distinctly unsatisfactory profit basis. The upshot of the matter seems to be that we shall simply have to wait and see. It is uncertainties of this kind, incidentally, that are contributing to the current hesitation in the securities markets.

Life in Oil Market.

"The decline in the Wortham pool, which has cut production there by more than a half, has put new life into the oil market. Bids for crude are being advanced rapidly and gasoline quotations are being marked up in proportion. The industry is indulging in one of its characteristic bursts of enthusiasm. Beyond question the situation at Wortham has greatly strengthened the situation. It also must be admitted that stocks of crude oil have been drawn on materially during the last few months, which is something unusual in the industry. It is greatly to be hoped, from every standpoint, that those who control the destinies of the industry will not lose their heads and bring on another flood of overproduction."

"Strength in stocks was well maintained in the short session and trading activity substantially increased, the turnover being around 1,000,000 shares. As on the previous day activity was given over largely to the oil shares and the 'merger' rails, although the main body of stocks was fractionally higher. Nevertheless, a number of industrial specialties failed to follow the general trend and kept the market from becoming a one-sided affair. The usual week-end profit-taking was present, but its absorption was accomplished without weakening the tone, and most groups closed with advances of a fraction to as much as 2 points well in the majority. Bonds also were much more active and several new high levels were reached by speculative railroad obligations.

Exchanges Improve.

"Trading in the foreign exchanges continued quiet. The tone, however, improved and the majority of quotations were at the best levels of the week. Sterling at $4.79¾ was ⅛ of a cent higher and French francs advanced a point to 5.42½ cents. Italian lire and Belgian francs were up 1½ and 2 points, respectively.

"The statement of the New York clearing house as of the close of business Jan. 31 showed the following changes: Loans, discounts, investments, decrease $29,515,000; net demand deposits decreased $41,938,000, time deposits decreased $14,130,000; circulation increased $210,000 and excess reserves increased $10,417,760.

"Wheat was more subdued, a chill blanket on outside public enthusiasm having been thrown two days ago by a substantial increase in margin requirements. This is tending to keep out fresh commitments, and at the same time profit-taking is tremendous. Under these circumstances the market is holding remarkably well at present high levels. Cotton rallied moderately after an early slump and at a late price of 23.98 cents May futures were 2 points higher.

COTTON SELLS HIGHER AT CLOSE OF WEEK

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—A slight opening decline was followed by rallies in the cotton market today owning to more favorable reports from the cotton goods markets and claims of a continued firm spot situation in the South. May contracts sold up from 23.93c to 24.15c and closed at 24.10c. The general market closing steady at net advances of 5 to 13 points. There were some overnight selling orders in the market at the start and first prices were 2 to 4 points lower. Liverpool cables were somewhat disappointing on the old crop positions, but early offerings were soon absorbed and after a little irregularity the market improved on covering, trade buying and better commission house demand. Reports that printers had been active buyers of cloths in the market here during the past three days were among the factors on the advance, while there also was a good deal of bullish comment on cable advices that large orders for cotton goods had been placed in the Lancashire mills by Russia. These features evidently had a favorable effect on sentiment. Buying also was encouraged by reiterated reports of a good demand for spot cotton on a very firm basis in the South.

March sold up to 23.82c and July to 24.40c. Making net advances of 16 to 20 points on the old crop months, while new crop positions sold 11 to 13 points net higher. The relatively easy ruling of the new crop positions was attributed to better prospects for unsettled weather with possible showers or rains in the Southwest.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 212,000 bales against 71,000 last year, leading to expectations of heavy exports within the next few days.

News and Comment Wall Street
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Oil shares held the center of the stage again in the early trading this morning, while the rails came to the front in the second and final hour.

The advance of 25 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania crude oil led to further heavy buying, in the course of which new records were made for the season. The trading in Standard Oil of New Jersey and in Cosden, the latter rising over a point, was especially heavy. Maracaibo, which on Thursday had closed at 29, sold above 35, and Pure Oil and several others bettered their previous high figures. Toward the end profit-taking sales were felt to a greater extent.

As the rails started forward under the lead of New York Central part of the active trading element shifted into them out of the oils. New York Central was up over a point and so was Reading. Missouri Pacific preferred was unusually active and strong. Southern Railway common held around top figures, and M. K. & T. common crossed 34 again on a big volume. St. Louis-San Francisco, Kansas City Southern and the Seaboard Air Lines were all in demand.

Some revival of interest appeared in Eastman Kodak. United Fruit made a spectacular jump despite the unfavorable reports for 1924. Du Pont was sold on the $1,000,000 decline in its 1924 earnings.

The market closed strong for most of the oils and for the railway shares, but elsewhere realizing sales were heavy.

The Bond Market.

G. N. adjustments, leaders of the speculative rails, ran up ⅜ of a point to 76 in the first half-hour today, a gain for the week of over 3½ points. The gains in the Hudson and Manhattan issues were not as rapid but both the adjustments and refunding bonds were in vigorous demand. Another favorite, M., K. & T. adjustments, made another new high today, more than 5 points up on the week.

Missouri Pacific issues have all done better this week, the 5s of 1965 being up nearly 3 points. Missouri Pacific's recovery in earnings has been one of the notable features of the railroad year and the preferred stock has been a speculative favorite but the bonds until recently have been comparatively neglected.

Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s crossed 77 today for the first time on this movement.

In the foreign group selected issues were strong but the general average was little changed. Some of the French railway issues recovered today. French 8s were fractionally higher today but the 7s and 7½s were inclined to heaviness.

Taking both speculative and investment issues the average for the entire domestic bond list stands today at the high, not only of 1925, but above the best price of 1924, and of any previous year back to and including 1919.

New offerings this week have been heavy, the total being over $120,000,000 against $117,000,000 in the previous week. The largest individual issue was $25,000,000 Bell Telephone of Canada 5s.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted foreign exchange review, says:

"Apparently an objective point in sterling exchange had been reached when demand crossed $4.80 in the preceding week and this week's dealings were almost wholly of a commercial character, bankers supplying requirements for remittances and accumulating export bills within a narrow range. Absence of the persistent absorption which had been a feature for many months was reflected in a slight lowering of the rates, demand selling down to $4.78¾ against the high of $4.80⅝ in the preceding week. Movements of continental rates were irregular. Early in the week Belgian exchange was in urgent demand, advancing to 5.23⅛c and there was a vigorous demand for a time in Italian exchange, which carried lire checks up to 4.19 against a low of 4.01¼ a little over a week ago. These advances, however, were not maintained, exchange on both countries being in moderate supply later in the week at slightly lower levels.

"Spanish exchange was exceptionally strong all through the week, the pesetas moving up to 14.32 against 14.25 a week ago. Dutch exchange was heavy, probably because of the balance furnished in the continued shipments of gold to the Continent, guilder checks falling 5 points to 40.36, compared with 40.58, the high range since the beginning of the year. There was little change in Scandinavian rates.

"Canadian exchange was in special demand throughout the week and again advanced to parity. Indian exchange was strong for a time, rupee checks selling as high as 36.00, but later reacted to 35.80. Havana exchange was again strong, checks moving up to 100.03. Exchange on Chile was interrupted by the revolution there, but business commenced again on Thursday, when sales were made at 11 against 11.40 on Friday, a week ago.

"Trading in the foreign exchanges Saturday continued quiet. The tone, however, improved and the majority of quotations were at the best levels of the week. Sterling at $4.79⅝ was ⅛ of a cent higher and French francs advanced a point to 5.42½ cents. Italian lire and Belgian francs were up 1½ to 2 points, respectively."

BRITISH FOREIGN TRADE AND GOLD STANDARD DISCUSSED

Special Wireless to the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in financial review today, says:

"Further speeches of the chairmen of the big banks confirm the belief that the general desire in responsible financial circles is to attain the gold standard.

"Both Sir Harry Goschen of the National Provincial Bank and Walter Leaf of the Westminster Bank emphatically state that the improvement in the pound has been attained without handicapping our industries.

"Goschen expressed his agreement with the views of the Cunliffe Committee in 1918. Urging a free gold market as most desirable in every way, removing the uncertainty in trade and forward exchange transactions, but only partially solving the problem of fluctuating exchanges, he concluded by refraining from an expression of opinion as to the date when it would be possible to revert to the gold standard. Without full knowledge of all the circumstances, this may be construed as a gentle hint of a desire for full information on the conditions under which resumption will be made.

Impressed With Tendencies.

"Similarly, Walter Leaf, while hoping that the gold embargo will not be renewed at the end of the year and considering it not improbable that gold would flow back to Europe this year, insisted on the necessity of looking forward to assure ourselves that we will be able to keep gold and maintain the standard. He significantly added, 'No doubt we at present are somewhat dangerously dependent on the current of opinion in the United States. It is necessary that we be assured of their good will in order to maintain as well as to establish the gold standard.' He suggests the possible desirability of a conference of the central banks with a view to co-operate the use of gold reserves, as recommended at the Genoa conference.

"Bankers and the 'city' generally undoubtedly are impressed with present economic tendencies, including the rise in commodity prices and the growing adverse trade balance. The board of trade estimates that the trade balance of 1924 gave a net surplus available for overseas investment of £29,000,000. This compares with £102,000,000 in 1923, with £154,000,000 in 1922 and with £252,000,000 in 1920. Total invisible exports are put at £370,000,000 last year, including £130,000,000 of shipping income, £185,000,000 from overseas investments, £40,000,000 from commissions and £15,000,000 from other services. Foreign capital issues in the London market last year amounted to £134,000,000, hence apparently we overlent £105,000,000 last year.

"The Board of Trade explains last year's heavy lending as possibly representing the funding of previous credits or the creation of new credits for future drawing. Presumably a large amount of new issue money was left on deposit while foreign balances continued to be transferred to London, and sterling balances, previously transferred by nervous holders, came back.

German Competition Prospects.

"Leaf devoted a part of his speech to the prospects of German competition. He expects nothing serious in the two years' recuperation period, even though Germany improved her industrial equipment during the period of mark depreciation. Low German wages are offset largely at the present time by very high charges for liquid capital. It is unlikely that the German laborer will continue to work at present rates, he said, while Germany's raw material position is very different from that of prewar times. Germany now is having to import pig iron and other materials, hence it will be a long time before Germany can export heavily. But if important reparation payments ultimately are made they can only be made through exports forced upon the world at large.

"Leaf expressed high hopes that an effectual concord will be established at the next congress of the International Chamber of Commerce, preparatory to a solution of the problem of the receipt of reparation payments."

CHARLES RIPPIN TO ASSUME SECRETARIAL DUTIES MONDAY

Traffic Commissioner of Merchants' Exchange Becomes Secretary and Traffic Commissioner.

Charles Rippin, traffic commissioner for the Merchants Exchange, who has been appointed secretary and traffic commissioner, will assume his new duties Monday. He succeeds Eugene Smith as secretary, the latter having asked to be relieved of the secretarial duties on account of his health. Smith will become building manager. E. P. Costello will be made assistant traffic commissioner.

Rippin, prior to his connection with the exchange in 1912, was general agent of the Missouri Pacific Railroad at St. Louis and Memphis, Tenn., and was for many years connected with the Mobile & Ohio Railroad and Seaboard Air Line. He has also served as president of the National Industrial Traffic League for the past two years and is at the present time chairman of the Traffic Committee of the Mississippi Valley Association.

CATTLE AND HOGS HIGHER FOR WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.
Cattle and Calves	15,205	19,162	17,141
Hogs	84,558	74,263	104,447
Sheep	6,136	5,640	2,912
Horses and Mules	1,652	2,485	1,880
Totals	107,552	101,550	126,381

Advance in cattle and hog prices featured the week's trade at the St. Louis National Stock Yards. Sheep and lambs averaged about steady for the period and horses and mules again reflected a strong undertone. Receipts were slightly below normal in most departments, the combined offering amounting to 107,552 head. The corresponding week a year ago had a run of 126,381 head. The offering of cattle and calves at 15,206 head was nearly 4000 under the previous week's supply. The first half of the week witnessed active selling and rising prices, although the last half of the period encountered a slackened demand and a reactionary price movement in some departments. The close of the week found beef steers 25c to 50c higher for the six-day period, whereas they were up as much as 50c to 75c in one stage of the trade. Light steers and heifers, beef cows and stocker and feeder cattle finished about 25c to 50c higher, canner and cutter cows strong to 15c higher and bulls 25c lower. The bulk of steers suitable for killers brought $7 to $9 per cwt., and best available consignments made $9.75, $9.90, $10, $10.50 and $11 per cwt., the latter price representing the top. A number of plain, southern steers registered in the $6 column or under. Light steers and heifers sold largely in a spread of $5.50 to $8.25, while some of the best reached $9.50 and $10. The majority of beef cows passed the scales at $4.25 to $5.50 and tops reached $7. Cutter cows were available at $2.75 to $3.50 and canners at $2 to $2.50. Bologna bulls of the better kind bulked at $4 to $4.50 late in the week, followed by thin, light kinds in the $3 column. Beef bulls with weight centered around the $5 mark. The relatively light run of stocker and feeder steers enjoyed a brisk demand and sellers were able to annex 25c to 50c to most of the offering. The better grades of steers commanded $6 to $7, followed by others around $5, $4 and down to $3.25 for a common grade. Veal calves, in light supply and active demand, advanced $2 for the week, top advancing from a $13 top to $15 at the close. Southern canner yearlings were scarce and showed a good degree of strength, commanding a range of $2.75 to $4.

Fair Run of Hogs.

Fair volume in the matter of receipts was registered in the hog trade the past week, offerings for the six-day period totaling 84,558 head, compared with a run of 74,263 for the previous week and 104,448 for the corresponding week a year ago. There was a right fair showing of quality included among these arrivals, although pigs and lights also continued to arrive in generous proportions. Prices under these increased receipts and a very slack demand from the order buying trade suffered a setback during the early sessions of the week, this weakness, however, being recovered by the closing rounds. The week opened with a top of $11 and by the Wednesday session had dropped to $10.95 on choice heavy butchers. From then until the week's close, stimulated by lighter runs and increased orders the market took an upward trend and closed strong to 15c above the previous week's windup. Best heavy hogs on the close sold upward to $11.30, this being the highest top registered at this market the current year and the highest since Oct. 15, 1922. With offerings averaging from 190 pounds and over quotable in a spread of $11 to $11.25 this class shows a gain of 25c over the previous week. The lighter averages, too, are higher, advances in this case much greater than on the weightier offerings. Sales of the weights from 160 to 180 pounds at $10.65@11 on the close showed a gain of 25c over the previous week, this class in active demand during the final sessions. The last of the week witnessed very uneven values in the pig department, all classes ranging sharply higher. The strong weight kinds from 130 to 150 pounds in weight closed quotable at $9.75 to $10.50, these sales a gain of 50 to 75c. Medium weight kinds from 110 to 130 pounds average at $8.75 to $9.75 are 75c higher mostly and the light pigs and peewees from 110 pounds and under closed fully 75c higher at $8 to $8.75 largely. Packer sows featured an advance of 25c with sales of this class at $10 largely during the last of the week. Stags remained generally steady with the big end of the sales at $7.50 to $8. Closing quotations on the different classes of hogs are as follows: Best butcher hogs from 190 pounds and up at $11 to $11.30, light hogs and shippers from 160 to 180 pounds at $10.65 to $11. Strong weight pigs from 130 to 150 pound average at $9.75 to $10.50; medium weight kinds from 110 to 130 pounds average at $8.75 to $9.75 and lighter pigs and peewees from 110 pounds and down at $8 to $8.75, some of the trashy kinds selling at lower figures. Packer sows at $9.85 to $10 and stags at $7.50 to $8.50.

Sheep Market Irregular.

One feature of the sheep and lamb trade the past week was the large number of arrivals included on through and direct billing. Total receipts for the six-day period aggregated 6136 head, compared with a run of 5640 for the previous week. During the corresponding period a year ago the offering for six days aggregated 2912 head, a modest supply. Quality was only fair, taking the entire run into consideration, a generous proportion of the arrivals on the native order. During the initial sessions of the week the lamb trade showed a decidedly weaker trend, with prices dropping 25c to 50c by Wenesday. This loss, however, was regained during the following sessions and again lost by the week's closing session. Top for the week stopped at $18.25, paid towards the close. Good to choice lambs finished the week at barely steady values, this class quotable in a spread of $17.50 to $18.50. Medium to good kinds are quotable at $16.50 to $17.50, these figures no better than steady. Plain to medium offerings range in price from $14.50 to $16.50, depending of course on the weight and quality displayed by the individuals. Cull lambs show no radical change for the week, buyers taking the big end of this class in a spread of $13 to $13.50, with a spread of $12 to $14 catching practically all of the offerings. Skip lambs range downward from $8. There was a very modest supply of the aged classes included among last week's arrivals, prices continuing on a steady basis throughout the period. A few of the best light ewes sold at $10.25 to $10.50, good to choice kinds quotable in a spread of $9.75 to $10.75. Medium and heavy kinds sold in a range of $8.75 to $9.75 mostly, some of the trashy kinds at lower figures. Choppers and bucks are quotable at $5 to $6, with canners clearing at $3 to $4, according to weight and quality.

Weekly Metal Review

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The steel market has continued very firm during the past week with advances in some descriptions. Railroads and automobile manufacturers have been good buyers and, despite the high rate of production, bookings by Steel Corporation during January are expected to show fair gains. Foreign competition at the seaboard is becoming rather more noticeable.

Pig iron was quiet and the undertone of the market was easier owing to declines in old metal and large offers from abroad.

No improvement has been reported in the demand for copper. Domestic consumers appear to have covered their requirements for the next 30 or 60 days and are showing little immediate interest in the market. Meanwhile sales by second hands appear to be supplying the demand abroad and resales have been reported in Germany at prices equivalent to about 14.55 for electrolytic at New York. The lull in demand, however, does not appear to have weakened the price views of producers and no selling pressure has developed with sellers generally unwilling to consider anything below 14⅞ for electric delivered.

Tin was slightly easier following the decline in London and in other metals. Consumers were fair buyers at inside prices, but offers were in excess of demand.

Lead was cut $5 a ton, being brought about largely by easier market abroad.

The domestic markets for zinc were easier as a result of the markets abroad. The demand was not active although consumption was well maintained.

The demand for antimony was quiet, but spot prices were firm, owing to delayed arrivals of several vessels from the Far East.

MAY WHEAT 7 CENTS HIGHER FOR WEEK ON CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Chicago market today was as choppy as it has been most of the week. There was wheat for sale on the bulges, but any time professionals tried short selling they paid dearly for their daring. The same can be said about coarse grains, although both corn and oats showed a better tone than wheat. Provisions showed little change.

Wheat was on tap on rallies that carried prices near the closing level of last night, but on any break the offerings seemed to disappear as if by magic. A little profit taking at the start caused prices to decline. Around $2.02 for May resting orders to buy seemed without limit until a bear raid caused by a sharp break in Winnipeg caused the market to go through that level. But when the bears tried to get the wheat back offerings were tight and a rally of 2c was chalked up at once. The early high point brought out increased offerings and the close was ⅜ to 1¼c lower. Gains for the week, however, were 7⅛c for May, while the late months were unchanged. Milling demand for wheat remains quiet, although local mills report a slight improvement in the flour trade but say buyers are by no means stampeded into taking more flour than for present needs. Export trade was quiet today. Seaboard reported sales of only 200,000 bushels.

Speculative trade again showed a tendency to shift into corn and trading was more active with price trend firm. At the close today gains of ¼ to ½c were registered and net advances for the week were 2⅝ to 3⅛c. Buying is based on the theory that corn is too cheap compared with wheat and also because of the small crop. Cash corn demand was quiet, sales of 28,000 bu. reported for shipment. Cash corn basis was ¼c lower to 2c higher. The country is bullish on corn, believing that this market will follow the example of wheat and farmers have stopped hauling their corn to town.

Oats were ⅜c higher to ⅛c lower than last night and 1¾ to 2⅜c higher than Saturday. The cheap price of oats in comparison with other grains has attracted much speculation to this pit. There is no reason to feel that the market will go much higher other than by speculative buying power. Stocks at all markets are excessive and the high prices further curtail demand.

Provisions were firmer with corn today. Lard was unchanged to 5c higher and bellies 20 to 50c higher. For the week lard was 10 to 15c lower, ribs 22½ to 27½c lower and bellies 15 to 45c higher.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Continued active speculative demand forced wheat futures prices to new high levels during the week ending Jan. 31, but the demand for cash grain was less active and cash prices at most markets lagged behind futures, states the United States Department of Agriculture, in its weekly grain market review. Rye followed wheat into new high levels while barley and flax also made good gains. Corn and oats future prices advanced slightly but the demand for cash grain was slow and sales were at rather wide discounts under the future prices. Advances in wheat prices in foreign markets contributed to the strength in the wheat future markets in the United States but the active speculative demand was the dominant factor. Practically the only element of strength in the wheat market is the possibility that the present world's supply of wheat is not sufficient for the consuming needs at the present price level. Statistics, however, do not indicate the probability of any serious shortage until the new crop is available in the United States. World's stocks in commercial channels are large and the movement from the Southern hemisphere is of good volume. Australian shipments for the week were around 5,000,000 bushels, which is unusually large for that country.

Reports from India show an increase of 5 per cent in the wheat acreage of that country, making the increase in the United States, India and nine European countries about 3,750,000 acres over plantings in the same countries last year. Cash wheat prices advanced because of the strength in futures but the demand was less active at the higher prices and the bulk of the sales was at a lower premium than last week. No. 1 dark Northern at Minneapolis sold at 2 cents under to 38c over the May future price, but the bulk of the sales was at 2 cents under to 28c over. The demand for durum wheat was also less active because of a falling off in the milling demand. Offerings were larger, and premiums declined. No. 1 amber sold at Minneapolis at 5c under to 23c over the Duluth May, which closed on Friday at $1.99¼. Premiums for hard winter wheat were also reduced and the domestic milling demand fell off materially with the advance in prices. Receipts were somewhat larger at Kansas City but movement was not heavy. The 12 per cent protein hard winter sold in that market at 6c to 7c over the May with 12½ per cent protein at 9c over, and 13 per cent protein at 11c to 12c over. The export demand at the gulf was active for wheat for February and March loading at prices around 9c over the Chicago May future price f. o. b. vessel at the gulf. Prices for soft winter wheat were very little changed during the week. The small flour demand reduced the milling demand for this wheat. No. 2 red winter was quoted Jan. 30 at St. Louis at $2.15 to $2.20; Chicago $2.17; Cincinnati $2.19 to $2.20; Toledo $2.17.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 31.—Wheat prices closed lower at the final session of the week on the local market. Anticipated heavy world shipment showing for the week with large amounts on passage were factors in the market as it adjusted itself for over the holiday. Corn closed a shade lower.

In the local cash grain market soft wheat was 1c lower. Demand was slow. Hard was 1c to 2c lower. There was only a partial clearance of receipts. Corn was 1c to 2c lower. Demand was fair. Oats were ½c up to ½c lower. Demand was fair.

Wheat futures ruled fractionally lower in the early trade. Liverpool wheat prices were down, the close being ¼d to ⅝d lower, the more distant delivery showing the widest range. Corn futures here opened lower and then recovered, selling above the previous close.

May wheat opened at $2.02, July wheat $1.67¾. May corn $1.34⅛@1.34½ and July corn $1.37½.

The three Northwestern markets combushels of No. 1 red winter wheat, 399,- with 592 a week ago and 418 last year, Minneapolis receiving 323 cars, Duluth 86 and Winnipeg 289.

Local wheat receipts, which were 111,800 bushels, compared with 80,600 a week ago and 92,300 last year, included 30 cars local and 56 through. Corn receipts, which were 89,600 bushels, compared with 172,200 a week ago and 249,200 last year, included 59 cars local and 5 through. Oats receipts, which were 172,000 bushels, compared with 154,000 a week ago and 114,000 last year, included 63 cars local and 23 through. Hay receipts were 29 cars local and 21 through.

GREATEST PROOF OF VALUE

Gains in Motor Car Sales During 1924, in St. Louis and Detroit

HUDSON-ESSEX

Outsells All Rivals

For the entire year of 1924, HUDSON-ESSEX sales in Detroit, the motor-wise automobile city, and in Wayne County, Michigan, outnumbered every other make, with the exception of the two Lowest Priced Four Cylinder Cars. For the last four months of 1924 Hudson-Essex sales outnumbered all except the Lowest priced Four in the world. (Official Registration)

This Is How Hudson-Essex Outsold All Rivals In the Auto City:

574 Sales ahead of the Second Place car—a Six.
1088 Sales ahead of the Third Place car—a Four.
1119 Sales ahead of the Fourth Place car—a Six.
1357 Sales ahead of the Fifth Place combination—a Four and a Six.
2322 Sales ahead of the Sixth Place combination—Fours and Sixes.

In ST. LOUIS

Hudson-Essex Leads All Popular Makes in Gains

For the entire year of 1924, HUDSON-ESSEX Sales in St. Louis and St. Louis County have been the automotive sensation.

Official registration figures show that—

In actual numerical gain in sales HUDSON-ESSEX have surpassed every other make — without a single exception.

In percentage of gain, the HUDSON-ESSEX increase of 26 per cent leads every other car that is a prominent factor in the market.

The HUDSON-ESSEX percentage of gain is greater than that of any other make among the leading fifteen in sales and these fifteen sold 87.8 per cent of all cars sold in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

In the $1000 class the ESSEX percentage of sales gain, 50 per cent, was greater than that of any other make. This is phenomenal in view of the fact that the aggregate result in sales in this class was a loss of 7.2 per cent.

In the medium-priced class, HUDSON made a gain in spite of the fact that the class showed an average loss of 4.7 per cent in sales.

HUDSON-ESSEX combined advanced two positions in sales rank; HUDSON advanced four positions and ESSEX advanced nine positions.

This is the Greatest Proof of Value, for as was 1924 in Detroit and St. Louis, so was 1924 in every big metropolitan center. HUDSON-ESSEX everywhere proved the 1924 sales sensation.

FREIGHT AND TAX EXTRA

The greatest of all Hudson-Essex values is responsible for the greatest of all Hudson-Essex years. All rivals are distanced in actual proof of value—which is SALES.

And the Coach is the largest selling 6-cylinder closed car in the world—not simply because it provides "Closed Car Comforts at Open Car Cost," but because it gives chassis value and performance not equaled within hundreds of dollars of the price.

Their Greatest Values Cannot Be Copied

The Super-Six Principle Is Patented

As the Coach Body changed the whole trend to closed cars, so the patented Super-Six principle and other advantages exclusive to the Hudson and Essex Chassis, likewise forecast the mechanical design of the future.

Essex provides stability without unnecessary weight. It has economy without sacrifice of performance.

It is low priced without disappointment in looks or reliability.

It is more than up to date in design. It is in advance of any car with which its price can be compared.

It is built on the Super-Six principle, by Hudson workmen in the Hudson shops.

In quality Hudson and Essex are alike. The patents which make the Super-Six the most enduring, smoothest motor, and give it all advantages sought in eight cylinders, prevent any from copying its chassis as has been so generally done in copying the Coach body.

Served by 10 Metropolitan dealers in co-operation with one of the largest distributors in the United States, the best equipped retail sales and service organization in St. Louis, represents another advantage of genuine value in the ownership of Hudson-Essex cars. The physical equipment to give owners the best service possible is supplemented by a progressive policy which places satisfied ownership ahead of every other consideration.

French Influence in Morocco Merely a Planting of Ideas Of West, John W. Davis Finds Marechal Lyautey, in Establishing New Schools, Has Just Set Them Down Beside Native Institutions for Selected Students.

By Rowland Thomas,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.

"CONSIDER the Moroccan," remarked Mr. Davis. "He votes not. Neither does he pay income taxes. Yet was ever Solomon, in all his glory, equally master of his own soul?"

The recent candidate for the presidency of these United States was speaking for publication only because courtesy demanded such speech. From the tour of foreign lands in which he sought recreation and reorientation last fall he had returned emotionally sound Any urge which makes people grant newspaper interviews had more than been satisfied by the personal exploitation during the presidential campaign. The oracular complex, which is the other common drawback of the human gift of speech, was equally dormant.

"I MUST refuse," he began deprecatingly, "to talk of politics. And I should decline, with all due thanks, the opportunity to talk about anything, particularly as I do not feel I have anything opportune to talk of. But if I were to talk, it would be about Morocco. There is the most interesting thing, to me, of all I saw while abroad."

The picturesqueness of it had appealed enormously to him, he indicated. The wooden ploughs, the arts and handicrafts guarded and handed down jealously from prehistorical days when it was a real personal distinction to be able to write beautiful, flowing Arabic, or forge a sword blade, or make a good pair of shoes, the streets still segregated to the use of silversmiths, goldsmiths, blacksmiths or perfumers, these things had waked and satisfied a yearning for color—a suddenly keen sense of the rich variegated pattern into which mankind contrives to weave the web and woof of its basically uniform existence.

Atmosphere of Dark Ages.

And the thought of the Moorish renaissance—or Moorish interregnum—the regency of Othello's lean minded, eager minded lot—had given piquant background. There in Morocco he found himself among the last survivors of the men and race who had kept the fire and light of civilization glowing through the dark ages. But the real thrill of his Moroccan journey had come when he met the Frenchman who must rank among the handful of truly great colonial administrators developed by the west since the Roman days—chief among the others being Lord Cromer of Egypt, Sir Rajah Brooke of Sarawak, and our own Frank Carpenter, who wrought so brilliantly, soundly and obscurely in the jungles of the Philippines.

And the real thrill of Marechal Lyautey, who, with infinite wisdom and patience has been building up the French empire in Africa for a fifth of a century, was found in his living quarters.

"As one of his aides led me through his house," said Davis, "we entered a room where filing cases and two big flat-topped desks heaped with papers were the conspicuous furniture. They told that it was the Marechal's bedroom. But I had to look a second time before, tucked away in a corner, I saw the modest cot of an officer on field service. Lyautey has a habit of napping and working indiscriminately. Three o'clock of morning or afternoon is all the same to him. He lives his work instead of living with it or for it merely."

Marechal Lyautey, sturdy old warrior, was particularly keen to show the American visitor the carefully limited system of public schools and institutions of learning which are his most cherished creation in the land of the Moors. Davis did not expect to be interested by them. But his more fundamental curiosities were deeply pricked by what he saw.

The French Schools.

The two chief official stations are at Fez and Rabat. They were designed to supplement instead of supplant the Moslem "common schools" of the country where a formal empty sort of literacy is acquired through parrot-like repetitions and copyings of the Koran. Attendance at the French schools is permissive instead of compulsory, and only the choicer spirits among the younger generation are selected to attend them. For Marechal Lyautey has never been among those who believe that what is wholesome pabulum for western minds is necessarily just as good for Orientals.

"I did not learn," Davis confessed, "what principle of selection is followed. Nor can I foretell whether the introduction of western educational material, methods and ideals will result in the same outcropping of half-baked intellectuals which has sprouted in some other countries. But I should think it would take longer to disturb Egypt, India, China or Japan. The Berbers and tribesmen are pretty deeply rooted in the Islamic outlook on the world. They are contrary to common impression, decidedly sturdy individuals, and if the French train them in western ways the Moor is likely, sooner or later, to take charge of his own country."

Asked a stock question—"What was the strangest thing you noted in Morocco?" Davis pointed out that the question was meaningless unless circumstantial.

"In a foreign land," he observed, "one goes through three distinct stages of impression. First comes the feeling of how different it all is from home. Next, on closer acquaintance, comes the sense of how like it is after all. Life everywhere is pretty much the same old thing. And finally, as one becomes seasoned and oriented, one runs against the fundamental differences which set races and cults apart."

"Party Labels Mean Little."

"As, for instance," suggested the interviewer, "the Republican and Democratic cults of our own country are set apart?"

"Somewhat in the same way," Davis agreed, "though there are a great many shades of meaning in both terms. The party labels do not accurately place many of their adherents, any more than does the description of them as conservatives and radicals. A man may be intensely conservative in his outlook on one question and very radical in his view of another. I think possibly the broadest general division is between authoritarianism and libertarianism. The publican is the sort of man who naturally drifts toward authority—likes to be disciplined and regulated—wants to have somebody else do his thinking for him. The natural autocrat wants to do his own thinking, a trait that makes the party troops very difficult to handle as a unit because of the multitude of captains and comparative scarcity of privates.

"But," he added with some abruptness, "I do not want to talk about current political developments and problems in the United States. The longer I live the less respect I have for ill-considered words. So much is said which darkens knowledge that a man of ordinary feeling is a bit shy about opening his mouth unnecessarily. Let's get back to Morocco."

Saving All That Is Morocco.

The entire French policy there, he thought, has been one of saving

DEBTORS' LAW ENFORCED IN RHODE ISLAND MAKES STATE BRUTAL COLLECTING AGENCY

Mothers and Fathers Are Torn From Families

Women Are Insulted, While Many Installment Houses Grow Rich—Victims Thrown Into Prison Without Even a Hearing in Court.

Barbarous Statute, Long Since Abandoned by the Civilized World, Proves Bonanza of Shyster Lawyers of Little Commonwealth.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 31.

THE attention of the citizens of this tiny State, diverted by the overwhelming triumph of the Republicans from the two-year Democratic filibuster and the flight of the Republican Senators, has been turned upon the Poor Debtors' law.

This law, a curious relic of barbarism, remains in operation in conservative Rhode Island half a century after its abandonment as inhuman in almost every other part of the civilized world. Only a few persons here were even conscious of its existence until recently. But the law has been enforced year after year, causing an extent of misery and injustice which is only now becoming apparent.

The law permits the arrest and clapping into jail, without even the formality of a court hearing, of men, or women, who have signed agreements to pay which they are unable or unwilling to fulfill. The victims have been mostly young men and girls, of almost no means, who have failed to complete installment payments promptly on furniture, jewelry or clothing.

The law gives incredible power to installment houses over the unfortunates whose poverty forces them to buy almost every necessity by small payments. Writs of arrest under the debtors' law may be purchased by installment houses in wholesale lots from the clerks of district courts. These writs bear the rubber stamp signatures of the clerks or Judges. All that remains to be done is the insertion by the installment houses or other creditors of the names of the debtors to be arrested.

Imprisonment Done Quietly.

Filled in by the installment house manager, agent or attorney, the arrest warrant may be served by a Constable without further ado. The debtor may avoid arrest only by paying the bill to the Constable. Upon arrest the debtor is taken directly to the city jail, a few miles from here and locked up. He never gets a court hearing. He may be kept there as long as his creditor pays his board bill of $4 a week to the State, or until he pays the debt, or until he has served six months when he is automatically released. Six months is the limit of debt imprisonment.

So quietly may this imprisonment be done that often the closest relatives and friends of the victim do not know what has happened to him until he comes out of jail. And when he is released after six months he finds he not only still owes the debt that sent him to jail, but also he must pay to his creditor the jail board bill of $4 a week, interest on the debt, attorney's fees and other costs.

A recent instance of the manner in which this law functions has only just become known. A young girl, working for an infinitesimal salary, bought a fur coat from an installment clothing firm for $75. She paid $25 down and $10 a month. By the time her second installment came due all of the fur came out of the coat, leaving her with only a limp rag of cheap leather. She went to the clothing firm and asked for a new coat. She was refused. She was told, furthermore, that she must pay the balance of the installments. Angry, she said she would not pay. She was shown the "cling fast" contract she had signed but never read. It made the coat the property of the clothing firm until the final installment was paid. She was arrested and tossed into jail without so much as a hearing.

For seven weeks she remained in the jail, in daily contact with the worst of the city's criminal slum, while her family had no idea how she had disappeared.

Jailed 8 Weeks for $10.

Finally she got word of her predicament out to her friends and family. They brought the case to the attention of a local Judge. He was indignant and ordered the girl released. He brought her before him. He had the fur coat appraised by experts. They set its originall value at only $15. The Judge ordered the girl to sue the installment firm for false arrest.

In much the same manner, a painter, who owed a balance of $10 on a $40 suit of clothes, was kept in jail almost eight weeks. He got out then only by paying the $10 balance, interest on it, attorney's fees, collectors' fees and constables' fees and, the last straw, the $32 his creditor had paid as his board bill to keep him in jail for eight weeks.

These are not isolated cases. During the last year 75 men and five women were imprisoned in the same way. During the last seven years 604 men and 50 women have been put in jail for debts.

The power this has given installment houses has led them to grow like a fungi over Rhode Island. It has led many of them to place huge prices on all their goods. There is a large substratum of poverty in this State, a tragic contrast to the great wealth which is visible on every side. Poor mill workers, with little more than the clothes on their backs, are dependent upon the installment houses for almost all their purchases. They have signed the all-inclusive contracts which deliver them, body and soul, to the shady merchants of this city.

$10,000 Fee for Lawyer.

One installment house pays a lawyer a yearly retaining fee of $10,000 for his services in filling out writs of arrest to be served on customers in arrears in their payments. More than 50,000 installment claims were collected in the last 10 years by Rhode Island constables for storekeepers in the State.

The law has done more than deliver the poor into the hands of unscrupulous installment houses. It has made it possible for all manner of injustices, caused by personal spite, revenge, blackmail and a hundred other base human motives. It has been the bonanza of the shyster lawyer.

Lawyers of good reputation hesitate to use the ancient writ of arrest for debts except in cases involving fraud, or when the debtor is known to be about to flee from the State to escape payment. But public opinion, aroused for the first time over this law, appears to be that such advantages as the law may have in such instances are far outweighed by its cruelty in other cases. The law has made of the State of Rhode Island a brutal collecting agency for private concerns.

The operation of the law was practically unknown until the Providence Bulletin, with the Journal, its morning counterpart, the most influential Republican newspaper in the State, began to dig into the flagrant cases. Now ministers and social organizations are demanding that the Republican Legislature, as conservative as the mill owners who support their party, wipe this law out. Many of the most rock-ribbed legislators are expected to fight such an innovation. It was of the injustices of such a law that Charles Dickens, the English novelist, wrote. His exposure of the poor debtors' jails, from one to another of which the genial Mr. Micawber wandered, always hopeful that "something will turn up," led to the abolition of the law in England 55 years ago.

The influence spread over most of the civilized world. Almost all the States in the Union tumbled over each other to rid themselves of debtor laws, except those applying to Rhode Island, tucked in the toe of New England, unheeded. The poor debtors' law remained in active operation here.

Many Ignorant of Rights.

Frequently mothers have been dragged from their homes, leaving children uncared for behind, to be thrown into jail because they owed a balance of a few dollars to installment houses. The police of Providence are asked often by frantic husbands to find their strayed wives, only to discover them locked up in jail for such debts. Young working girls have been approached by creditors with immoral proposals as an alternative for jail on debt. In the County Jail are innumerable men, with dependent wives and children, held for debt. The City of Woonsocket is supporting the family of one such man, while he languishes in the jail for failure to pay the balance of $17.50 he owed a merchant.

Imprisonment for simple debt is supposed not to be allowed in this State. But installment houses accomplish their end by turning contract actions into trover and conversion cases, which amounts to almost the same thing. Few of the victims arrested are acquainted with their legal rights and are too ignorant to appeal to a lawyer for protection.

Men and women are jailed also in Rhode Island in slander, assault, assault and battery, trespass, negligence, seduction, alienation of affections and breach of promise actions. In some civil cases men and women may be imprisoned for life unless they apply for the privilege of taking the poor debtors' oath after serving six months. Most of the persons involved in such cases do not know that they may obtain their freedom at the end of six months by taking the oath.

In alienation of affections cases, as handled by shyster lawyers in Rhode Island, the amount of damages alleged are so heavy that the defendant, unable to give the necessary bail, is thrown in prison to wait indefinitely until the case against him is called in court. All the disgruntled husband, or wife, in this type of case has to do is provide $4 a week to the jailer, in advance, for each week the defendant is imprisoned.

Persons in Rhode Island well-to-do enough to cover claims that might be brought into court are never imprisoned. The attorneys for the complainants proceed against their property or holdings. The men and women imprisoned under the civil laws of the State are those who have no property.

Profit on Legal Blackmail.

Backyard disputes between neighborhood women invariably wind up in the courts here, for one of the principals has the other woman arrested for calling her a liar.

The process of having a man or woman arrested in Rhode Island is simple. All that a man or woman has to do to have his enemy or business or love rival arrested is to trump up a claim, visit a shyster lawyer, with the result that a civil writ of arrest is issued and the person in question is railroaded to prison without any opportunity being given to defend himself in court.

Many lawyers here will issue civil writs of arrest for a fee as low as $1. They never know the circumstances involved, neither do they care.

More than 100 Constables are kept constantly busy in Rhode Island serving processes of this kind. While one man is imprisoned, at least 50 others are legally blackmailed into paying some claim brought against them by a storekeeper or individual citizen. Some of these Constables make as high as $250 a week serving civil writs of arrest.

It will astonish most readers, doubtless, to learn that a condition exists in Rhode Island similar to that in the old days in England when one of the most famous of English debtors' prisons, the old Marshalsea, was a blot on civilization. The Marshalsea stood midway between St. George's Church, Southwark, and London Bridge. Many historical names are connected with it, but none, perhaps, contributed as much to the immortality of its members as did the name of a girl who not only never lived there, but never lived anywhere—"Little Dorrit."

Dickens wrote of the Marshalsea from personal memory. Under the English system of imprisonment for debt, debtors could have their families in, or near, the jail if they wished, could receive visitors all day, buy such comforts as their money permitted and carry on a queer mockery of normal life while restrained from normal liberty.

Description of Marshalsea.

In 1822, Dickens' father was imprisoned in the Marshalsea for a time and the boy Charles lodged in a cheap garret nearby. His mother joined his father in the prison, and every morning when the gates were opened Charles went in and had breakfast with them before going to the blacking factory where he worked. In the evening he went back to the prison for his supper and he spent his evenings in the dreary place until the gates were locked for the night.

That experience is written into "David Copperfield," the "Pickwick Papers" and "Little Dorrit." In "David Copperfield" he transferred the story to the King's Bench Prison; but in "Pickwick" and "Little Dorrit" he described the Marshalsea exactly and gave it its own name.

"It was an oblong pile of barrack building," he wrote, "partitioned into squalid rooms standing back to back, so that there were no back rooms; environed by a narrow paved yard, hemmed in by high walls duly spiked at top. Itself a close and confined prison for debtors, it contained within it a much closer and more confined jail for smugglers. Offenders against the revenue laws, and defaulters to excise or customs, who had incurred fines which they were unable to pay, were supposed to be incarcerated behind an iron-plated door, closing up a second prison, consisting of a strong cell or two and a blind alley some yard and a half wide, which formed the mysterious termination of the very limited skittle ground in which the

The "A to Z" of Smoke Problem And Facts Needed to Solve It

L. H. Egan Outlines Various Phases of Nuisance of Pall to Engineering Societies.

RECENTLY Louis H. Egan, president of Union Electric Light and Power Co. in addressing the Associated Engineering Societies of St. Louis, asserted that little progress toward the solution of the St. Louis smoke problem was being made because of the absence of any accurate analysis which would permit scientific approach to the problem.

He suggested that the Engineering Societies undertake such an analysis. The Joint Council of the Societies subsequently adopted the suggestion.

Egan now has sent to the societies the following communication recommending some phases for investigation:

I NEVER have seen a complete study of where the smoke pall in St. Louis originates, nor an exact, sound statement of how it may be measurably lessened. Furthermore, I am convinced that the public craves an accurate survey of the smoke problem.

In the late fall each year, on the first day that smoke becomes dense, we have complaints from those interested in our civic welfare, an interview with city smoke authorities and a few newspaper editorials. On the second real smoky day the foregoing is repeated. After that we settle down to our regular winter occupation of coughing, sneezing and washing our hands. And if we do move to better things, we grope about in a mass of misinformation.

It seems to me that the first thing to be undertaken in a smoke survey is to determine the amount of coal burned and the amount of smoke produced annually by (1) locomotives, (2) power plants, (3) manufacturing plants, (4) heating plants. This should include a statement of proved remedies for smoke in each group, possible remedies and a statement of results reasonable to expect.

Cost of Heating.

Let us consider for a moment the last group, which includes apartments and residences. In general, the cost of power is a very small part of total costs in industry; the cost of heating large institutions is only a small percentage of the total cost of doing business. Likewise, I venture that fixed annual charges on apartments and homes are many times the cost of heating them. I emphasize this point for two reasons: (1) I believe that the economies of space heating are almost unknown to the average citizen; (2) if we are to improve our condition by the use of different fuels or higher grade fuels, we should know how much it will cost in relation to the total building or household operation.

How vague, then, are some of the discussions which we frequently hear. There is the letter-writer who frequently talks in newspapers about the creation of neighborhood central heating plants. The thought is a pleasing one. Its application is only for the ultra-rich. I have engaged in central steam heating business in this State for almost 15 years, and I have no hesitation in making the foregoing statement. For about two months a year that form of heating would be satisfactory in price. For the other 10 months there would be bitter complaint against the size of bills, with the consequent gradual loss of customers.

Next is a more frequent suggestion—the elimination of smoke by the education of those who tend the fires in residence furnaces. Do we remember that we have a different set of firemen each year? Is it not true that four or five persons in the same family may have a hand in firing at different times during the day? The education of the whole group and the supervision that is necessary after the education is complete seems to me an insuperable job. Can we approach smokeless firing in residences by pamphlet education? I doubt it. The easy way to fire a household furnace is the way that produces smoke. I believe that any campaign which combats human nature by substituting the difficult for the easy will fail.

Coke Offers Remedy.

The householder has been told for years that the burning of coke is the solution. Are the fireboxes of our furnaces designed to burn coke? Would any high-class combustion engineer recommend that the same firebox be used alternately for the burning of coke and soft coal? I think not. Why not have your committee of engineers tell the public the truth about this matter, pointing out changes necessary to give the most satisfactory results from the burning of coke?

Talk about "smoke consumers" should be nailed once and for all. There are thousands of people in this city who think that some kind of a device on the top of the chimney will consume smoke.

What I am getting at is this: Your committee should fully, accurately and beyond contradiction compile the cost per units of heat of burning in properly designed furnaces (1) soft coal, (2) semi-anthracite coal, (3) anthracite, (4) coke, (5) fuel oil, (6) gas.

Has the public any such information now? What has been the variation of costs of those products over the last 15 years? Is it not a fact that the price of all of them varies and that none of the six named combustibles are independent of the other?

Would the committee recommend that fuel oil be substituted in the furnaces designed for burning soft coal? Is there a sacrifice of heat efficiency if this is done? What change in design should be made and why? There have been some oil burners of atrocious design sold to the public in the last few years. In fact, I never have seen an oil-burner advertisement that set forth the details of an honest-to-goodness heat test under average conditions, nor one that permitted a buyer to judge of its efficiency as compared with other fuels.

There are several hundred gas furnaces in the St. Louis district. I think there would be general surprise at a statement of the cost of a gas furnace as compared with a coke-fired furnace. The public longs for this information from a distinterested source.

Locomotive Smoke.

What about locomotives? Our newspapers frequently carry reports that Mr. So and So last night addressed the locomotive engineers of the Terminal Railway on how to fire a locomotive so that smoke would be practically eliminated. The articles give the public impression that great strides are about to be made in that direction. My observation is that the same kind of coal produces about the same amount of smoke out of locomotive stacks year after year. If there is evidence to the contrary, I think the railroads should be given opportunity to present it. Is there reason to believe that there can be measureable improvement while the railroads continue to burn soft coal? Is it financially practicable for railroads to burn fuel oil on locomotives that operate within the city limits? I imagine railroad engineers have given the matter attention and if so, are prepared to present the resulting facts and figures.

Of course, electrification would solve the locomotive smoke problem. When I say that, I am not Prohibition Enforcement.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I NOTICE in your issue of Jan. 19 that "Citizen X" comes forward with a very practical method of enforcing prohibition, i. e., draft the American army and make bootlegging spies of them. I imagine that this method would meet with favor with the soldiers, but why be so harsh on them as to threaten them with 10 years in the hoosgow? Haven't we laws now with penalties? Why push all the dirt on the soldiers?

"Citizen X" is a good example of the rank and file of the professional reformers who are anti everything, and one can tell by the tone of his letter just how much tolerance is in his makeup. He will probably reply to this letter and say that prohibition is the will of the people. Take Missouri for example. In 1918 the State went wet by over 70,000 by a direct vote, and not three months later the State Legislature ratified the Eighteenth Amendment. Did you say the will of the people?

No. "Mr. Citizen X," get around and broaden your acquaintance—see the number of respectable citizens who would not think of breaking the laws of our country with the exception of the Eighteenth Amendment.

More "Earthquakes."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE removal of the curbed-in tracks on Delmar boulevard might be a good thing for the business men and property owners along that street, but it may deprive pedestrians of the safety they now have while boarding street cars and crossing the street. However, it does not seem to be very urgent.

But there is a real job the Board of Aldermen should do and that is: Put pneumatic tires on all motorbusses or allow only busses having pneumatic tires to run on residential streets after 8 p. m. so that our houses will not be shaken as by an earthquake every time one of these 22,000-pound vehicles pass until after 1 a. m.

For a Square Deal.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

REPLYING to a letter on "Our Debt to France," by L. R. Johnson. Unfortunately young America has been for so many years propagandized by pro-French historians that an unhappily large percentage of our population have such grotesque views of the world that such letters are possible.

There is not now and has not been any "debt to France" or any other nation. The monies advanced by France during our revolution were long paid to the bitter last penny, interest and all. It might also be suggested for our sentimental fellow citizen to read Senator Beveridge's "Life of John Marshall." When, 100 and some years ago this poor republic needed money, our representatives were turned away after two expeditions for the much needed help. We were abused and subjected to indignities which today would bring out our navy in 24 hours (in spite of the propaganda). Of course, England was then no longer the menace to France that she was during the revolutionary war and it no longer behooved any Frenchman to support anything for purely altruistic (?) reasons. If Mr. Johnson will get it straight that there is only one country in the world that does or ever has done things for ethical reasons, and this country is our dear old U. S. A., then he will not be so much perturbed about the fact that we want a square deal ourselves.

AMERICA FIRST, LAST AND ALWAYS.

Tired Suburban Housewives.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE been a resident of Webster for three years, formerly having lived in St. Louis. Our family enjoy our home and the acre of ground we have, and would like to live here forever, but there is one objection.

The friends and relatives of St. Louis seem to think that when once a woman moves into the county she has a public boarding house—free for all—every Sunday, and is not entitled to go any place or to church or to the show, or to see any St. Louis friends at all, and they never give her a chance. All my neighbors complain about the same thing, and we look out of our windows on Sunday and sympathize with each other when we see automobiles full of people calling for a square meal. It takes the joy out of life for women to have to serve all day Sunday and stay home and miss everything in life to accommodate city folks.

If you know anyone in the country, please wait until you are invited before you come, and don't think the woman of the house never gets tired; and when her husband and children invite you, you tell them you will come when the wife or mother invites you, as she is the one who must do the work.

DISGUSTED.

LAWS AND LAWLESSNESS.

The American people today are suffering from two tyrannies: the tyranny of law and the tyranny of lawlessness. The latter is engaging the impressive attention of high officials, industrial leaders, eminent churchmen, merchant princes, gentle savants. Here and there a voice is raised against the tyranny of law. It gets a respectful hearing. It has not as yet begun to sink in. Eventually it must.

Crimes of violence burden the news. Thoughtful citizens are disturbed. Various measures of combating the condition are advanced. In our own State Kansas City has organized something comparable to a war-time council of defense. Here in St. Louis eminent citizens have by solemn resolution declared themselves in favor of law enforcement—meaning the prohibition law—have entreated all officials to preach and practice the observance of this law and have ceremoniously pledged themselves to co-operate with the Governor in enforcing this law. In St. Louis, too, a citizen has anonymously proposed a combination bonus-bullet plan: a reward of $500 to be paid the policeman for killing a bandit in the act of committing his crime; a premium of $100 for the capture of a robber. The offer has properly been rejected. The legal objections have been pointed out by President Brockman of the Police Board and by Chief O'Brien. The moral objections to such a plan, the consequences of such a policy are more convincing than the legal objections.

Our anonymous citizen, actuated as he doubtless is by the best of motives, is a victim of the philosophy of the times. This philosophy is the old, reactionary gospel of force. We are undertaking to remake or break people by law. And excellent citizens who ought to know better insist that whatever the majority says and thinks must be right. Of course, many of our repressive laws are not the expression of majority sentiment. But even if they were that would not necessarily make them right. The divine right of the majority is as absurd and dangerous a doctrine as was the divine right of Kings. That "tyranny of the majority" which the wise old Frenchman, De Tocqueville, foresaw and earnestly cautioned us against is here. Its vehicle of expression is the statute, in contrast with the monarch's imperial ukase or the dictator's sword; but they are essentially all of one piece. The vitality of intolerant laws does not derive from public sentiment; it derives from the penalty prescribed. Such laws do not prevail on their merits, on their innate worthiness. They prevail, when they do prevail, on the state's power to punish. They are predicated on official violence.

We cannot make policemen better policemen by official bribery. We can make them worse. We cannot make citizens better citizens by the threat of prison, by the dogma of legal damnation. We can make them worse. That is precisely what we are doing. The state, which democracy would have the servant of the people, is becoming the master. The Christian church is deposing Christ and installing Caesar.

Our laws are making us lawless. We have more laws today than ever before and more lawlessness. Is that a mere coincidence? Is it not rather the inexorable logic of cause and effect? Can this ominous condition be improved by more laws or by more ruthless efforts to enforce the laws we have found unenforceable? Or can this fantastic moral Utopia be established by a combination of compulsion and cajolery? Larger enforcing agencies, with longer-range guns and greater powers plus the lackadaisical pleadings of our Garys, Rockefellers and Rosenwalds—will the economic status quo be thus secured as we march in docile ranks beneath the melancholy banners of Don't, Don't Don't?

Well, our captains of industry are alarmed, anyhow. And that is a hopeful sign. When they honestly undertake to consider the real relation between the reform wave and the crime wave, as attested by grim, unimpeachable facts, there will be hope. Like the fear of the Lord, the fear of the truth is the beginning of wisdom.

WHO OWNS MIANGAS?

Rearing its head from the intricacies of our Filipino policy is the revived issue of the Isle of Miangas. Here is an island, 40 miles within the territorial waters of the Philippines, claimed by the United States, yet over which flies the flag of Holland.

Sovereignty of this island has again become an issue following public knowledge of the questions discussed when Governor-General Fock of the Dutch East Indies paid a visit last year to Manila, returning the call Governor-General Leonard Wood had made to Java a few months before.

The American claim to this bit of terra firma is based upon the assertion that the isle is used as a rendezvous for smugglers and Chinese workers who seek to evade the restriction of the immigration law of the Philippines.

Although recent research among the archives of the Dutch Indies has established the Dutch right to the Isle of Miangas, the meeting between Gen. Wood and Governor-General Fock resulted, it is now understood, in a preliminary agreement which stipulated that the question be submitted to an arbitrator.

However, the agreement must first be approved by the American Senate and the Dutch Parliament, after which the interested parties will decide who is to be the impartial referee.

REAL TAX RELIEF FOR EARNED INCOMES.

First individual tax payments on incomes for 1924 are revealing so much ignorance of the rate reductions effected by the revenue act of 1924 that the Internal Revenue Bureau has issued a statement warning taxpayers not to overpay. It further calls their attention to certain provisions of the law which have never been applicable before.

These provisions draw a distinction between incomes as earned and unearned. Incomes from salaries and wages are earned, those from interest on investments and profits in business are unearned. But for purposes of easier administration all net income up to $5000 is treated as earned, even though much of it may be from profits in business. All net income above $10,000 is treated as unearned, even though the salaried income alone is above $10,000. And the new law not only cuts the rate by 25 per cent on all incomes, but for earned incomes it makes a further cut of 25 per cent—making for such incomes a total rate reduction of 50 per cent from the figures in force prior to last year.

Thus the wage and smaller-salaried income taxpayers will find in the new law very substantial relief indeed. It is evidently greater than many of them had come to expect. They had probably been more or less misled by President Coolidge's and Secretary Mellon's great dissatisfaction with the new law because it did not also make special reductions in surtax rates on unearned incomes from great wealth. Mr. Mellon still considers the new law as hardly a tax-reform measure at all. But it will not so strike the mass of income tax payers.

A GOVERNOR RISES IN SELF-DEFENSE.

The Governor of Kentucky has decided that he is not strong enough to work 16 hours a day, and then spend the greater part of the night answering the telephone. So he has issued an order that, except in cases of illness, death or riot, he be left undisturbed after 9 o'clock in the evening. Besides, since practically his entire working day is consumed by callers, he announces his intention of setting aside Wednesday and Thursday of each week for the uninterrupted transaction of State business.

Mr. Coolidge, whose two predecessors were vastly overworked, has resorted to economy of speech and motion to conserve his strength. As a result, Mr. Coolidge accomplishes the marvelous result of keeping his desk clean. There is no question but that the jobs of the Chief Executive of the nation and the Chief Executive of every state constitute a terrific drain on bodily strength. And the only relief usually is in the adoption of methods such as are proposed by the Governor of Kentucky, or in the possession of a personality like Mr. Coolidge's, which gives itself frugally.

No doubt half of the telephoners who have been arousing Kentucky's Governor at 1 and 2 in the morning had business which could have waited. No doubt more than half of those who seek and get conferences with him are actuated by pure selfishness. Corporation presidents are safeguarded against such intrusions. Public servants must safeguard themselves. In doing so they will be applauded, for it permits them to pay more attention to the real business for which they were elected.

POOR OLD "POP."

And now "pop" is to be banned. The term is distasteful to the manufacturers of soda water. It is a word of primrose connotations and convivial legends. It belongs to a time and terminology happily gone. Once a parvenu among potations, soda water has achieved dignity and substance. It has got "into society." It must deport itself as becomes its new estate. It must henceforth be befittingly addressed.

The old, familiar, slap-on-the-shoulder greeting must be relegated to innocuous desuetude. Instead of "pop," soda water, its vendors insist, shall be designated as "bottled carbonated beverage." There is dignity in that designation. There is real deference. Thus saluted, a bottle of "pop" will assume a new significance. It may never attain the savoir faire of ancient vintages, never quite muster the poise of mellowed Scotch or the grace that somehow bloomed upon the rye, or the assurance of the bourbons. Nevertheless, soda water, say its sponsors, has taken on consequence. It is to be "our national drink" as soon as the bootlegger is one with Nineveh and Tyre, and it must so be accepted and acknowledged.

Noctes ambrosianae, the cold, gray dawns of the mornings after and "pop!" Farewell. Other days, other manners. No more frivolity, no more sparkle. We must be as grave and sonorous in speech as in custom. Thus depose our new arbiters of elegance, the manufacturers of soda water.

GLENN YOUNG OF BREATHITT.

If it is true that Glenn Young, two-gun klansman, originated in Breathitt County, Ky., the violence of his career becomes more understandable. "Bloody Breathitt" has long been noted as a breeder of men quick to deal out sudden death. In this rugged, hilly region, where the soil is thin and poor, murder is a commonplace.

Glenn Young's troubles in Herrin had to do with politics. In his native Breathitt, likewise, politics has been the cause of that county's spectacular outbreaks. There was the celebrated feud between the clan of Hargis and the tribe of Cockrill, for example. The leader of the Hargis clan was County Judge, and the fight was one largely of political supremacy between the two families. Gallons of blood was shed in that terrible affair, and during its progress hundreds of people lived in hourly terror of their lives.

As recently as 1920 occurred the slaughter at Clayhole Precinct, when, at the command, "Let 'er go, Les," scores of guns blazed out in a Republican-Democratic election quarrel. As men fell dead and others crawled away through the laurel to nurse their wounds, ballot boxes were riddled with bullets and Clayhole's vote was destroyed.

Breathitt has a better element which is trying to erase these old stains, but the blood of Breathitt is hot and the use of pistols and squirrel rifles still is common.

No wonder, with this background, that Glenn Young's favorite photograph should show him weighed down with a pair of automatics and holding affectionately in his arms a miniature machine gun.

DIRGE WITH HOPE IN IT.

Here we are in the winter still—
Not a day but the cold persists;
Snow lies white on the distant hill,
And the sun shows faint through the smoky mists.
Living costs are as high as hell,
And business is not a booming thing;
Politics are a dreadful sell—
But think of the not-far-distant Spring?
Almost nothing is doing well—
But THINK of the n. f. d. Spring!

The furnace appetite for coal
Is a fearful thing, like human greed;
The thievery is truly droll,
And all men take just what they need;
The Good seems everywhere a jest,
And Evil in its turn is King;
The East is wild, just like the West—
But think of the not-far-distant Spring?
The bankers, even, are distressed—
But THINK of the n. f. d. Spring!

The pirates reach for Muscle Shoals,
And each day brings its boost in rents;
Our rapt ideals and our goals—
You can buy them all for thirty cents,
The election showed we do not care
Who steals so long as we do not swing
Toward doing what would obviously be fair—
But think of the not-far-distant Spring!
Never were we in such despair—
But THINK of the n. f. d. Spring!

Sir: This season's prize for unconscious humor unquestionably goes to your anonymous correspondent from Dupo, Ill. He concludes a rambling, pointless dissertation on spiritualism with the following gem: "It is apparently hard to grope around in the darkness of your own creation and get anywhere."

Whatever "Anon" set out to show, he certainly succeeded in proving his final statement. Logic of a sort, yes. The Goldberg madhouse variety!

CHANSON TRISTE.

A Novus Homo.

To villanelles I feel no urge;
Who writes must have his meed of wine;
The wine is gone—why not a dirge?

On water, who has had the surge
Of thought that came from Omar's vine?
To villanelles I feel no urge.

What fools they were who thought to purge
Of Bacchus' cup the poets' shrine;
The wine is gone—why not the dirge?

On water, thoughts do not emerge—
Such inspiration ne'er was mine;
To villanelles I feel no urge.

Then haste we hence; the paths diverge;
Let us our joy to Hope consign;
The wine is gone—why not a dirge?

The lack of wine is thus a scourge
To those who'd pen the laughing line;
To villanelles I feel no urge;
The wine is gone—why not a dirge?

NO LET-UP IN COON DOG BOOM.

(Jackson, Mo., Post.)

F. Jones appeared Monday and swore out a warrant before Justice Sachse against Bern Rumfelt of near Oak Ridge, charging him with breaking into a barn and stealing a "hound dog" of the value of more than $30. Rumfelt's arrest followed the same day, and he furnished $500 bond for his appearance in Circuit Court. Rumfelt denies the charge. It would seem the lateness of the season would lessen the demand for coon dogs.

In the chief towns of Europe great changes have taken place since the war in the number of inhabitants. The Western cities, Paris, London, Madrid, Rome, Berlin, have only their normal increase of population. The East, however, has had considerable changes. Prague which had 225,000 inhabitants in 1910, has today 676,000. Athens has increased from 176,000 to nearly 300,000. A decrease has taken place in Vienna. It has diminished from 2,000,000 to 1,841,000. Leningrad has kept only 706,000 out of its 2,000,000. In Moscow, of 1,480,000 only 1,028,000 remain.

WILL WE MARRY IN 1944?

(Monroe County, Mo., Appeal.)

Since 1904 the weddings in Monroe County have fallen off nearly 50 per cent.

1904	166	1923	100
1914	132	1924	87

Has man become backward or timid when it comes to a proposal? Have hard times overtaken Cupid so that his ammunition is no longer plentiful? Or has woman's ascendancy to equal rights in business, politics and behavior with her brothers driven thoughts of a home and family out of the minds of the present generation?

June, supposedly the ideal month for brides, has never been popular in Monroe County, seldom having more than an average number of weddings. February, August, October and December are the marrying months, especially the last named. In February, 1904, there were 26 weddings. In August, 1923, there were 14. In October, 1924, there were 12, and in December, 1914, 20 couples were united. These were the record months in each of the four years, but are also the four largest every year.

TO ALL AND SUNDRY.

Sweet Avalina!!!
If I had only known
What I was pulling down!

"Why do the heathen rage?"
Oh, my brothers!
Do you not hear their cry?
Their loud and wailing cry?
Their angry, snarling cry?
And do you wonder why?
They're dry!!

And that without consent!
They every one confess
They never gave consent,
And yet their liquor went!
So dry!

It is a warning sent
Of coming punishment.
Just think what it would be
Throughout eternity
To go without a drop
And stop!

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

EVOLUTION A DAILY MIRACLE.

PROF. HENRY FAIRFIELD OSBORNE in the Forum for February.

EVOLUTION is challenged today by many good and well-meaning people, at once as an enemy of religion, as the cause of the rise of animalism, and as the chief cause of decadence in conduct. I am informed by the Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Arizona that before a crowded house in Texas William Jennings Bryan recently classed me as an atheist, with Voltaire, Thomas Paine and Robert Ingersoll because I believe in Evolution. Nearer home, John Roach Straton posted this charge on the front of Calvary Baptist Church: "Is the American Museum of Natural History Misspending the Taxpayers' Money and Poisoning the Minds of the School Children With False and Bestial Theories of Evolution? Should not the Bible Be Displayed in the Museum as well as Old Musty Bones?" I endeavor to be a consistent evolutionist. I also undertake the far more difficult task of being a consistent Christian. I believe in the past evolution of man, in the present evolution of man, and I am hopeful of the future evolution of man, unless his conduct leads to his extinction, as it is now doing in many parts of the world. This simple, direct teaching of nature is full of moral and spiritual force, if we keep the element of human opinion out of it. The moral principle inherent in evolution is that nothing can be gained in this world without an effort; the ethical principle inherent in evolution is that the best only has the right to survive; the spiritual principle in evolution is the evidence of beauty, of order, and of design in the daily myriad of miracles to which we owe our existence. I believe that not alone our physical but our moral, our intellectual, even our spiritual powers have ascended through a long, slow, upward movement. Evolution is a continuous creation of life fitted to a continuously changing world.

RELIGION AND POLITICS.

REV. BILLY SUNDAY to "Ma" Ferguson.

FOLKS thought because you wore hairpins and petticoats that you couldn't rule Texas, but you'll hand some of those cheap-skate politicians the hot end of the poker, and the Lone Star State will never regret sending you to Austin. I could not attend the inauguration, but I can shake hands and congratulate you by wire. Your inaugural address may not please the politicians, but it will stir the hearts of all America. It was a bull's-eye. Ben Franklin said, "United we stand, divided we fall." That famous slogan has stood alone until you paraphrase it with "a strong pull, and a pull together." Texas is not the only State that needs something more than longhorn steers and cotton. They all need praying men and praying women. You are one of the first Governors in this generation with courage to give God his rightful place. I don't know the facts in Jim's impeachment, but I don't care three whoops this side of Hoboken. But I'll bet every hair in my head with a wife like you he wasn't guilty.

"A to Z" of Smoke Problem; Facts Needed to Solve It

trying to gain business for my company. I know that electrification of the Terminal would be a most expensive program. However, a survey should disclose in what district the greatest part of locomotive smoke originates, and partial electrification might be found feasible.

The elimination of smoke from sizable power plants can be accomplished. It is purely a matter of design and reasonable care in operation. Union Electric Light and Power Co. has been quite a serious offender at its Ashley street plant. However, we are now spending about $50,000 to determine how we can eliminate smoke there and I am hopeful that within 18 months there will be little or no smoke issuing from that plant.

Some of our manufacturing plants are serious offenders. This is particularly true of the ceramic industries—brick and tile manufacturers. Kilns of this industry put forth great clouds of smoke. The men in this industry should be given opportunity to explain the necessity for smoke. Let us find out what can be done before condemning present processes. It may be that we shall find that successful prosecution of the ceramic industry calls for smoke.

In fairness, we must remember that presence of this cheap coal which makes smoke is responsible for our possession of industries involving millions of dollars and that in our handling of the smoke problem we may, if we move hastily, impose seriously upon them. Of course, industry can lessen smoke. In seven years' operation I can recall no complaint against our plant at Tenth and St. Charles streets, which burns large quantities of coal. But the installations required to eliminate smoke cost a large sum. Owners of boiler plants, required to do the same, might find that expense and space limitations were prohibitive. We can require mechanical stoking and liberal combustion chamber design in new plants, but the improvement in general conditions in St. Louis would not be affected thereby for a generation or more.

Occasionally we are told of great improvement in the smoky conditions of other cities. I have observed that a smoke pall is apt to settle down on all of our midwestern cities that take their fuel from bituminous coal regions surrounding them. I cannot see that any city has made material progress toward eliminating smoke. If the solution has been found elsewhere, we should copy it at once, but I predict that a search of this kind will produce no satisfactory result. A man who recently played golf at a Pittsburg country club told me that the golf balls were almost black at the end of each hole. We occasionally have a good deal of smoke in St. Louis, but I doubt that it is so bad that golf balls are black at the end of each hole.

Possibly your committee will find that our salvation from soot is dependent upon discovery of some new process of treating soft coal to remove the smoke-producing qualities. The public is being assured from time to time of the discovery of such processes. One of the most recent was the announcement that Henry Ford had learned how to "burn coal twice."

I fancy that your committee will determine the facts surrounding the search for a smokeless substitute for bituminous coal to be somewhat as follows: Coke, as we now know it, is the product that results from exposing high-grade coal to very high temperatures from 12 to 36 hours or longer. I do not think that the most partisan coke man would undertake to say that the product which now is offered to the householder for use in his furnace is the ideal product for that purpose. It weighs but little for the space it occupies and in order to save frequent firing the furnace in which coke is used should have a very much larger firebox than the furnace used for burning soft coal.

What inventors now are seeking is a coal distillation process at low temperature—a process that will require small investment and will accomplish a large output in a short time. There have been dozens of coke ovens built to accomplish this result, but to the best of my knowledge none of them ever has been commercially successful. The problem is not to build an oven that will produce coke at low temperature, but to produce coke in such an oven at a cost that will permit it to compete with bituminous coal.

The very cheapness of soft coal makes the problem difficult. If soft coal costs $15 a ton, we could afford to do a lot of things to it to dispel the smoke. But it cost about $8 a ton delivered to our homes and about $3 delivered to our manufacturing plants and the task is to produce a substitute costing about the same.

Henry Ford's process for "burning coal twice" stumbles on this cost specification. He erected a coke oven plant at Walkersville, Ont., to recapture the by-products of coal and to use the residual for fuel in the form of briqueted, pulverized coke. I visited this plant and was told that it had not yet justified itself commercially. What the future of the process is, of course, we cannot foresee, but so far it is not a commercial success.

Occasional reference is made to the big advance along this line in certain European countries. I made investigation while in London last year and could find no justification for such statements. In fact, when the chairman of a meeting I attended, made a similar statement of progress in Scotland, an eminent Scotch engineer, who had devoted years of effort to such a search, stated that "no process of low distillation of soft coal is in progress in Scotland which gives evidence of being commercially possible."

The problem of producing a smokeless fuel adapted to burning in the furnaces we have installed in our homes and costing no more per pound per million heat units than soft coal costs is still ahead of us.

These are some of the points on which the public is so often misinformed. I trust your committee can give us a clear, authentic understanding of them.

DEBTOR'S LAW MAKES RHODE ISLAND BRUTAL COLLECTING AGENCY

Marshalsea debtors bowled down their troubles.

"Supposed to be incarcerated there, because the time had rather outgrown the strong cells and the blind alley, in practice they had come to be considered a little too bad, though in theory they were quite as good as ever."

"Racquet" and Skittles.

The outer gate of the Marshalsea faced on High street in Southwark. Across a small courtyard, up some stone steps, through a narrow entry and several locked doors, was the prison lodge, which was built into the wall of the prison proper and gave admittance into its main course by another door. In this court was the pump and along its side was the "barrack," in which Dickens located the birthplace of Little Dorrit. In this court the debtors could play at "racquet" and skittles. The "snuggery" or taproom, where they could buy beer if they had money, also opened of this court. The rooms were shabby and dirty.

"I see the fire we sat before, now," wrote Dickens afterward, in telling of his childhood, "with two bricks put in the rusted grate, one on each side, to prevent its burning too many coals." The arrangement of the walls was such that the prisoners could see nothing from their windows but the sky.

In the "Old Man's Tale About the Queer Client," in the Pickwick Papers, he wrote: "Although in later times it has been a very different place from the sink of filth and dirt it once was, even its improved condition holds out but little temptation to the extravagant or consolation to the insolvent. The condemned felon has as good a yard for air and exercise in Newgate as the insolvent debtor in the Marshalsea prison. * * * The atrocity in its full extent no longer exists, but there is enough of it left to give rise to occurrences that make the heart bleed."

The Marshalsea was officially abolished in 1849. In 1857 Dickens said, in his preface to "Little Dorrit:"

"Some of my readers may have an interest in being informed whether or no any portions of the Marshalsea prison are yet standing. I did not know myself until the sixth of this present month, when I went to look. I found the outer front courtyard, often mentioned in this story, metamorphosed into a butter shop, and I then almost gave up every brick of the jail for lost. Wandering, however, down a certain adjacent 'Angel Court, leading to Bermondsey,' I came to 'Marshalsea Place,' the houses in which I recognized, not only as the great block of the former prison, but as preserving the rooms that arose in my mind's eye when I became Little Dorrit's biographer.

DAVIS DISCUSSES FRENCH INFLUENCE IN MOROCCO

all that is Morocco, and at the same time bringing French thought and ways forward tactfully.

"When the French began to establish their influence in Algeria," Davis said, "they followed a radically different method. 'Peaceful penetration' was their watchword. But it was a sort of peaceful penetration a farmer brings about when, for example, he engrafts a scion from one apple tree on the stock of another. In the ancient Mohammedan city of Algiers, for instance, they tried to implant a completely French Algiers, a modern Gallic city. That graft did not 'take' completely, and in general their Algerian experiment in penetration and particularly in the implantation of purely French colonies in the country, cannot be said to have been as fruitful as they hoped when they began.

"In Morocco, it seemed to me, they have resorted to the much more subtle process of producing an admixture of ideas and cultures which a chemist might describe as ocmosis—that is, to say, infiltration through a frankly recognized barrier of difference in outlook and tradition. When they decided to build French cities of Fez and Rabat, they built them as complete French city units set down beside but apart from the ancient communities where the muezzin call from the minarets as dawn and dusk and in the middle of the night—dramatic alarm clocks, let me tell you. The spread of French industrialism into the streets set apart for the goldsmiths and perfumers and armories will take place by contagion of ideas and slowly, if it takes place at all."

Would not a similar osmotic process, he was asked, be an excellent way to wean the hidebound Republican from his authoritarianism?

Davis let a smile be his answer to the question.

A Gentleman With Four Wives

"Another interesting experience that came to me over there in North Africa," he observed blandly, "was taking tea with a benignant old gentleman who had four wives and 40 concubines. He seemed to me to have thrived on, or, in spite of, his marital status."

Again there came to mind the thought of a possible parallel in the political layout in America. But, with another of those flashing smiles of his, Davis dismissed the opportunity to point a moral or adorn a tale. One recalled then his having served his term as Ambassador at St. James' court.

"Morocco," he remarked, closing the interview, "is really a very interesting place just now."

ACCIDENT VERDICT IN AUTO FATALITY

Husband of Woman Killed Testifies That Accident Was Unavoidable.

The husband of a woman killed in an automobile crash took the witness stand at the inquest yesterday, and testified that the accident was unavoidable and the driver should be held blameless. Accordingly, a Coroner's verdict of accident was returned.

About 7:10 p. m., Jan. 11, Henry B. Tietjens and his wife, Mrs. Clara Tietjens, 64, of 3314A Meramec street, attempted to cross from the north to the south side of Osceola street at Virginia avenue. The streets were slippery with ice, Tietjens testified yesterday, and as they stepped from the curb he saw the approaching automobile and called out to his wife. Apparently, his testimony continued, the driver endeavored to brake his car, which skidded, striking the couple.

Tietjens suffered only bruises, but his wife, at city hospital, was found to have suffered a compound fracture of the arm, fractured ribs and internal injuries. She died there Friday. The car was owned and driven by Louis J. Hoffman, 4652A South Grand boulevard, and was stolen from his garage Friday evening.

Three Boy Suspects Arrested.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOUNDS, Ill., Jan. 31.—Special Agent Dallas Winchester of the Illinois Central Railroad yesterday arrested three boys wanted in Memphis, Tenn., in connection with the holding up of two drug stores and the robbery of a restaurant and clothing store, Thursday night. The youths, 19 to 21, have confessed and will be returned to Memphis. They gave their names as Carl Day of Chicago, Fred Almond of Little Rock, Ark., and Charlie Staley, also of Little Rock.

OUTLINES NEEDS OF JEWS IN ST. LOUIS

New York Research Bureau Urges Affiliation of All Philanthropic Societies.

Outstanding needs of Jewish philanthropic work in St. Louis, according to the report of a survey by the Bureau of Jewish Social Research (New York) to the Federation of Jewish Charities, are:

Affiliation of all Jewish philanthropic societies with the federation.

General supervision by the federation of the activities of its constituent organizations.

Creation of a group of federation committees to conduct work intensively.

"On the whole," a summary of the report concludes, "the real problem that should be stimulated by the federation, aside from uniting the whole community under its banner, and, in addition to the task of helping the community in the process of Americanization, should be the provision for Jewish culture as well as general culture, to which the federation can address itself for the next few years.

May Enter Community Fund.

That the Federation of Jewish Charities at some time may enter the Community Fund is recognized in the report.

"The survey indicates," it is stated, "that philanthropically the St. Louis Jewish community is not a united community. We feel that the directors * * * should consider seriously overtures to groups not now federated for the purpose of bringing them into the federation. We refer specifically to such organizations as the Jewish Free Loan Association, the Orthodox Home for the Aged and the Jewish Orphan Asylum.

"We also feel that, in view of the fact that, with the future holding forth a lessening necessity for purely charitable work on the one hand, while, on the other hand, requiring greater emphasis on constructive fields of work such as general health work, improvement of the condition of all children rather than a few dependent children, etc.—this energetic and influential group (the directors) should give full consideration to federation activities and policies aiming at the conservation of Jewish cultural ideals and the development to a reasonable degree of Jewish educational and training facilities. St. Louis would be following the example of cities like New York, Detroit, Pitsburg, Cleveland and Chicago, if the federation were to take an intensive interest in a community-wide plan of Jewish education."

Population of 40,000.

Statistical studies in the survey led to the conclusion that the Jewish population of St. Louis is between 40,000 and 45,000. Further studies showed that contributors of small amounts to federation work, though apparently large in number, actually contribute very little in the aggregate, and there is an obvious dearth of contributions from the large middle-class population. Donors of sums between $100 and $1000 give 39 per cent of the money, though they number but 12 per cent of the subscribers. The Community Fund has had similar experience.

Declaring that the federation is not the social service leader of the Jewish community, the report urges that it supervise the activities of its member societies through the following committees: Recreation and Education, Family Welfare, Jewish Education, Child Care, Health, and Delinquency. The principal lack of the Jewish Community Center, it is asserted, is one of constructive and scientific supervision of the work. Recommendations are made for the benefit of the service of the new Jewish Hospital, being built.

Delinquency among Jewish children is proportionately higher than is the Jewish population to the total population, being about 10 per cent of the general problem, it was found.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS TO MEET

To Hear Address by J. W. Jamison on "Constitution."

The Jeffersonian Democratic Women's Club, which has for its motto "Back to the Constitution with Thomas Jefferson as our guide," will be addressed tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the assembly room at the Jefferson Hotel, by J. W. Jamison, general counsel of the Bell Telephone Co. His subject will be "The necessity for keeping the governmental departments, namely, the executive, legislative and judicial, within the limits set by the Constitution."

The discourse will draw inferences from colonial history and compare the American Constitution with those of other peoples and times. This is one of a series of meetings conducted by this women's organization that have been addressed by eminent students of the Constitution. They have been most informal, usually ending in a round-table discussion. Any persons interested in the subject are invited to attend. There is no admission fee.

Sodality to Present Play.

"Adam and Eva," a comedy, will be presented by the Young Men's Sodality of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church in the school hall, Twenty-first and Linton streets, Wednesday night and the following Wednesday night. Dancing will follow the performance.

CHECK FORGER ADMITS GUILT

Charles Murphy Returns to Furniture Store for More After Getting $100.

If Charles Murphy had vanished with the $100 cash he obtained for a $400 worthless check, instead of returning to the scene of his swindle in hopes of getting $150 more for it, he would not be in the hands of the police today.

Officers of the Union House Furnishing Co., 1120 Olive street, believed his story about winning money in a lottery. When he bought a $150 phonograph last Thursday they accepted his check for $400, giving him $100 in cash and a check for $150 as change.

It soon developed that the check was no good. Murphy had signed the name of Thomas Cowgill, 1411 Hebert street. Detectives arrested Cowgill and despite his protestations of innocence, put him in the holdover. Friday morning the house furnishing concern's officials called at police headquarters to identify him.

"Why, this isn't the man," they exclaimed.

The detectives looked blank. If Cowgill wasn't the man there was a slim chance of locating the right one.

A few hours later Murphy walked into the house furnishers' place of business and said:

"It is inconvenient for me to cash that check you gave me. Supposing you fork over $150 and I'll consider it cashed."

The storekeepers sent for a policeman. Murphy admitted that he had forged Cowgill's name.

Actress Tells Secret

Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture.

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

VETERAN RAILROAD ENGINEER PENSIONED

Charles Cavanaugh, 70, Never Had Serious Accident in 48 Years at Throttle.

Charles Cavanaugh, more familiarly known as "Uncle Charlie," veteran engineer for the New York Central lines, handled the throttle on his favorite switch engine in the railroad yards at East St. Louis for the last time yesterday. "Uncle Charlie," who will be 70 years old next October, has been retired on a pension because of his age.

Cavanaugh, a native of Pennsylvania, began his railroad career as a fireman 52 years ago at Mattoon, Ill. Four years later he became an engineer, being assigned to switching duty in the East St. Louis yards, where he since has maintained an almost unbroken record of service. According to his wife, Mrs. Minnie Cavanaugh, whom he married the same year he became an engineer, Cavanaugh failed to report for duty on less than 30 working days in the entire period.

Wanted to Continue Work.

The veteran engineer's retirement had to be forced, Cavanaugh insisting that, despite his age, he was still as capable of piloting a switch engine as when he started. "Rules are rules," however, and, according to the rules of the service, "Uncle Charlie" is too old for duty.

Cavanaugh and his wife have two sons and two daughters. The daughters are married and live in East St. Louis. One son is in Canada, and the other lives in the West. Cavanaugh never accepted a "road run" because of his desire to be with his family, but neither the family nor his co-workers, who call his "Uncle Charlie," can console him for his enforced removal from his engine.

Never in Serious Accident.

"The retirement order nearly broke Charlie's heart," Mrs. Cavanaugh said yesterday. "I don't know what he will do to keep busy, but I imagine quite a bit of his time will be spent at the roundhouse."

Cavanaugh owns his own home at 125 South Main street, East St. Louis. He was never in a serious accident in his entire career in the engine cab.

MAN WHO GOT AUTO FOR CHECK TO "FACE MUSIC"

Former Charleston (W. Va.) Contractor, College Graduate, Not Seeking Sympathy.

BUSINESS FAILURE TOOK ALL HE HAD

Tried to Start Life Over in Illinois Town but Found He Had Lost His Grip.

The personality, which was Alfred S. Dyhre's in days of affluence, when he possessed a wife, a home and a going business, he retained when he started out to leave all behind—all that he had lost and he had lost all.

That is, all except his Ford coupe and a few dollars, he related in a cell at Police Headquarters yesterday. He wanted to forget, but he couldn't disasocite himself from Alfred S. Dyhre, college graduate, president of the Dyhre Construction Co. of Charleston, W. Va. Neither could he remember he had no funds in the bank back home, when he started to write worthless checks, when he needed money.

All along Dyhre signed his own name, not as is the custom of professional check forgers. Even when he drove out of a St. Louis automobile agency with a brand new automobile, for which he tendered, with a flourish as of old, a worthless check for $2535, he was still the successful business man.

Lost Home and Wife.

To a reporter for the Post-Dispatch, Dyhre, 33 years old, of athletic build and pleasing address, asserted yesterday that he wanted neither sympathy nor help, but that he was back, ready to "face the music." He related that he was a graduate of an Iowa university, where he specialized in architectural engineering, and later had established himself in Charleston, where he prospered and later married a New York girl.

"We had everything—automobiles, a fine home and plenty of money," he narrated, "And then the crash came in 1922. I lost between $20,000 and $25,000, and I lost my wife, too. She divorced me the next year. I started out in my Ford coupe with a few dollars to drive and keep on driving—and forget. When I came to Percy, Ill., I tried ot make a new start. But I had lost my grip. When I left, last fall, I drew a check for $24 to get out of town. That was more money than I had in the bank."

Wrote More Checks.

From there it appears Dyhre went to Chester, Ill., where he again drew checks to pay hotel and garage bills, and then came to St. Louis. That was in December. He established himself at the Jefferson Hotel, the Statler Hotel and in a West End apartment, successively, always tendering worthless checks under the name of "Alfred S. Dyhre." And then, on Jan. 17, his final and largest transaction in St. Louis—the "purchase" of the new automobile.

"I drove to Topeka, Kan.," he continued, "and from there to Kirksville, Mo. I stopped at a hotel and was without funds. Next day I wrote a check for $72, which the woman proprietor indorsed. I cashed it at a local clothing store, buying a $30 overcoat.

Tried to Return Coat.

Then I went back to the hotel and engaged the woman in further conversation. She told me she was a widow, alone in the world and that in trying to operate the hotel she was having a hard time to make both ends meet. Straightway I went back to the store, tendered the change and overcoat and called for the check. But the merchant wouldn't give it back."

The episode decided him, however, he said, to restore the stolen automobile and yield to prosecution. Accordingly, he drove to Kansas City and put up the car at an agency dealing in the same make of cars.

Then he went to his room and cy, whom he chanced to know, and information supplied by St. Louis was about to tell his story, when arrested by Kansas City police on summoned an official of the agendetectives.

NORWEGIANS WILL STUDY WHALES IN ARCTIC OCEAN

Scientific Expedition to Leave Oslo Shortly on 12 Months' Trip.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1925.)

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 31.—A Norwegian scientific expedition is on the eve of leaving for the White Sea to continue for a year an investigation into the life of the great Arctic Sea mammals before the whales become extinct in those waters. Valuable material has been secured previously and the present investigations relate chiefly to the life and ways of the seal. The task of the expedition is difficult as the investigations must continue during February and March, which is the severest season in these regions.

AUTO FACTORIES TO BASE SELLING DRIVE ON SERVICE

Maintenance to Play Big Part in Program of Industry—Hot After Farmer's Business.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich, Jan. 31.—The automobile production increase during the New York show has not continued, as was expected, although the various shows have produced a greater number of actual orders than those in previous years and dealers entered the new year with small display stocks, the building up of which alone would require fair production. Despite these orders, as well as the interest the new models have aroused and depletion of dealer stocks, few motor plants are operating at high output rates. A few—not more than three—are at 70 per cent production. The remainder will not average 50 per cent. Two—one a leader in the low-priced class—the other one of the most prominent makers in any class, actually have reduced schedules for the moment.

Demand to Be Chief Factor.

The industry is now analyzing its findings in the Chicago show. What will be revealed will determine the actual manufacturing outlook. In the eDtroit area it is believed production will advance again the first of February and that the industry will be on an 80 per cent basis by the middle of the month.

However, demand alone will determine manufacturing rate. Never before has the industry watched the sales situation as it is this year. Manufacturers are doing nothing to build up warehouse stocks against an anticipated spring demand. Nor will they. They intend not to be caught as they were last year, when hundreds of thousands of cars lay in warehouses throughout the country with no one to buy them. Volume of production this year is to be rigidly limited to demand.

Hot After the Farmers.

Around the farmer and his improved purchasing power is being built an auto-selling program the like of which never has been seen. If there is a farmer in this land who some time this year is not approached by a salesman with an entirely new bag of selling tricks it will be because that farmer has a car for every member in his family—and even that may not halt the salesmen. More automobile

'SPEED TRAPS' MAY COST MANY MISSOURI TOWNS LOCATION ON STATE ROADS

ELIMINATION of numerous small towns in Missouri from State highways to be constructed, by running the roads around them, is likely, unless action is taken by the State Legislature giving the Highway Commission control over the roads even through the towns, State Highway officials declare.

They say that many small towns are passing ordinances on which to build "traps" for tourists, who are arrested and fined, fattening the town treasuries.

If the State Legislature would give the Highway Department control over roads run through towns the practice could be ended, it is said.

MICHIGAN LICENSE TAX IS 55 CENTS THE 100 POUNDS

Commercial Cars Will Pay $1.25—Two-Cent a Gallon Gasoline Tax Law Passed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 31.—Gov. Grosbeck has signed an automobile license law fixing a fee of 55 cents the 100 pounds weight for passenger cars and $1.25 the 100 pounds for commercial vehicles. A bill providing a gasoline tax of 2 cents the gallon also has passed the Legislature.

It is estimated that the two taxes will yield $19,000,000 to $20,000,-will go to the counties. Another $6,000,00 probably will be devoted to State road construction.

The Governor estimates that a weight tax of 55 cents a hundred weight on passenger cars will bring in about $10,300,000 a year: that a sliding scale of from 65 cents to $1.25 on trucks will bring in about $3,500,000, and that a 2-cent gas tax for the remainder of this year will produce not more than $6,000,000. These figures are predicated on the estimate that 1925 licenses will be taken out for passenger cars weighing something like 1,825,000,000 pounds and for trucks weighing something like 475,000,000 pounds. The recorded figures for the past year give 1,600,000,000 pounds for passenger cars and 400,000,000 pounds for trucks.

If the appropriation for construction is finally placed at $6,-

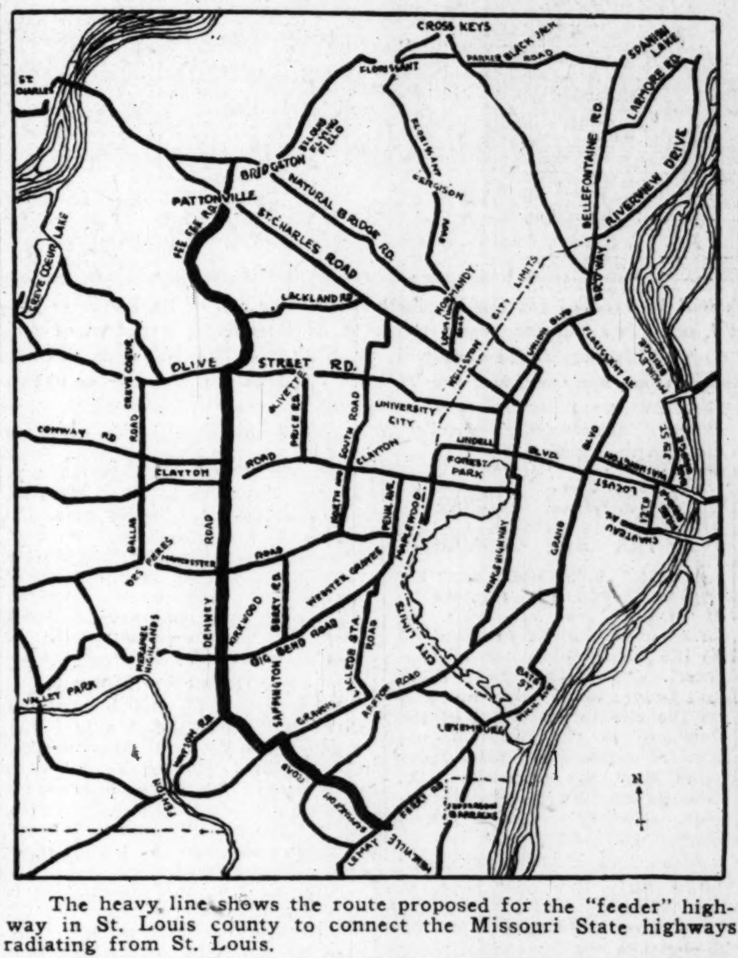
Route for New County Highway

Building of "Feeder" Highway to Connect State Routes Out of St. Louis Will Benefit Sunday Motorists of City as Well as Tourists.



The heavy line shows the route proposed for the "feeder" highway in St. Louis county to connect the Missouri State highways radiating from St. Louis.

DECISION of the St. Louis County Court, announced the past week, to build the long-planned road connecting the main Missouri State highways out of St. Louis will benefit local motorists as much as tourists who wish to avoid the congested metropolitan district. Especially it will be useful for varying Sunday tours; that is, it will if made wide enough to handle the large number of cars that inevitably will roll over it Sundays.

Construction of it, logically, will lead to development of the Fee Fee Church road or the Bridgeton Station road to Florissant and then development of some road, possibly the Robbins Mill road, or the Parker road through Black Jack, to intersect all the main highways from the St. Charles road and Natural Bridge road to the Columbia bottom road. Such a continuation northeastward of the new highway would really open the county up for motoring.

As has been told, and as is shown by the accompanying map, the new highway is to be built on suggestion by the State Highway Commission from part of the money due to the county from the $60,000,000 issue because it bore most of the cost of building the state highways through the county.

It will start from the St. Charles road at Pattonville and follow the present Fee Fee, Dorset, Lackland and Link roads to Olive street road. Present plans are for it to follow the Olive Street road as far as Denny road, then swing into the latter and the Geyer road across the Manchester and Gravois roads, intersecting the latter near Sunset Inn, then continuing over the Sappington road to Mehlville on the Lemay Ferry road.

It is possible that the route will be changed somewhat to avoid the congestion and danger that would be caused by the right-hand turn into Olive Street road, the mingling of this traffic with the very heavy stream in both directions on the Olive Street road and the crossing of this double traffic flow again into the Denny road.

NETWORK OF BUSSES IN ALL SOUTHEAST MISSOURI CHALLENGES RAILROADS

Cairo-Springfield, Mo., Service in One Day Now a Fact as Part of Wide-Flung Series of Lines.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Jan. 31.—Although one may encounter a railroad by going from any point a distance of six miles in Southeast Missouri, a series of bus lines now travel over a network of highways in this part of the State.

These lines have been systematized so that a passenger may board a bus at Bird's Point, just opposite Cairo, early in the morning, and travel from there to Springfield, Mo., across the entire South part of Missouri, between sunrise and sunset. The St. Louis-Festus, Mo., bus service scheduled to start Monday as told in another column, can hardly fail to be extended to connect with the Southeast Missouri lines.

Upon completion of short sections of road No. 23, the Poplar Bluff-St. Louis State highway, a bus line will be started between Poplar Bluff and Farmington, connecting with a line now operating from Farmington to St. Louis.

Southeast Missouri's railroad service is equal to that in any region outside the larger cities in Missouri. Railroads form a network throughout this part of the State. However, with completion of cross-state highway No. 16, the bus lines have opened up a new business that is still in its infancy.

Run as Regularly as Trains.

Railroads in this section are suffering severely from the loss of business to the bus lines. In many instances the busses beat train schedules by a goodly margin and are more easily accessible. On the other hand, residents of Southeast Missouri are considering the fact that the railroads pay heavy taxes each year toward maintenance of County and State Governments.

In precisely the same way as railroad train schedules are arranged, the busses run on regularly arranged time cards and in few instances do they vary from their schedules. The concrete and gravel roads in this section make fast travel possible.

Cairo-Springfield Service.

One of the most important bus lines operates between Bird's Point and towns along Route No. 16 to Springfield. Railroad service between Doniphan and Springfield is poor, railroad passengers having to go to Hoxie, Ark., thence north on the Frisco to Springfield, necessitating out of the way travel of more than 100 miles. It requires part of two days to make the trip by rail.

The busses operating between Bird's Point and Springfield connect at the various terminals and give their patrons one-day service through one of the most beautiful sections of the Ozarks.

The Scofield line between Bird's Point and Sikeston, connecting with the bus lines; the Dexter Transfer Co. and the Safety Motor Coach companies between Sikeston and Poplar Bluff; the Dalton transfer bus line between Poplar Bluff and Doniphan; Richmond's line to West Plains and another

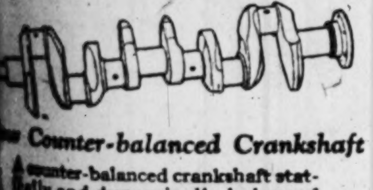
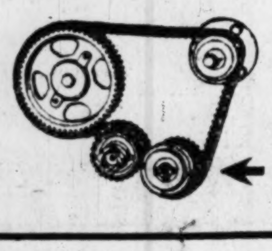
New Smoothness



New Counter-balanced Crankshaft

A counter-balanced crankshaft statically and dynamically balanced gives new smoothness to Jewett. Vibration cannot be detected—regardless of speed. Silken smoothness at all speeds. Its substantial weight—102 lbs.—indicates its strength. We don't know of a heavier crankshaft in any car.



New Silence

Silent Chain Drive

The Jewett motor is built with a new silent chain drive for pump, cam and timing shafts. Chains wear, stretch after a while. So we provide an automatic take-up sprocket (indicated by arrow) with a coiled spring which, expanding, keeps a constant tension on the chain, completely offsetting the effects of wear (stretch), preventing back-lash and retaining timing accuracy. Silence is permanent.

CLEVELAND SIX RUNS 80.6 M. P. H. FOR 1000 MILES

Stock Car, Using 3.25 Gear Ratio, Sets New Record Under 12½ Hours for Distance.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.—A Cleveland Six has just set a new Culver City speedway stock car mark for 1000 miles. In one of the most severe tests ever given a car in Southern California, Ralph Mulford, veteran driver, piloted his light Cleveland six touring car to another victory when he covered 1000 miles in 12 hours 25 minutes and 22 3-5 seconds.

His average speed was 80.6 miles an hour.

In setting this record, Mulford not only broke the former Cleveland record, but likewise surpassed all records for the Culver City track.

A special gear ratio of 3.25 to one was used in making this run.

The time set for the start was 5 a. m., but it was exactly 5:15 when Mulford was given the signal to start and shot off around the track into a heavy fog, making it impossible to see more than a short distance ahead. The density of the fog was so great that the track was extremely slipper, causing numerous skids which retarded Mulford's speed.

A remarkable feature of the Cleveland performance was the fact that during the entire 12 hours of almost continuous traveling at a high rate of speed for the 1000 miles there were no mechanical adjustments made on the car and no tire changes.

Only five pit stops were made during the run for gas, oil and water. These were the only stops made and at no time was the car stopped for more than a fraction of a minute. The motor was never stopped.

AUTO FACTORIES TO BASE SELLING DRIVE ON SERVICE

sales among farmers are expected this year than ever before.

Just how the automobile industry has gotten "down to business" this year is illustrated in other ways than limiting production to demand. There are other indications that it is setting its house in order. Among them are the manner in which makers are planning more economical distribution of cars, and a determination—to be imparted to the dealer—to give more intensive as well as improved service to buyers.

Service to Be Keynote.

"Service" this year is to be the SALES and service building which will be erected for the Franklin Motor Car Co. of St. Louis at 3949-73 Lindell boulevard, just west of the Columbian Club, which is at Lindell and Vandeventer avenue. A. E. Spielberg, president of the Franklin Co. of St. Louis, said yesterday that work would be rushed so that his firm could occupy it by May 1. The building will front 300 feet on Lindell. It was planned by Spielberg; W. M. Venner, service manager, and the Widmer Engineering Co., the contractor.

fetish of automobile selling. The salesman who does not carry it as his chief stock in trade will receive short shrift.

A third indication is insistance that dealers work for a further general reduction in trade-in allowances on old cars.

Still another is adoption of a program to eliminate evils in sales financing, including better credit investigation systems, shorter time for payments, larger initial payments and discouragement of those financially unable to buy cars.

Truck and Bus Outlook.

The truck and bus end of the motor industry will do a large business this year, but 1925 still is likely to see further concentration of truck and bus making in a few hands, as is the case with automobiles. Nearly 95 per cent of the truck business is done by 20 companies though there are more than 100 in business.

With competition becoming as severe as in the automobile branch, it is obvious that the smaller makers, who must content themselves with only a small part of the total business, will find themselves with less of it than before and will have to adopt heroic measures to survive.

Few Car Changes Likely.

Purchasers of cars this spring need not worry about their cars becoming obsolete early because of new models. Car changes this year are likely to be few, if any. Manufacturers feel that to attempt further changes this year will prove dangerous. In the battle to survive they intend to do nothing that will result in disaster. Changing models in midseason is one of the things that has spelt the end of many a company, or at least contributed to that end.

Vast Auto Business in Sight.

If the statisticians are right, it looks like a good year for everyone in the automotive industry. One estimates that $5,325,000,000 will be spent this year for automobiles and to keep them in operation. He divides that huge sum in this fashion: $1,900,000,000 for new passenger cars, $375,000,000 for new trucks, $1,490,000,000 for fuel and lubricants, $600,000,000 for tires and replacements, $275,000,000 for accessories and $685,000,000 for parts and service supplies, indicating that car purchases will make up only about 43 per cent of this gigantic total.

Tires Better Than Ever Before.

Buyers of automobile tires this year will get more for their money. The life of the average tire has been advanced to more than two years by more scientific construction and by the advent of the balloon, which promises to be the ultimate tire. Previously the average tire's life was a little less than one year. Twenty-five thousand miles should not be uncommon with the 1925 tire.

This improvement will be costly for the tire industry, as it means that its replacement business is to be cut almost in half, an enormous amount financially annually. It suffered similarly, perhaps more so, several years ago, when it brought out the cord tire, which rapidly replaced the fabric type, whose life was calculated at much less than one year.

NO INCREASE IN CITY AUTOMOBILE LICENSE TAX DUE TOMORROW

A MISTAKEN belief that the St. Louis city automobile license fee has been increased is evident in inquiries at the Automobile Club of Missouri. "The idea that there has been a 50 per cent increase in the city tax, because of the increase in the State license fee, is erroneous," said Manager Matt Morse of the club. "The license tax is due tomorrow, but only the State tax is higher than last year."

NETWORK OF BUS LINES IN SOUTHEAST MISSOURI NOW FACT

line from West Plains to Springfield make the schedule complete.

Other Bus Lines.

The Thomas bus line, operating between Sikeston and Cape Girardeau, connects with the lines operating in each direction on State highway No. 16, as does the Yellow Strip line operating between Sikeston and New Madrid.

The Dexter Transfer and Taxi Co. operates bus lines from Dexter to Bloomfield, Dexter to Bernie and Dexter to Poplar Bluff. The J. P. Ward line operates between Malden and Kennett and other lines of no less importance to the traveling public operate between many other towns and cities in this section, so that every community where roads are in good condition is served.

Through service is planned by H. H. Gregory, president of the Gregory Bus Line Co. of Memphis, between St. Louis and Biloxi, Miss. The busses will travel over Illinois concrete roads from St. Louis to Cairo, thence by ferry to Bird's Point and over highway No. 16 to Sikeston and south over highway No. 9 to Blytheville, Ark., and Memphis. This bus service will be very extensive and will start on or about April 1, Gregory says.

Few bus concerns in Southeast Missouri have attempted to handle freight or express, confining their activities to passengers. Freight lines are likely to be established soon, probably next summer, it was learned here.

State Regulation Wanted.

Regulation of the bus lines through State legislation is being urged even by the operators in this section. They believe that with proper legislation owners, as well as the public, will be protected, the operators from unfair competition and patrons from irresponsible concerns.

The bus lines are opening up a new era in this section. Rural school teachers and school children do not think of walking any distance to their schools. Farmers are using this means of travel, finding it more economical than hitching up their horses. Traveling men are using the bus lines to a great extent, finding it more advantageous than on railroad lines.

Usually the bus lines charge the same rates as do the railroads.

ONE THING RUST CAUSES.

Brakes will stay partly locked, even after pressure is removed from the foot pedal, if the brake shafts, particularly the one in the center of the car, are not lubricated. Rust then prevents normal release of brake bands.

MICHIGAN LICENSE FEE IS 55 CENTS THE 100 POUNDS

000,000 there will be an additional construction fund of $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 available in the shape of county contributions and Federal aid rewards. This will mean that at existing costs the State will be able to build between 270 and 290 miles of concrete each year. It built 475 miles of concrete and 350 miles of other classes of roads, mostly gravel, in 1924.

Motor club officials protested a clause in the roads bill whereby municipalities could levy an additional 20 cents the 100 pounds on cars owned within their limits. The protest was especially strong from Grand Rapids, whose consulting engineer has stated that it would be necessary to collect $33 over and above State taxes from every car owner in the city if motorists were required to pay for municipal expenditures due to automobiles.

GOOD HABIT TO ACQUIRE.

Make it a habit to look at the pavement in back of the car on stopping to park. Unconsciously many drivers stop far more suddenly than is necessary, thus leaving tire marks in the case of two-wheel brakes. If you have made that mistake, compensate for it by seeing whether your brakes are in equal adjustment. The tread marks will tell.

SIGNIFICANT COLOR TREND AT AUTO SHOW

Dealers Present at Chicago Exhibition Foresee Big New Car Year.

A distinct trend toward brighter colors, such as characterized motordom six or seven years ago, was a feature of the Chicago automobile show that appealed particularly to Robert E. Lee, secretary-manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association.

He found it fully as significant as the number of "straight eights," the prevalance of cellulose base body finishes or the way in which four-wheel brakes and balloon tires have won to favor. "There is a definite departure from the dead black and the standard colors," he said.

"Another significant thing was the great increase in attendance at this year's show, reported by the 22 show managers who attended the annual meeting of automobile show managers. The Milwaukee show attendance increased 30,000 over last year. Detroit's show had a 14,000 increase. Night attendance at the Chicago show was far in excess of that in 1924. The same was true of Cleveland, Boston and Philadelphia. Other managers whose shows are still to be held said they expected substantial increases in attendance.

"All those show managers believed that these increases indicated a greatly increased public interest in new cars. They believed that, as a whole, people have been running their old cars, not buying new ones, and that now the public is about ready to buy new cars.

"There were several automobile salons and private exhibits wherein were shown custom-built models and cars made by plants not members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. All drew crowds. The largest had a full attendance all the time, despite the $1.10 admission charge.

"Dealers were generally optimistic over the outlook. All the factory dealer meetings were largely attended. There was a very heavy attendance at the sessions of the National Automobile Dealers' Association. Every one there talked enthusiastically and cheerfully. Everybody at the Chicago show seemed to feel that this is going to be a fine year for selling new automobiles."

INJURY TO FENDERS.

A slight fender collision at the front of the car may throw one or both of the headlights out of focus. Headlights are frequently attached to the fenders, or at least to a cross rod braced from the fenders. Thus it requires but a slight change in the position of either fender to throw a headlight out of adjustment. If a front fender has been struck and straightened out again better test the headlights to make sure that everything is in order.

TWO MORE BUS LINES TO START THIS WEEK

One Scheduled to Festus, Mo., and the Other to Eureka and Pacific.

Two new bus lines are scheduled to begin operating out of St. Louis this week, one to Festus, Mo., the other to Valley Park, Eureka and Pacific, Mo.

Bus service from Twelfth and Olive streets in St. Louis to Festus, Mo., is announced by the Missouri Transportation Co. to start tomorrow. The line, it is stated, is to be operated on a regular schedule, and if it proves successful the company plans to put three more buses into service. The route will be over the Lemay Ferry road and down State Highway No. 9 through Pevely to Festus. There is concrete on this route as far as Pevely and from that place to Festus through Herculaneum the road is all-weather, the rough mile and a half south of Pevely having been cindered by the State Highway Department for winter use. The bus with which the line to Festus will be started is a Mason Road King of the sedan type and was bought from the Mason Motor Truck Co.'s St. Louis branch, of which P. L. Chase is manager.

Fred Bauer of Pacific has closed a contract with the Kardell Motor Co. for a Reo sedan bus and states that he will begin this week a regular bus service from a downtown department store to Pacific.

The proposed schedule will be: Leave Pacific at 7 a. m., via Allenton, Eureka, Deicke, Valley Park, Lake Hill, Meramec Highlands, South Kirkwood, Webster Groves, Maplewood and St. Louis, arriving in St. Louis 8:30 a. m. The bus will leave St. Louis at 10 a. m., arriving at Pacific at 11:30 a. m. On the afternoon trip the bus will leave Pacific at 2 p. m., arriving at St. Louis at 3:30 p. m., and leaving the downtown district at 4:30 p. m., arriving at Pacific at 6 p. m.

Bauer has been operating a bus line in St. Louis County for several years. He estimates that the proposed run will justify the purchasing of more busses as soon as Meramec Highlands, Lake Hill and other summer resorts open along the river.

NEW MOTORING PROBLEM.

Motordom has a new problem. With cars equipped with four-wheel brakes it is becoming increasingly difficult to determine how fast such machines were travelling prior to an accident or collision. With two-wheel brakes that lock, the rear tires invariably make long tell-tale marks on the pavement. With a tape measure and a little mathematics the rate of speed is easily determined. But all this is impossible with cars that do not slide because their four brakes do not lock. How are they going to tell how fast a motorist was going prior to a collision? The emergency brakes still lock the rear wheels, but few motorists use these in an emergency, and the four-wheel service brakes would complicate matters anyway.

John Smith and His Car

by FREDERICK RUSSELL

KNACK IN PARKING.

ABOUT a week after returning from a trip I had occasion to drive downtown with Smith in his car. Naturally my attention was directed to his driving, now that he had become pretty well initiated into the great and growing clan of brother motorists.

There was improvement, though it was to be expected that he would not reveal any fine touches of the art of driving. He still drove with the gas lever on the steering wheel too far up, which made his engine roar when he shifted gears. He still kept his foot poised on the clutch pedal, a habit that has ruined more clutches than one. And among other bad habits which a more experienced driver would be likely to discern, he still sounded his horn too far away from the street crossings.

But where Smith actually failed, however, was in his effort to find a parking space for the car and his inability to avail himself of the opportunity when he found one. I think we went around the block three times before he found anything worth considering.

"Why don't you pull in here?" I asked.

"Why don't you ask me to drive the car up a tree?" he growled. "It would be just as impossible."

I pointed to another small space just ahead.

"If that's your idea of a good place," he retorted, "then I'll show you where you're wrong."

He nosed the car in toward the curb, and, stopping barely a foot from the car ahead, declared:

"Now, I hope you're satisfied. The back of the car is way out in the street. And if I try to do better I'll be here for the rest of the day."

That remained to be seen.

"Why don't you try backing in?" I asked. "You never see a chauffeur trying to park his car head first."

"That's all right for chauffeurs," he admitted. "But the average driver can't do it without blocking up the whole street."

Just to prove that he was dead wrong I offered to take the wheel and show him how it could be done. As I suspected, he was only too glad to let me.

Starting at the very beginning of the job I drove up alongside of the car just in front of the space. Motioning to the drivers behind me to pass to my left, I stopped and shifted immediately into "reverse." In passing the opening at such close range it was easy to judge whether the space was large enough to accommodate the car. A space five feet longer than the wheelbase of the car, I figured, would be ample room.

In backing I commenced cutting the front wheels just as soon as my right rear fender was safely past the other car's left rear fender. I then cut straight in toward the curb until my left rear fender was nearly on a line with the left front fender of the car behind. At this point I immediately cut the front wheels in the exact opposite direction, continuing to back at the same time. Here, however, I proceeded very slowly, keeping my eyes on the left rear fender of the car ahead to make sure that I did not come too close to it. By lessening the cut in the wheels it would have been possible to avoid hitting it had I found that I was coming too close. After backing to within a foot of the car behind I straightened up the wheels and drove ahead to a point equidistant between the two cars. Smith's car was then parallel with the curb and not more than a few inches from it. He was amazed at the simplicity of the job.

"That takes practice," he argued.

"Of course it does," I replied. "But you've been trying to park your car in tight places without even trying to learn how it's done. You'll have to learn if you intend keeping up with the increased city congestion.

"And, don't forget," I reminded him, as he was about to rush away from the car on an errand, "always stop a moment to make sure there are no 'No Parking' signs near your car, that your wheels are at least within a foot of the curb, and that you are at least 10 feet from a fire plug. Ordinances in cities vary widely, but if you keep these three rules in mind you will be allowing a sufficient margin of caution to safeguard yourself from a trip to the city hall."

Next Week—Tackling the Transmission.

(Copyright, 1925.)

WORTH BEARING IN MIND.

If you are half way past the left hand road into which you intended turning, better pull over to the right, and slow down and back up instead of suddenly swinging around. If you have almost passed the road without noticing it, the chances are 10 to one that any driver who may be following you would have no clue as to the possibility of your making a sudden left turn.

HELPING SERVICE BRAKES

Using the emergency brake (if it applies to the drums on the rear wheels) helps to make the service brakes more effective. When external contracting brake bands heat, they expand and are less effective. If the internal expanding brakes are used (the emergency brake) the drum tends to expand a little so as partly to compensate for the expansion of the bands of the service brake.

COMPULSORY AUTO INSURANCE OPPOSED

A. A. A. Board of Directors Holds It Would Not Promote Safety.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—After investigation, the American Automobile Association officers have gone on record in opposition to compulsory automobile insurance, which is being discussed by many state Legislatures.

Similar action has been taken by the Motor Vehicle Conference Committee, which represents the national Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the National Automobile Dealers' Association, the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association, the Rubber Association of America and the A. A. A.

The position taken by the association's board of directors is as follows:

"The weight of informed and expert opinion is overwhelmingly on the side of those who contend that compulsory insurance would not prevent accidents.

"Adoption of the principle would be a first step leading to the adoption of state insurance.

"As a safety measure, compulsory insurance was voted down by the Hoover Conference on Street and Highway Safety.

"Insurance experts claim that it will tend to increase accidents, to promote the development of irresponsible companies and to multiply frivolous and excessive claims, all of which would result in the advance of insurance rates.

"It is impossible to ascertain how many owners and drivers of automobiles are irresponsible or what the amount of uncompensated damages are. But the toll that compulsory insurance would levy on all motorists is out of all proportion to uncompensated losses. To guarantee this loss of something like $50,000,000, a compulsory insurance scheme would make the motorists of the country pay additional insurance amounting to something like $547,200,000.

"A few careless drivers, probably less than 5 per cent of those who use the roads, are responsible for the great majority of accidents. Compulsory insurance would penalize all motorists because of this small minority."

"Drivers' license laws in all states, with examination of drivers and strict enforcement of present laws, will do more to reduce accidents than compulsory insurance," said Roy F. Britton, chairman of the legislative board of the A. A. A.

SUMPS ON A MANIFOLD.

One type of intake manifold carries two small sumps, or wells, into which raw gasoline falls and runs back into the carburetor when the engine is choked, as in starting cold. This minimizes the possibility of loading the cylinders with raw gas, diluting the lubricating oil and fouling the spark plugs.

FORESEES CARS NO LONGER THAN DESK

Auto Manufacturer Says They Will Operate at Third of Present Day Cost.

"The day is not far distant when we will travel in automobiles not much longer than our office desks, and at about one-third the cost of present day transportation," says E. S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Co.

"It requires little vision to discern the character of the car that is to come. Perhaps Henry Ford knows better than anybody else just what this will be. Perhaps he had it in mind when he made an offer to buy Muscle Shoals.

"Perhaps Mr. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad was right when he said, 'There can be produced with the cheap water power at Muscle Shoals a kind of metal that will revolutionize the transportation of the world. This will be an aluminum alloy, cheaper, lighter and better than steel.'

"Scientists and engineers know that such a metal can be produced, but to make it economically such water power facilities as exist at Muscle Shoals are needed.

"With aluminum now at 28c a pound and the price of bar steel .0305, imagine the saving that could be made in the weight and economies of automobiles if a new and better metal could be produced to sell near the price of steel.

"Engineers who have visited Europe have watched the development of the little car. Economy of weight, gasoline, tires and upkeep will be the ultimate aim.

"American cars are the most rugged in the world. They have been built to negotiate the mountain roads of New Mexico, Wyoming and California. Wonderful highways are being built everywhere.

"The day is not far distant when we will travel in automobiles not much longer than our office desk, and at about one-third the cost of present day motor car transportation.

"Motors will be lighter, of higher speed, and motorists will change their point of view, since it is no longer a distinction merely to possess an automobile, but a far greater distinction to possess good judgment.

"Shorter wheel bases, smaller high speed motors, more compact bodies, better carburetion, more standard production with fewer of the innumerable models now being offered, will cut the cost of automobile building to a point where nearly every man, woman and child can have one."

POPLAR BLUFF-CAIRO ROAD TRAFFIC INCREASE FOURFOLD IN 6 MONTHS

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Jan. 30.—Traffic on the Poplar Bluff-Cairo highway, Route No. 16, has more than doubled the expectations of the State Highway Department officials in the first six months, according to Frank B. Newton, division highway engineer.

Immediately after the road was completed a check showed approximately 300 vehicles passing over the road in each 24 hours. A recent check showed an average of 1200 vehicles daily over the highway.

"We didn't expect the road to handle that much traffic in three years," Newton said. It is traversed by more vehicles daily than any other road in this part of the State.

INTELLIGENT TAXATION.

In Illinois the taxable horsepower of a Ford is still the same as that of a four-cylinder Mercer. After a while they'll be taxing automobiles on a basis of the number of leaves in the springs, or the number of tucks in the upholstery.

Performance

Hills?—there are no hills any more!

This Rickenbacker Six (new series) possesses super-power.

Hills that worry ordinary cars simply do not exist so far as the Rickenbacker owner knows.

Grades seem to level down and hills roll out flat before you, as your front wheels approach them.

Those you used to labor up, now glide under the car at 35 miles per hour, or faster, if you care to go.

The same power that gives you great speed on level stretches also affords you excess hill climbing ability.

A very large crank-shaft with seven big main bearings and a perfect lubrication system, enable this car to climb grades all day on high without apparent effort—or the slightest after effect.

And, when coming down the same steep grades, you enjoy the comfortable feeling that your car has the greatest brakes ever known.

Take the grades and the sharp turns as fast as you like—your Rickenbacker 4-wheel brakes will guarantee you a safe descent.

And—your brakes are always "there"—for these are purely mechanical, internal expanding brakes. Most dependable known.

It's an amazing car—this (new series) Rickenbacker Six—drive it yourself—'twill be a revelation.

On Auto Row

BACK TO HIS OLD FIRM.

J. M. FALKNER, who for two years up to last October was sales manager of the Weber Motor Car Co., local Studebaker distributer, will be back in his old position tomorrow. Falkner began his Auto Row experience seven years ago as a salesman under Ed. Weber, president of the Weber Motor Car Co. He remained as salesman for three years, then spent a year with the Hudson-Frampton Co., returning to the Weber company as sales manager. Last fall he became sales manager of the Park Automobile Co. Now he is "back home" as sales manager again.

St. Louis Car Makes Good.

GARDNER engineering and production officials, who went to the Chicago automobile show prepared to remain all the week, returned to St. Louis after only a day's stay. They stated that the new Gardner "straight eight" made such an impression at the show that orders for it flooded in. The demand, they said, was so persistent that they literally were compelled to hurry back to the factory to push production of Gardner cars.

Roadster Model Added.

A T-6, SERIES E roadster, and attractively designed, smartly finished, and completely equipped model on the standard six-cylinder chassis, has been added by the Reo Motor Car Co. The colors, desert sand and pyramid gray, are used on the exterior of the body, separated by a belt running from radiator to rear. Heavily nickeled head lamps, parking lamps, and radiator add to the effect of this two-tone coloring. The top is constructed so that it can be raised or lowered in a moment's time. Upholstering is in hand-buffed dual-tone leather, the same material being used for the regular seat and the rumble seat which opens from under the rear deck. Sides, inner surfaces of doors, and other exposed parts of the interior are covered with the same leather. The windshield proper is in one piece, but there are integral adjustable side wings. An automatic windshield wiper is a part of the standard equipment. Opening on the right side of the body is a compartment large enough and long enough for golf bags and a number of other packages.

Schlecht Speaks at Chicago.

Joseph A. Schlecht, head of the Mound City Automobile Co. of St. Louis, was the only speaker at a dinner meeting of Auburn factory officials and distributers at the Blackstone Hotel during the Chicago Auto Show. At a business session preceding the dinner, J. I. Farley, president of the Auburn Automobile Co., and L. E. Cord, vice president and general manager, were the speakers. The Chicago distributer stated that in the first five days of the show he sold 26 of the new Auburn "straight eights" and got 588 real prospects.

250,000-Car Output Planned.

Based on dealer commitments for the next 12 months the output of the Willys-Overland Co., will amount to 250,000 Overland and Willys-Knight cars of both four and six cylinder types, valued at approximately $300,000,000, John N. Willys says. The company's business has been moving upward since early in the fall and every indication is that this trend will continue throughout the year. "This year promises to be one of stable conditions," says Willys, "and therefore it is not too sanguine an estimate to predict the sale of from 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 motor cars for this period."

Lee Again Heads Show Managers.

Capt. Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and manager for the past 16 years of the automobile shows in St. Louis, was for the third time re-elected president of the National Association of Automobile Show Managers at its meeting Wednesday in Chicago. Other officers elected were Herbert Buckman, manager of the Cleveland Automobile Show, vice president; A. V. Comings, editor of Automobile Trade Journal, secretary and treasurer; H. H. Shuart, show manager at Detroit, and George T. Holmes, show manager at Louisville, directors.

Gardner Gets Coast Distributer.

Russell E. Gardner Jr., president of the Gardner Motor Co., announces that his company has made a connection with the Southwest Motors Co. of Los Angeles, which last year sold 6000 cars of another popular make. G. W. Wollocott, general manager of the Southwest Motors Co., closed the contract with W. H. Yeldell, sales manager of the Gardner Motor Co. after noting the enthusiastic reception of the new Gardner "eight-in-line" at the New York and Chicago shows. In addition, Gardner has made connections with large distributing organizations in Chicago, Minneapolis and Syracuse.

Tire Dealers Plan Dinner Dance.

The Associated Tire Dealers of St. Louis will have a dinner dance and installation of officers at 8:00 o'clock Tuesday night, Feb. 10, at Hotel Claridge. Capt. Robert E. Lee, secretary-manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' association, will be the principal speaker and will induct the officers into office. There also will be songs and special music. The managers and sales managers of the various tire factory branches and their families have been invited to attend.

To Be Tire Representative.

John Glenn, president of the Glenn Tire Co., Grand and Pine, who has just been chosen as direct factory representative in St. Louis for India tires, spent three days the past week going through the factory at Akron, O. "I found eevrything very active at the factory; in fact, a new addition to the plant is about completed which will increase the production a third," Glenn said.

Formation of a $1,000,000 corporation to operate "drive it yourself" automobile agencies in cities and towns of more than 2500 population throughout the country is announced by John Hertz, head of the Yellow Taxi and bus services of Chicago and New York. The new company will be a subsidiary of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Co. and will license agencies, aid them financially and sell a new closed type of automobile to operate them on an easy payment plan.

King George's Old Car in U. S.

One of the Daimler cars, with Knight sleeve-valve motor, which the King of England used for 10 years, has been bought by Charles Y. Knight, inventor of the Knight engine. It is on display in the Willys-Overland showrooms in New York.

Shows Large Sales Increase.

While the automobile industry as a whole showed a production decrease of 8 per cent in the first 10 months of 1924, compared with the same period in 1923, Dodge Bros. increased their production and sales 35.6 per cent. The figures for the remaining two months of the year show about the same percentage of gain, according to John A. Nichols Jr., general sales manager. Dodge 1924 shipments to dealers aggregated 225,104 cars, of which 193,861 were of the passenger type and 31,243 commercial. Practically this entire total represents retail sales, as dealers' stocks at the close of the year, were unusually low. Dodge Bros. ended their tenth year with a total of 1,250,000 cars built and sold. Registration records show that more tha 1,000,000 of this number are still in daily service.

SHOULD BE CLEANED OUT.

On some cars there is a tube from each brake drum housing as an outlet for excess of grease thrown off by the wheel bearings. Unless these pipes are kept open, grease is likely to get on the brake bands. Run a piece of wire through the pipes to keep them from getting clogged with dirt.

TIRE MARKS SHOW SPEED.

In a city there is always someone to measure the marks of your sliding tires on the pavement should you be involved in an accident. This shows if you were within the speed limit.

MIRROR NOT INFALLIBLE.

Always signal your intentions of stopping or turning when approaching a city crossing even if traffic is light and you see no car in your rear-view mirror. There may be another machine coming down a street to your rear that does not show in the mirror.

TIP ON BALLOON TIRES.

Balloon tires do not need air as often as cords. It was originally circulated that they lost air pressure very quickly, but experience teaches otherwise. It is logical that lower pressures should show a lower rate of air leakage.

LITTLE SAFETY PERILOUS.

A little safety is a dangerous thing. The Green County Automobile Club of Ohio discovered that a flash warning device lately by one railroad company does not warn motorists when a train is approaching along the tracks of another railway adjacent.

WIRE WHEEL POINTER.

The purpose of having wire and disc wheels without demountable rims is to keep the tires in true. Since the rim is integral with the wheel the tire must remain in true so long as the wheel itself is in true. While demountable rims have many advantages, it is true that careless use of them often results in throwing the tires out of line and making them wabble.

TO WORK FOR STATE ROAD PATROL BILL

Auto Club Representative Goes to Jefferson City to Push Measure.

Gus Vahlkamp, head of the legal department of the Automobile Club of Missouri, departed Friday for Jefferson City to work in the interest of the bill for a State road patrol sponsored by the club.

"The club," said Manager Matt Morse yesterday, "believes such a patrol would more than repay its cost by protecting the highways against detrioration by overloaded vehicles and by seeing that the many car owners who now escape paying license fees pay into the State Treasury as they should.

"There are many cases of car owners splitting their pair of license plates and using one plate on one car and another on another vehicle. In many communities there is no determined effort to collect the State license fees. It is safe to estimate that thousands of Missouri cars pay no State tax.

"A State road patrol also would be able to enforce the laws against speeding and reckless driving on the State highways. As it is, such enforcement of the motor vehicle laws as there is is left to the officials of the various towns. All motorists know how unsatisfactory are the results."

THE GRID CIRCUIT AS HEART OF SET

Correct Placing of the Condenser and Leak Will Solve Many Reception Problems.

In building a radio receiving set at home, few persons stop to think of the vast importance of the grip condenser and grid leak and its proper place and function in a radio circuit. The usual trend of those building their own is to put the condenser and leak in any available space, without the slightest thought to short wiring and its necessary efficiency.

The operation of any vacuum tube, whether it be of the dry cell or storage battery type, depends upon the electronic emission from the filament, which, when heated, throws off electrons that are attracted to the plate by the positive charge which is placed thereon, by the B battery, this flow of current being known as the space current.

However, there is a third element in a vacuum tube known as the grid, through which current must also flow. The slightest charge on the grid will cause a change in the plate current. If the grid charge is negative the electrons will be repelled and the plate current will decrease, while if the grid charge is positive, more electrons will be drawn from the filament and the plate current increases.

We find that if a varying current, such as that carrying an incoming radio signal, is impressed upon the grid the variations of negative and positive charges, caused by the voice or music being received, will be heard in the head phones, through which the plate current must flow.

Correct detection depends largely upon the effect of periodic discharges from the grid condenser and the normal grid potential which is taken care of by the proper value of grid leak.

What the Grid Leak Does.

Rectification of the incoming signal takes place between the filament and the grid. For every impulse or vibration, electrical energy is stored up in the grid condenser, and while the tube is waiting for the next vibration the grid condenser discharges the charge it has stored up onto the grid of the tube. This in turn affects the plate current with an audible variation.

In the interval between these vibrations, the grid condenser must fully discharge itself and permit the plate current to return to normal, bringing the detecting system back to its original point, ready for the next vibration. In the short time before the next vibration arrives, the grid condenser is unable to discharge all of its stored-up energy, therefore a grid leak is placed across the grid condenser or from the grid to the filament. This leak regulates the condenser action, in that it prevents the building up of an excessive charge and offers a path to a slow dissipating charge, permitting it to leak off.

Thus it can readily be seen that placing the grid condenser and leak in any available space is detrimental to its proper functioning, in that the condenser must charge and recharge as rapidly as possible and not be hindered by a length of wire between the condenser and the grid of the tube.

As few tubes have the same internal capacity, the detecting effect depends upon the normal grid potential as determined by the grid leak. Therefore, with different tubes, either a variable grid leak should be used or various fixed leak values must be experimented with to determine the proper value for the particular tube being used. Two megohms have been found to be the average resistance when used in connection with a .00025 condenser. A tube which seems to be functioning improperly may often be made to co-operate properly by connecting a grid leak of lower or higher resistance than that being used.

Causes of Noises.

Noises in a radio set are not always due to defective parts or loose joints. Much of the interference is due to power lines, violet ray machines, elevator motors, electric heating pads, door bells, gas engine plants, telephone bell ringers, street arc lights, trolleys and motors.

Concerning Loop Aerials.

Loop aerials must be rotatable because they are "directional," that is, they receive best in the directions in which the sides point. To cover stations in all parts of the country, then, the frames must be capable of being swung in those directions.

Important of Location.

The signal strength of a radio set will be affected if the cabinet is on a table located near a steam radiator or other metal, or if the aerial lead is parallel to absorbing material. The difference is remarkable sometimes when the set is moved to another part of the room or house.

RADIOGRAMS

A steadily expanding demand for copper and a rapidly growing market for American radio apparatus is reported in Rome by Commercial Attache Henry C. MacLean.

There are four radio broadcasting stations of considerable size in Mexico, besides six smaller ones, Commercial Attache Alexander V. Dye of Mexico City reports to the Department of Commerce. Government license, regulations, and inspection is required for all receiving as well as sending stations. It is estimated that there are 20,000 receiving sets in Mexico City, and 12,000 more in other parts of the country, about 95 per cent of which are of American origin.

A test message sent by the Utah when south of Llancuihue, Chile, was picked up last week by the Rochester in New York harbor, according to a report to the Navy Department. The Utah was using a wave length of around 2500 meters. The amount of power used is not yet known. The distance covered by the message was approximately 4600 miles. Gen. Pershing is aboard the Utah.

Station WEAF at New York City has increased its power to 2000 watts on an experimental basis. This is the first station to use 2000 watts under the test plan.

Loud Speaker Lore.

In connecting a loud speaker to the set, it must be done with the right polarity combination. The permanent magnet in the speaker has a fixed field, and the current which passes through the field coils from the set must be in the right direction, otherwise it will produce a bucking electro-magnetic field and the speaker will not function well. Regardless of the excellence of the loud-speaking unit itself, unless the horn is designed according to correct acoustic principles and has ample proportions, the full effect of the signal will be lost.

Bright Surfaces Best.

The parts of a radio set work best when they are bright. A dull surface usually means that corrosion has taken place, which offers resistance to high-frequency radio currents. As radio-frequency currents travel on the surface, it may pay to brighten the parts of the set sometimes.

MAKING THE SUPER WITH A FEW TUBES

Famous Circuit Noted for Quality Need Not Be Complicated to Give Good Results.

By WILLIS P. CORWIN of the KSD Staff.

The superheterodyne is generally considered as a receiving set of many tubes. Most of the superheterodyne sets and super kits that are on the market and the descriptions that are published in radio periodicals feature the circuits that employ from six to nine tubes. These work with a loop antenna and will not function so well with an outside antenna. A six or eight tube super gives so much amplification that when used with a good outside antenna the audio-frequency amplifying tubes overload and cause distortion.

Those who do not care to be bothered with a loop, as well as those who would like to own a super except for the expense usually asosciated with so many tubes, will be interested in the following description of superheterodynes that employ from one to six tubes. These are all to be used with an outside antenna and will give the same tuning characteristics as a multi-tube super with a little less noise. Only two main controls are necessary with these outfits, namely, the antenna tuning condenser and the condenser which regulates the frequency output of the oscillator.

Making the Super Simple.

Fig. 1 shows a circuit diagram of the simplest superheterodyne that can be built. It requires but one tube. This tube may be of the dry cell type. A larger tube can be used, but little will be gained by doing so, as the dry cell tube gives ample current at radio frequencies to heterodyne incoming signals. D1 and D2 are two crystal detectors which serve as the first and second detectors and complete the super hook up. The vario coupler in the antenna circuit is of the ordinary type. The secondary of this coupler is shunted with a .0005 MF variable condenser. T is a tuned radio frequency amplifying transformer. This can be constructed, but it is preferable that one of the standard tuned stage transformers be used for this purpose. A fixed condenser of .0005 MF capacity is shown shunted across the primary and a variable condenser of like capacity across the secondary. This particular arrangement is the most efficient as the two sections of the transformer can be tuned to exact resonance. The frequency of the primary is set permanently by the fixed inductance and capacity. The secondary variable condenser is adjusted until the secondary circuit is in tune with the primary. After this adjustment the setting of the variable condenser need never be changed and the intermediate frequency will be the only frequency that can pass through the transformer. Some super kit manufacturers specify this arrangement, others suggest only a small fixed capacity placed across the secondary of the transformer (as in figures 1 and 2), while still others recommend only the transfomer with no condensers. The particular type used with this and the following sets is optional though the transformer with the fixed condenser across the secondary is easier to connect with the other instruments and requires no further adjustments.

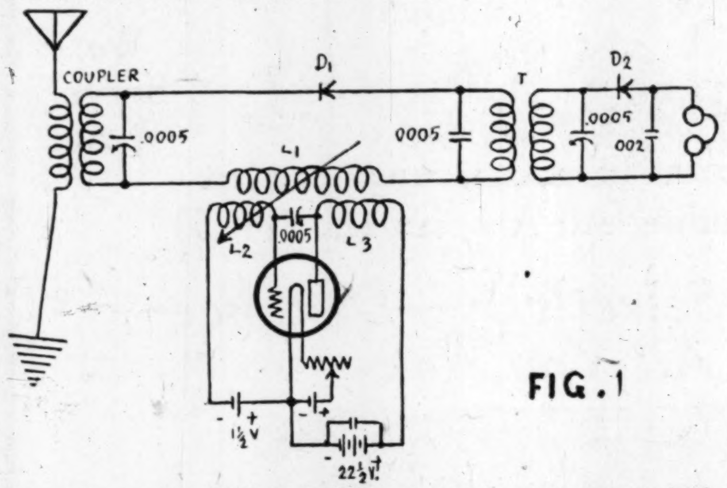

FIG. 1

The oscillator coils, L2 and L3, consist of 70 turns of No. 26 D. C. C. wire, wound in two sections of 35 turns each, on a 2½-inch tube. The other coil, L1, is 10 turns of No. 26 D. C. C. wire wound on a 1⅝-inch tube, and is arranged to rotate within the oscillator coils. Pigtail leads should be made for the rotor connections. Specifications on the remainder of the instruments are given in the diagram.

How the Set Operates.

The theory of the operation of this simple superheterodyne is typical of all superheterodyne circuits and is as follows: The primary of the vario coupler is of the untuned type. It could be tuned by means of a variable series condenser or variable inductance, but this would increase the number of controls and would not gain much in signal strength. As the primary is made to cover the range of wave lengths used by broadcasting stations, the particular wave length or frequency that the set is tuned to is determined by the setting of the secondary variable condenser. Let us assume that this circuit is tuned to 1000 kilocycles, which corresponds to a wave length of 300 meters. If the oscillator is then tuned by means of the oscillator condenser, C2, to a frequency either above or below 1000 kilocycles, a beat note is produced which has a frequency of 30 or 45 kilocycles. This beat frequency is similar in many respects to the beat note produced when two broadcasting stations happen to be operating on wave lengths very nearly the same. In the superheterodyne this beat frequency has a value of from 20 to 50 kilocycles, while in the case of the broadcasting stations it is an audible frequency. This frequency, which is called the intermediate frequency, is amplified by the intermediate stage transformer T and transferred to the second detector circuit, which includes the headphones, crystal detector and the by-pass condenser, C3. The detector circuit rectifies the intermediate frequency and produces the audible tones in the headphones.

Strong Point Is Quality.

This one tube super is not claimed to be a knockout set as far as volume of signals or distant reception is concerned. However, with two sensitive crystal detectors and the proper connections it will give much better results than a straight audion detector circuit. It is shown here and is suggested as a demonstration of the heterodyne principle. Anyone trying the hook up will find that it produces excellent tone quality and tunes with a nicety than can hardly be described.

The circuit shown in Figure 2 is the same in principle as that of the circuit explained above. The difference is that in Figure 2 tubes are used for the first and second detectors and one stage of audio-frequency amplification has been added. A set built from this circuit will give about the same signal strength as an ordinary regenerative receiver and one stage of audio amplification. It may seem that because of this the set would not be worth the expense of the two extra tubes, but when one considers the simplicity of operation of the super-heterodyne, its selectivity, which is so much better than that obtainable from a regenerative receiver that the two cannot be compared, and the fact that such a set will not annoy one's neighbors, it is well worth the price.

A circuit given in Figure 3 is much better than one shown in Figure 2. It employs six tubes and compares readily with any five-tube set of any one of the popular types. The six-tube set is very similar to the four-tube circuit just described. The six tubes consist of the oscillator, first detector, intermediate stage amplifier, second detector, and two audio-frequency amplifiers. The second detector, D2, and the two stages of audio-frequency amplification are exactly the same as those used in practically all audio frequency amplifiers. The oscillator coils are constructed as was described in the details given of the one-tube super-heterodyne. The vario coupler and variable condenser which is placed across the secondary are the same in all three circuits.

Right Tubes Must Be Used.

In Figure 3 T1 is a radio-frequency amplifying transformer which should be matched with the tuned stage transformer T2. These may be constructed by the experimenter, though it is best to obtain them from a dealer or manufacturer who handles standard super-heterodyne parts. It is quite important that the right tubes be used with these transformers. Some intermediate stage transformers are made for use with 201-A tubes and others for 199s.

No device for volume control has been given. If some means for controlling the volume is found necessary the best and simplest method would be to place a jack in the output or place circuit of the first audio frequency amplifier. If this is not sufficient another rheostat could be placed in the positive filament lead to the intermediate stage amplifier tube. This control rheostat would give finer and more accurate control than the jack. When using 201A tubes it is advisable to regulate volume by means of a potentiometer placed across A battery with the center tap going to the grid return of the intermediate stage amplifier tube.

The six-tube super just described is only one of a dozen combinations that can be built for use with an outside antenna. Instead of two stages of audio and one of radio frequency amplification the order could be reversed and a set built employing two stages of radio and one of audio with an increase in quality and a slight decrease in volume. Audio frequency amplification could be cut out entirely. Still better quality would be the result though such a set would not give volume enough to operate a loud speaker on distant stations. Many other combinations work well and can be connected very easily by adding or subtracting from the diagrams shown here or from any standard superheterodyne circuit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Post-Dispatch Radio Department cannot undertake to answer questions by mail.

Q. 1. Do you know the construction of the Voisometer.? If so, will you publish it? 2. What will happen if you put a 1½-volt dry battery in a horizontal position instead of in a vertical position? A. H.

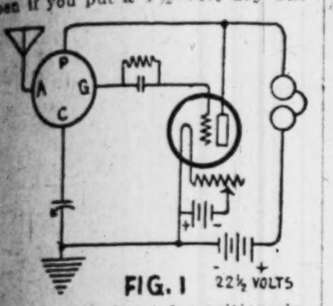

FIG. 1

A. We do not know the exact construction of the Voisometer. The circuit used, however, is the ultra-audion. The actual connections for the Voisometer are shown in Fig. 1. An ultra-audion circuit is shown in Fig. 2. The latter may be improved somewhat by the use of a variometer instead of a fixed inductance or coil. 2. A dry cell will function as well in one position as in another.

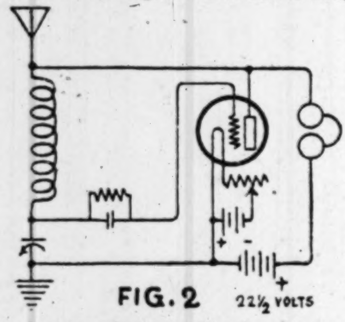

FIG. 2

Q. I have had bad luck with a reflex set, using a crystal as a detector. Please publish a diagram of a reflex set using three tubes, one as a detector. If properly constructed, how far should this set receive? W. McE. B.

A. The circuit diagram that you ask for is shown in Fig. 3. A set using this circuit should receive a thousand miles under favorable conditions.

Q. Kindly publish in your radio columns a diagram of a circuit using two steps of radio-frequency amplification. A. W.

A. Fig. 4 shows the circuit diagram of a set using two stages of radio-frequency amplification and a detector. To obtain more volume from this set you should add one or two stages of audio-frequency amplification.

Q. Would you kindly explain why a crystal set picks up stations broadcasting on 549.1 meters but it is difficult to tune in stations on lower wave lengths? Have a loop aerial with about 50 feet of wire in it. E. A. H.

A. Your loop aerial picks up such a small amount of current that only the high power stations are audible. It is possible that you are using a poor crystal or that your set will not tune well on the short wave lengths, but not knowing the details of construction of your set it would be impossible to recommend any changes in it. The indications, however, are that you need a good antenna. A good antenna is the cheapest method of getting more volume out of any kind of a set.

Q. I have built the radio receiver which was described in the Radio Guide of June 28. The only station that I hear is KSD and the signals are very weak. Can you tell me what the trouble is? A. C.

A. The set you have made is a neutrodyne using but one stage of radio-frequency amplification. The probabilities are that your trouble is in the one-stage radio-frequency amplifier. From your letter and the circuit diagram it appears that the nine-plate condenser used across the secondary of the first neutro-former is too small. Try using a 17-plate instead of a nine-plate condenser. If this does not help, then it is possible that you either have a bad tube, have not neutralized the capacity of the first tube, or the set has not been wired up right. The circuit is a very good one and your set should work well.

Q. I am now using a set with a single WD-12 tube and wish to add two stages of amplification. Can I use WD-12 tubes? S. P. P.

A. If you wish to continue to use a WD-12 tube as a detector it would be more economical and practical to use WD-12 tubes as amplifiers. If you want a little more volume you might use UV-201A or C-301A tubes throughout. The latter would run your batteries down more rapidly and would require more of them. The WD-12 tubes work well in such a set.

VARIED OFFERINGS AT STATION KSD

Wednesday Is New Silent Night and Some Interesting Changes in Schedule Have Been Made.

Through the rearrangement of the broadcasting schedule at Station KSD, listeners who tune in for this station next week will find considerable novelty in the programs. In the first place, the silent night has been changed from Thursday to Wednesday. On Monday, instead of sending out the two theater programs this week, there will be two studio programs—the first a banjo and guitar concert given by Bartlett and Cantillon, the second an artist recital by Mrs. Evelyn Fraley, soprano, assisted by Lila Harrison Cantor, pianist. Both these artists are well known to St. Louis music lovers.

Tuesday night Rader's Orchestra will play the dinner program at the Missouri Athletic Association, and following this there will be an operatic recital in the studio by Ernesto Trovo, baritone; Raphael Adinolfe, tenor; Louise Nichols, pianist; Ralph Primrose, baritone, and Louis H. Bell, violinist. Dr. A. G. Pohlman of St. Louis University will give an address on "Knowledge Is Power" as part of the same program.

Thursday night a Scotch program will be presented, those taking part being the United Scottish Bag Pipe and Drum Band, assisted by Lonsdale Copeland, Scotch, ballad singer. Copeland has for years been a vaudeville artist, and his specialty has been Harry Lauder songs.

Friday night the Glee Club of Illinois College at Jacksonville, Ill., will come to St. Louis for a special program in the KSD studio. In this program they will be assisted by Garnett Hedge, baritone, and Chester Clemens, violinist. Illinois College is the oldest college in the State of Illinois, having been founded in 1849 by a group of Yale alumni, and has had for many years one of the best glee clubs in the Middle West. The program of Friday night is fully up to the college standard. Saturday night the Symphony concert will be broadcast. This will be the tenth in the series given by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra this season.

Why is more Formica used?

MORE makers of high-grade radio sets use Formica panels and tubes than any other kind. The Formica plant is the largest of its kind in the world and it specializes on just one material.

The demand for Formica is due only to the fact that of all panel materials offered it is the best looking, most uniform in electrical quality, combining high dielectric strength with what is equally essential: high mechanical strength.

NEW RADIO SYSTEM ON A METER BASIS

Inventor Has Plan for Broadcast Distribution to Subscribers by Wired Wireless.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—A broadcast distribution system, which if put into effect would practically put radio reception on the same basis as the telephone, has been invented by Edward F. Clement of Washington, D. C. Mr. Clement has assigned his patents covering the invention to Edward F. Colladay of Washington, D. C.

Mr. Clement's scheme contemplates a central station in each city which would pick up broadcast programs and distribute them to subscribers by wired wireless. The system, it is claimed, could either be used for broadcast reception or for wired wireless.

The service supplied by the central station would be on a subscription basis, the cost of which would depend on the use. A meter system is provided to determine the length of time each cubscriber uses the receiver.

Radiograms.

Broadcasting stations throughout the world total close to 1000, of which 550 are in the United States.

The transmission range of the high-power radio stations that terminate in the United States totals over 40,000 miles.

Philadelphia, Pa., has a church broadcasting station. The Gethsemane Baptist Church is listed as WFDD, and has a wave length of 234 meters.

The Essentials of a Good Charger

Here are the five recognized essentials of a good radio storage battery charger: (1) Underwriters' approval, (2) 6-ampere charging rate, (3) an indicating ammeter, (4) low current consumption, (5) long life and low upkeep cost.

The Valley Battery Charger has them all. It has been tested and listed as standard by the Underwriters' Laboratories. It brings no fire hazard into the home.

The charging rate of 6 amperes makes overnight charging possible at a rate which cannot harm the battery.

The ammeter on the Valley Charger shows that the battery is being charged and that the rate of charge is correct.

The current consumption of the Valley Charger is low—about half that required by bulb or liquid type chargers.

Only two wearing parts, the contacts, which last an average of two years, make the upkeep low. The charger itself will last a lifetime.

If you want a good charger, look for the five essentials . . . They're all in the Valley.

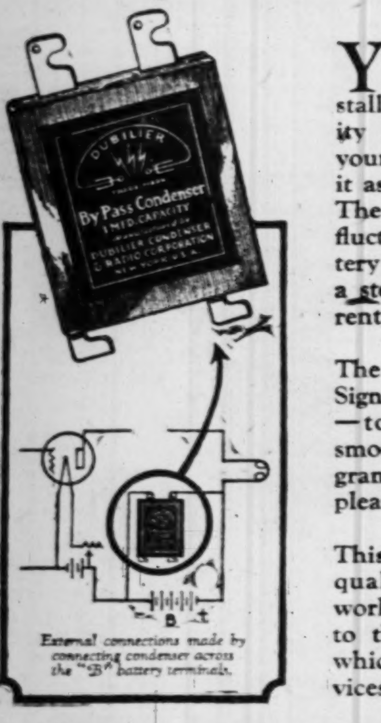
The By-Pass Condenser



External connections made by connecting condenser across the "B" battery terminals.

YOU will get the program clearer if you install a Dubilier large capacity By-Pass Condenser in your radio set. Just locate it as the diagram indicates. The result is that the minute fluctuations of the "B" battery are smoothed out into a steady, even flow of current, devoid of all noises.

The result is astonishing! Signal strength is increased—tones purer—volume smoother. The whole program comes in far truer and pleasanter than ever before.

This By-Pass Condenser in quality of material and workmanship measures up to that high standard for which all Dubilier radio devices are famous.

In the RADIO TESTING LABORATORY

The Cookson set, a St. Louis product, was tried out in the KSD laboratory in the last week and found to be a very efficient five-tube receiver of the tuned radio frequency type. There are two stages of radio frequency, detector and two stages of audio. The tuning is done mainly with the three dials, working on tuning units consisting of specially wound matched coils shunted by 13-plate variable condensers. All tuning instruments have pigtail connections and all wiring is concealed under a false panel. Battery connections are from the rear. Posts are provided for hooking in a "C" battery.

In operation, the set tunes quickly and sharply. It is so adjusted as to give maximum volume without oscillation. Potentiometer control takes the place of extra balancing condensers, which are found necessary on some other sets of this type. In tuning distant stations it was found that in a majority of cases the best volume and quality were obtained with the three dials on the same settings, indicating unusually fine balance of the tuning units. The list of stations picked up in the course of several evenings of testing included Havana and Los Angeles, in addition to many stations large and small in the United States. All distant stations came in with loud-speaker volume.

RADIO CLASSES AT SOLDAN

Radio enthusiasts of every variety will find something to suit their needs or tastes in the courses in radio now being offered at the Soldan High Evening School. In addition to the classes for the beginner who doesn't know a grid-leak from a jack, there is an evening class for those who are more familiar with the elementary phases of the subject and a code class for those ambitious to become radio operators.

If the number of applicants is sufficient, a class in construction for those who would like to build their own sets will be organized. These classes meet on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30. Instruction is free.

"Chocolate Dandies," "Gingham Girl" Are Theatrical Fare

Cancellation of "Passing Show" Traced to Al Jolson's Cold — "Music Box Revue" and "Greenwich Village Follies" Next Week.

IT happened that Al Jolson caught a cold—the most expensive bronchial affliction in history, as it compelled the closing of "Big Boy" in New York, at a loss estimated at $30,000 a week, while the star went to Florida to recuperate. This led to a general reshuffling of productions controlled by the Shuberts, and in the process "The Passing Show" was recalled to New York. It was to have been presented this week at the Shubert-Jefferson. In its stead comes a return visit of "The Gingham Girl," a musical comedy, with a different cast from that which gave the piece at the same playhouse a year ago. It opens tomorrow night.

Another dusky musical comedy, "Chocolate Dandies," begins a week's engagement tonight at the American, with Eubie Blake and Noble Sissle, formerly of "Shuffle Along." The Woodward Players at the Empress are attempting Booth Tarkington's comedy, "Clarence." The Orpheum headliner is Harry Snodgrass, pianist and radio favorite.

Another Cinderella Plot.

ANOTHER version of the Cinderella story is "The Gingham Girl," in which an orphan lass rises to success on a cookie of her invention. The present cast is led by Eddie Fetherston and Madeleine McMahon. It includes Lilian ung, Jack Waldron, Flo Irwin, ancesca Hill, Vera Thomas, Amy nnis, George Thom, Thomas ogh, Arthur Le Roy, Jay and rothy Henriques, Patricia O'Con-, Lottie Lee and others.

Among the entertainers with "The Chocolate Dandies" are Lew yton and Jimmy Ferguson, comedians; Lottie Gee, Josephine ker, Mildred Smallwood, Valada ow, Amanda Randolph, Eliza- th Welsh and a male quartet.

Irving Berlin's third edition of "The Music Box Revue" is booked at the American for a week beginning Sunday night, and will be followed by Miss Ethel Barrymore in Arthur Wing Pinero's "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." The Shubert-Jefferson promises "The Greenwich Village Follies" for next week.

Variety and Burlesque.

OTHER acts at the Orpheum are those of Stasia Ledova, dancer, assisted by Danny re, Rudolph Malinoff and the re sisters; Lillian Shaw, comedienne; Tom Smith, entertainer; a five-scene dance turn called "The que Shop;" Stuart Barnes, ppy" Dyers and a company, and Musical Yorks.

The Rialto announces Ted Claire, an orchestra and dancers; y Kranz and Al B. White, L. Hayes and Monroe ood, and Towa and d'Hortys. new bill beginning Thursday ature Deno and Rochelle, dancers. The Grand Opera program includes Nellie Jay mpany of syncopaters, rion and Harry Young, and Young, the Three g and Long, and Crystal Bennett, Peggy Arnold and Leo Dennis.

In honor of the St. Louis Massenchor, the German Theater Stock Co. will present at the Odeon tonight Emmerich Kalman's operetta, "Faschungsfee." The burlesque show at the Garrick is "Maids From Merry Land."

What They Are DOING IN Movie Studios

ALICE CHAPIN has been added to the cast of "The Crowded Hour," Bebe Daniels' forthcoming picture, now being made on Long Island under the direction of E. Mason Hopper. Miss Chapin was last seen in support of Miss Daniels in "Argentine Love."

Wilfred Buckland, supervising artist of William de Mille's production, "Men and Women," and Henry Stephenson, who plays an important role in the picture, held a reunion the other day. Fourteen years ago they played with Mrs. Fiske in such plays as "Becky Sharp," "Pillars of Society," "Hannelle" and "The Green Cockatoo."

Luther Reed is adapting John Monk Saunders' story, "The Shock Punch," for the screen. This story will be Richard Dix's next picture, following "Men and Women" the William de Mille production in which he is now appearing.

Russ Powell and Mathilde Comont, two of the largest screen comedians in the profession, are to be seen in "Enticement." Neither will reveal their exact weight, but both claim to be "perfect 72's." Powell was formerly a singer in vaudeville and Miss Comont was on the speaking stage before entering the films.

Ronald Colman, leading player in "His Supreme Moment," who was injured last week during the filming of a hand-to-hand fight in the picture, has recovered sufficiently to return to work.

With Anna Q. Nilsson and Ben Lyon signed for leading roles, Frank Lloyd expects to begin production about the middle of February on "The Winds of Chance," an adaptation of Rex Beach's novel of the same name. Miss Nilsson and Mr. Lyon were co-featured in "One Way Street," recently completed in New York. Miss Nilsson has already returned to Hollywood, and Ben will follow at a later date.

"Quo Vadis," the new screen version of Sienkiewicz's novel, made in Italy by the Unione Cinematographica Italiana, will have its premier at the Apollo Theater, New York, beginning Feb. 15.

J. Farrell MacDonald, Rose Tapley and Eugenia Gilbert are in the cast of "The Scarlet Honeymoon," just completed, with Shirley Mason in the star role.

Robert Frazer started work in the leading role opposite Pola Negri in her first Paramount production of the year, "The Charmer." This is the second picture in which Frazer has appeared with the Polish actress. Frazer is playing the part of a chauffeur of a wealthy New York family.

"Playing With Souls," a forthcoming release, has a cast including Jacqueline Logan, Mary Astor, Collier and Joseph Swickard. The story deals with a disrupted American family in Paris, and is a colorful story of life in the great French capital.

Richard Barthelmess' latest starring vehicle, "New Toys," in which for the first time his wife (Mary Hay) appears on the screen with him as his leading lady, has gone through the editing stage and is now being groomed for early

Jane Cowl in Phoney Tragedy, "The Depths"

By HEYWOOD BROUN.
Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.

IT is not enough to say that "The Depths" is poor, for the case against it is stronger than that. The play is phoney. The falsity of this tragedy by Hans Mueller which opened at the Broadhurst Tuesday night is constant and striking. For my part, I not only didn't believe it at any point, but there was hardly a scene in which my doubts were not in full and aggressive rebellion.

"The Depths" is the story of a prostitute and there can hardly have been such another set upon the stage since the days of "Camille." The author is a sentimental silly and Jane Cowl contributes none of the veracity which the dramatist has omitted.

In the first act we find Anna half courtesan and half Elsie Dinsmore. It is lilac time in the old disorderly house. To be sure, one of the young ladies does roar out in rage at a man who has offended her and rips out a monstrous oath. If I must repeat it, "Go to the devil" is what she says.

An Indifferent Performance.

BUT of all the prissy crew Anna, the role assumed by Miss Cowl, is the prissiest. I don't understand how such a fine actress can give so indifferent a performance. Of course, Miss Cowl is too good a player to remain ineffective throughout an entire evening. Here and there, at widely separated points, the flash occurs.

We are told that Anna is a prostitute and the child of a prostitute. But we see only a finicky Miss Precise in every intonation and fairly redolent of innocence. For that matter, the author makes out an excellent case for his own blameless youth. That revelation comes when one of the characters, a man of the world, speaks of prostitution as the profession of passion. He seems to believe that Mrs. Warren and her associates are women swept by a steady gale of lust. He has no conception of them as craft sailing before the trade winds.

In Easy-Going Vienna.

AND so the problem to which the playwright sets himself is basically unsound. Karl, a young composer, falls in love with Anna. At first he does not know her for what she is and that seemed reasonable enough. Even when he finds out he does not cast her off, but takes her to live with him. They occupy two top rooms in the house of Karl's mother. That seemed to me a peculiar arrangement, but the play is laid in Vienna and it may be that things are done quite differently there.

The young composer, however, was true to type. He was "like every other stage genius I have ever seen. There are young composers and I suppose nobody has a right to say to the playwrights of the world, "Upon penalty of death you must not have any character in your play who is just about to write a symphony and plays movements from it off stage during the second act."

Such a law would be unconstitutional in this country, but it would be a fine piece of legislation, for all that. And why, I want to know, must young composers make all their entrances and exits at a dog trot, like Paavo Nurmi rounding the twenty-fifth lap? However, Rollo Peters as Karl, the composer, did a little good work, although he was quite as unbelievable as the rest.

Karl's Odd Misgiving.

THE clash comes because Anna is bored with being a good kept woman and mother. She wants the gayety and lights of the city, but Karl will not let her go out. He is afraid she will be seduced. That is not very sensible of him. In no occupation is the professional so much a prey of emotion as the amateur.

However, Anna is different. She and a girl friend sit down and discuss the life of shame as if it were a fair treat. Indeed these hardened veterans gush about men like high school girls. And in the end Anna does go out and is seduced and then she kills herself. She revolts at the idea that her unborn child shall share her inheritance.

Of the minor roles it seemed to me that Marion Evensen and Edith Van Cleve as associates of Anna were both excellent.

"The Stork" Rowdy and Dull.

A ROWDY play and yet a very dull one is "The Stork," which was presented Monday night at the Cort. Lines which seemed designed to release blushes unleashed yawns. It was most peculiar. The explanation may lie in the fact that each particular verbal concept was made to do duty many times, and even a daring joke may be slowed up to a walk by repetition.

The notion on which "The Stork" is founded has possibilities. The play deals with the havoc which may be worked in the private life of a man when public service turns him into a statesman. On the evening of his honeymoon Lionel Deport learns to his great surprise that he has been made Premier of France.

His party platform is the birth rate and the home, and he is so infernally busy making speaking tours to urge all good Frenchmen to stick to their firesides that he has no time to set foot within his own house. His bride plots with the opposition and is instrumental in bringing about his downfall and his happiness.

Adapted by Ben Hecht.

BEN HECHT has adapted the play from a comedy by Laszlo Fodor, who is, to the best of my knowledge and belief, a Hungarian. Some few bright lines must be credited to the adapter, but it does not seem likely that he has helped the original notion very much. Mr. Hecht has never quite made up his mind whether he is dealing with comedy or farce, and

"Merton of the Movies" Now Comes as a Screen Attraction

"MERTON OF THE MOVIES," with Glen Hunter in the leading role in which he was seen when this comedy of Hollywood played on the speaking stage of the American Theater a week or so ago, is the feature at Loew's State this week. It would seem that there were greater possibilities in Harry Leon Wilson's story for a screen drama than for a spoken one and if the work has been well done "Merton of the Movies" should be a first-class cinema attraction. Also on Loew's bill is Felix Ferdinando and his orchestra, held over for a second week.

Raymond Leslie Goldman's story "Battling Bunyan," which tells of the kid who became the human punching bag for preliminary bouts and was a knockout, has been transferred to the screen and is the feature attraction at the Delmonte this week. Wesley Barry, appearing in this picture as "Kid Bunyan" will appear in person on the stage. Mademoiselle Tenkatsu and her troup of 17 Geisha girls also appear on the stage in a musical attraction. A comedy and the weekly news complete the program.

The movie version of Ethel M. Dell's story, "The Top of the World," is the screen attraction at the Missouri Theater, with James Kirkwood in the dual role of two cousins, Guy Ranger and Burke Ranger, the former a drug addict and the latter a fine type of English farmer. Anna Q. Nilsson appears as Sylvia Ingleton, who leaves her home and friends in England to go to Africa to marry her childhood sweetheart. Guy instead marries his cousin Burke. Others in the cast are Sheldon Lewis and Raymond Hatton. "Einstein's Theory of Relativity" is an added attraction. This picture is an attempt to give the layman some idea of the important new discovery of science. "The Vanities of 1925" is the stage attraction for the week and Harry Philwin and Milton Slosser will present "Because They All Love You." A Mack Sennett comedy is also on the bill.

The feature at the Grand Central is a film version of "When a Man's a Man," by Harold Bell Wright. It is described as "a drama of drawing rooms and open spaces," telling how a man became regenerated in the West. John Bowers and Marguerite de la Motte play the two principal roles. Larry Conley, Grand Central trombonist and co-author with Gene Rodemich of "Easy Melody," "My Sweetheart," "One Stolen Kiss" and other song hits, will make his debut as a librettist-composer when his miniature musical comedy, "Little Mary Ann," is presented at that theater this week. The piece will be played by the same cast which last week appeared in the jazz revue, including Morton Downey, tenor; Kendall Capps, dancer; Sebastian and Nord, Spanish dancers; Lorna Doone Jackson, contralto; Oscar Moss and the Manning Sisters, Grace Brinkley and the chorus.

"Husbands and Lovers" is the screen attraction at the Kings and Rivoli Theaters. Lewis Stone, Florence Vidor and Lew Cody are the featured players. Stone has almost become an institution in the role of the misunderstood and misunderstanding husband. In this picture he has such a role, that of a man married seven years, and taking his matrimonial state as a matter of course. His wife moves along, or rather drifts, in a similar spirit. Since her marriage she has lost interest in her appearance, dress and in fact, practically everything. Then into her quiet and backwater life comes the lover and the fireworks. On the stage at the Kings will be Lewis Williamson, tenor.

"Frivolous Sal," based on an original story by J. K. McDonald, the producer of the picture, is at the West End Lyric and Capitol Theaters together with Lige Conley's comedy, "Fast and Furious." Eugene Dennis, the 19-year-old Kan-

FRENCH SOCIETY WILL PRESENT REVUE-FANTASIE

Representatives of Colony Here Will Give Entertainment in Two Acts of 10 Tableaux.

The Societe Francaise of St. Louis will undertake a new departure by presenting a revue-fantasie called "Tout m'y sourit" next Saturday night at the Toy Theater in the Musical Arts Building. This entertainment in two acts of 10 tableaux was composed by members of the society, and will be acted by representatives of the local French colony. Nine of the scenes will be in French, and one in English.

Among the turns will be a visit from the Veiled Prophet, who promises pungent predictions; a duel, a call from a Martian, a tableau devoted to bobbed hair, and the antics of a certain fabulous animal named "Tarasque," which is cut into segments by a hero, and dissolves into a ballet of pretty girls.

Chicago Opera Casts.

THE first announcement of the complete casts for the local engagement of the Chicago Civic Opera Company reveals many familiar names. Feodor Challapine, who has sung here twice in recital, will make his operatic debut in this city, as will also Miss Edith Mason, a native St. Louisan; and Charles Hackett and Joseph Schwarz, who have sung with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. Forrest Lamont has sung in opera at the Municipal Theater, as have Miss Gladys Swarthout and Miss Elizabeth Kerr. Romeo Boscacci has appeared here frequently with the San Carlo troupe. Rosa Raisa began her career at the Odeon several years ago when she was taken from the chorus to sing a leading role.

The brief season will open on Friday evening, March 7, at the Shubert-Jefferson, with Ponchielli's "La Gioconda." At a matinee the following afternoon, Boito's "Mefistofele" will have its first St. Louis performance. On the evening of March 7 Wagner's "Tannhaeuser" will be sung in German. The casts promised are as follows:

"La Gioconda"—La Gioconda, Rosa Raisa; La Cieca, Augusta Lenska; Alvise, Virgilio Lazzari; Laura, Flora Perini; Enzo, Antonio Cortis; Barnaba, Giacomo Rimini; Zuane, Antonio Nicolich; Isepo, Lodovico Oliviero; a cantor, Desire Defrere, and a pilot, Gildo Morelato.

"Mefistofele"—Mefistofele, Feodor Challapine; Faust, Charles Hackett; Marguerite, Edith Mason; Martha, Lodovico Oliviero; Helena, Flora Perini; Pantalis, Gladys Swarthout, and Nereus, Jose Mojica.

Wade Fallert will give a free organ recital at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Scottish Rite Cathedral. Miss Jeanna Gustavison will be soloist. Mrs. Victor H. Stempf will read a paper on "Samson and Delilah," by Saint-Saens, before the Morning Edude Club Wednesday at Vandervoort Hall.

consequently his story remains far too implausible for comedy and much too slow for farce. Every now and again a nugget of sentiment is introduced, and in these passages the author is so obviously without sincerity that these particular scenes are brassy as polished doorknobs.

Some of the tedium of the evening belongs to whatever person in authority selected the cast. Many excellent players are in the company, but for the most part they are asked to assume roles for which they are entirely unsuited. It is a reasonable convention by which audiences accept the fact that French characters speak to each other in unaccented English. But this license should not permit a director to assign to such parts men and women whose every intonation shrieks aloud the fact that they have never been to France and don't intend to go there.

Actors Miscast.

KATHERINE ALEXANDER, who was so vivid in "The Youngest," is quite borne down by "The Stork," and Geoffrey Kerr, another excellent player, seems colorless in his present thankless role. I was able to laugh only when Wanda Layon was engaged in the proceedings. She plays well and Ben Hecht has done much better for her than any of the others.

Ferdinand Gottschalk, Sam Cort and Morgan Wallace are also entitled to moderately enthusiastic citations. But it is not possible to work up much frenzy. When a play begins with a scene in which the butler tells the maid all the expository information necessary for the audience, you can feel pretty certain that not much fun will come out of that entertainment.

"Hell's Bells!"

THE stage of Wallack's Theater, which has been the scene of so many passing and varied examples of dramatic art this season, gave itself over Monday night to still another. This latest, known as "Hell's Bells!," a three-act comedy by Barry Connors, proved to be a hard-working and artless concoction, farce and comedy and burlesque in turns.

There was, it is true enough, quite some display of merriment among the first-nighters on hand, but much of this rang ominously over the auditorium. On numerous occasions fraudulent joy was to be discerned. But the walls of Wallack's by now must surely be calloused to the cold, thin squawks. Unfriendly echoes have beaten against them with great and heartless persistence.

In the new play there is Stillson, a returned gold miner, back in his Connecticut home town, heralded in advance by a glowing report of vast wealth and generosity. Along with him has come his partner of the Great West. It is only after Stillson's relatives reveal a mean conspiracy against him that his partner allows it to be known both of the miners are cold broke. The plot has principally to do with the scheme of the relatives to cause Stillson to be adjudged incompetent in order that they may take over his supposed fortune.

How It Gets Its Name.

TO while away the intervening minutes of the various acts, scenes are staged showing a young couple arriving at an engagement by farcical methods, this to be followed by a similar romantic detour on the part of Stillson himself.

Something of the tinsel glee which I have mentioned rises at the end of the second act. Here Stillson's heretofore dull and unpleasant partner lifts a small field gun from beneath his belt and defies the sanitarium guards who have come to take his pal, Stillson, away.

"Hell's Bells!" is so called for good and sufficient reason. Stillson, when exasperated, overjoyed or excited, exclaims with grand and sweeping manner: "Hell's Bells!"

"The Small Timers."

FOR several seasons that smart and knowing sector of the Broadway stage has been pardonably aching for a burning satirical comedy based upon the small-time of vaudeville. A piece in three acts by Knowles Entrikin, which was presented at the Punch and Judy Monday night as the opening bill of the new and aspiring Art Theater, is not all that, but moments of its are deliciously near.

Two queens of the four-a-day varieties provide in the second act of "The Small Timers" as hilarious and truly comic a 40-minute routine as there is to be found in the New York theater. It is here that "Wind and Wave, the Breezy Sisters," come upon the stage of the Playtime Palace to perform a song and patter act.

Wind and Wave, this tough brunette and her blonde cutie partner, pretend to be the lowest, rankest, brassiest kind of hams. Now, these two ladies either possess a remarkable talent for faithful mimicry or they simply came out and did their act. I shall, at this point, venture no such perilous risk as to make a guess.

Direction Is Amateurish.

ASIDE from this second-act detour of utter joy, the play which introduces this new organization into the realm of the little theaters can be said merely to be an acceptable attempt. None of its players bears a name of prominence in our midst, and few of them deserve any such consideration. There is an air of semiamateurism about the direction and the action of the piece is carried uncertainly throughout.

It is merely the story of a rich boy and girl who flew away from their Westchester homes to win fame and fortune in the drama. I think several of the acquaintances they made in the Jersey varieties were extraordinarily well cast for the occasion, and Leslie John Cooley acted the runaway trouper with proper youthfulness and shyness.

Here is a field rich in possibilities for the thoroughgoing comedy-dramatist. I cannot quite forgive George S. Kaufman for having failed to rush in upon it long ago.

Only Two Roles in "Beyond."

CAREFULLY titled in "Beyond," a translation by Rita Matthias from the German of Walter Hasenclever, which was presented Monday evening at the Provincetown Theater, with settings by Robert Edmund Jones. The audience never came within grasping distance of its meaning.

Of all the expressionistic plays that have come this way "Beyond" is the most intricately unintelligible. In the playbill it is noted that the playwright "has endeavored to embody soul-states in a theatrical piece." No doubt if you are the kind of person who gets any fun out of the embodiment of soul-states "Beyond" will give you a rousing evening.

As far as the protesting mentalities gathered Sunday night, it is a tale told of the gray stretches of suffering that lie between love and honor. On the night that she hears of her beloved husband's death, the heroine pitches into the arms of his best friend. For five acts they agonize over their treason. To complicate the agony, they fall in love.

To point the effect, or possibly to break the monotony, 22 staccato scenes rattle through the evening. Scenery is chiefly conspicuous by its omission. There are only two characters, assisted occasionally by an off-stage moan and a couple of clanks.

Helen Gahagen and Walter Abel.

WHETHER or not Helen Gahagen gave a good performance it was impossible to tell. The emotion, or idea, or the bad news she was attempting to transmit was so garbled in the dispatches that her transmission method could scarcely be gauged. Certain of the more elemental bursts which poor primitives in the audience could comprehend seemed admirably let loose.

Walter Abel, on the other hand, played with an inflexibility that dropped at times to monotone. At that, he might have been applying the more correct interpretation to the jets of talk.

For the talk came generally in jets. The lines, it seemed, were not translated; they were decored. An example of their general purport:

She: "What is reality?"
He: "Nothing."
She: "I am sitting beside the fire."
He: "Beyond there are oceans."

release. It is a comedy of domestic life, and the cast, in addition to the star and his wife, includes Catherine Wilson, Clifton Webb, Frances Conlon and Bijou Fernandez.

The featured feminine role of "The Easiest Road," that of Marie Laurant, a celebrated Parisian star, has been assumed by Helene Chadwick.

Bess Meredyth has completed the script of "Nothing to Wear," Hobart Henley's next production. Henley will start work on the new production within the next 10 days. "Nothing to Wear" is the first story Miss Meredyth has completed since her return from Rome, where she wrote the adaptation of "Ben Hur."

Orville Caldwell was severely injured during the filming of "Sackcloth and Scarless," when his horse shied. The actor's left leg was caught in the stirrup, wrenching the knee so badly that he is now wearing a plaster cast.

Thomas Meighan finished his coal mining work in "Coming Through" last week at the Paramount Long Island Studio. Director Edward Sutherland worked his staff overtime in order to finish on schedule. A week or more will be devoted to cutting, editing and titling.

"Don Q.," which is to be Douglas Fairbanks' next vehicle, is an adventure-romance set in a Spanish locale. It is a sequel to "The Mark of Zorro," built up from the novel, "Don Q's Love Story," by Hasketh Prichard. The scenario was prepared by Jack Cunningham.

George Banacroft, Vivian Oakland and Steve Clements have been cast with Tom Mix in "The Rainbow Trail," sequel to Zane Grey's "Riders of the Purple Sage," which the Western star is now making.

Victor Heerman, who directed "The Confidence Man" with Thomas Meighan, has been signed up to direct Meighan's next picture, "Old Home Week," an original story written by George Ade. Heerman arrived in New York last week from the west coast with Thomas Geraghty, who has been working on the script with Ade.

Holmes' Fourth Travelogue

"ALONG THE RIVIERA" is the topic of Burton Holmes' next Travelogue, the fourth in his series, tomorrow night at the Odeon. He will take his audience on a photo-journey from one end of the Riviera to the other, combining the views of the French Riviera with those of the Italian. Motion pictures will show the sports, indoor and out, as well as the charm of scenes taken in Cannes, Nice, Monte Carlo, Monaco, Bordighera and San Remo.

There will also be shown a number of motion pictures showing motoring along the Grand Corniche, panoramas of the Maritime Alps and the Mediterranean shores, as well as a number taken from an airplane.

Restless Sleep Due To Gas On Stomach

When Gas is Removed, Sound Sleep Comes

"I have received wonderful benefit from Adlerika. I can sleep ALL NIGHT now, something I could not do for years." (Signed) Cora E. Noblett.

Note: Sleeplessness is often caused by gas and sour decaying food in the system.

Intestinal Evacuant

There is now offered to the public a liquid preparation which is not only a wonderfully effective and QUICK intestinal evacuant, but which also seems to stimulate the glands of the intestinal tract and to cause expulsions of flatus (GAS). This preparation, known as Adlerika, is a valuable agent for the purpose of cleansing the bowels of matter which has been in the system a long time and which other less effective means have been unable to dislodge. It is often astonishing the great amount of matter Adlerika draws from the intestinal canal—even right after a natural movement it sometimes brings out unsuspected quantities of additional matter. Many times it brings out much GAS, thus relieving pressure in the abdomen. Adlerika is especially valuable when PROMPT action is necessary or to encourage the elimination of metabolic poisons through the bowel.

In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation or gas on the stomach and headache (when due to bowel inaction), a single spoonful of Adlerika often produces surprising and gratifying results. In cases of obstinate constipation or stomach trouble, if Adlerika does not bring relief in 24 to 36 hours the advice of a reputable physician should be secured.

Reports From Physicians

"I congratulate you on the good effect from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"Adlerika is the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

"I prescribed Adlerika with highly satisfactory results." (Signed) Dr. A. C. C. (Name given on request.)

"I can't get along without Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. W. H. Bernhart.

J. E. Puckett (a user of Adlerika) writes: "After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the impurities eliminated from my system."

Adlerika is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicine because of its REAL and QUICK action. Sold by leading druggists everywhere. In St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and Enderle Drug Co.

SULPHUR HEALS SKIN ERUPTIONS

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

Nine St. Louis Students of Braille Given Certificates by State Association.

Nine St. Louisans whose sympathy for the blind has led them to learn Braille and to operate a Braille writing machine so they can transcribe books for the blind in their spare time, were given certificates attesting their proficiency by the Missouri Association for the Blind at its annual meeting Thursday night.

Ninety-eight per cent perfect in their work are these adepts, Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick, City Librarian, told the audience as he delivered the certificates to the graduates. "Is your stenographer so efficient?" he asked by way of contrast.

The nine are at present transcribing works for the Public Library through which they will be available to the blind. They are: Mrs. Blanche Klein of Clayton road, whose book is "The White Linen Nurse;" Mrs. Florence McPheeters, 5099 Waterman avenue, "The Choir Invisible;" Mrs. Mary Boland, 1819 Elliot avenue, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch;" Miss Ida Dietz, 6329 Isabelle avenue, "Molly Make-Believe;" Miss Ethel Hilliary, 5235 Page boulevard, "The Siamese Cat;" Mrs. Claudia McMinn, 1509A Semple avenue, "The Call of the Wild;" and Mrs. Edna Meissner, 6321 Washington avenue; Mrs. Harry Haase of Clayton road and Stephen Kelsoe of 4724A Kensington avenue, who are transcribing short stories.

There are some 60 letters and word-signs in the Braille alphabet, all based upon the arrangement of six dots, as on the "six" of a domino. The graduates mastered these and the operation of the Braille writer which, by the use of six keys, places the dots in position to be read by touch after they are embossed upon the paper. It takes about three minutes to write a page of Braille. Paper for the books is donated by a friend of the blind and the books are bound in the Public Library bindery, so that expense is almost nothing, and, by the aid of these volunteers, almost any volume is available to the sightless of St. Louis.

Robert Johnson was elected president, W. F. Carter vice president and Arthur Barnes treasurer of the association at last night's meeting. Thomas Dunn and William N. C. Claggett were named to the board of directors.

Annual reports which showed the volume and character of the association's work for the blind in St. Louis and elsewhere in the State were read and approved and W. L. Sturdevant, president of the Missouri Commission for the Blind promised State aid in developing the library of Braille books for the blind in a brief speech.

DEERING'S PLAYING IN DEBUT IN THE EAST IS PRAISED

"A Young Artist of Unusual Attainments," Says Critic of St. Louis Pianist.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Unusual praise was won by a St. Louis pianist, Henri Deering, who made his first American appearance recently as soloist with the State Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Waghalter. Deering played Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto, in C Minor. He has been living and studying in Paris, after an extended sojourn in Coblenz as a member of the army of occupation, holding the rank of a Lieutenant of infantry.

"The average young pianist," reported Deems Taylor in the World, "about to make a debut with orchestra, chooses something by Beethoven or something by Schumann, with the same fatal automatism that prompts a college valedictorian to speak on 'The Voyage of Life.' There, quoth premonition, if Mr. Deering has the staggering audacity to play a concerto that has not long since been beaten into insensibility, he must be either very good or very bad. In either case probably he will be worth hearing.

"Mr. Deering is very good. He played the concerto with fine authority and structural insight, revealing a clean, articulate touch, a good dynamic range and a sensitive feeling for the poetry and drama of the work. He lacks the crashing strength of certain better-known Titans of the piano, but his excellent sense of proportion enabled him to plan his reading so intelligently that his climaxes, when they arrived, were invariably satisfying.

"Altogether he gave an impressive account of a difficult and beautiful work, and may safely be set down as a young artist of unusual attainments."

LIGHT AIR EXPRESS ROUTE

41 Beacons to Illuminate Pathway From London to France.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—In readiness for the night air service to Paris, planned by the Imperial Airways, 41 new flashing beacons have been installed between London and the south coast of England, to indicate the boundaries of the four airdromes and landing grounds on the route. Fed by acetylene gas stored in cylinders, the lights will operate for six months without attention.

New air expresses, each driven by a big engine in the nose of the machine and two smaller motors in the wings, to minimize the risk of forced landings, will be used in this service.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Skinny men

All over this big broad land of ours thousands of weak, underweight men are putting on pounds of good healthy flesh with McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Charles Henry Denman, of Suffern, N. Y., who was gassed in France, gained 8½ pounds in three weeks. Read what he says:

"One day I heard of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—just about three weeks ago. I got a box and started to take them. Since then I have taken two more boxes, all but 16 tablets. The result is wonderful—never since I was gassed have I been so strong and felt so good. I have already gained 8½ pounds."

For weak, run down underweight nervous men, women, children. 60 tablets 60 cents.

Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Enderle Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co. sell lots of them. "Get McCoy's, the original and genuine."

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For Real Effectiveness, This Old Home-Made Remedy Has No Equal. Easily and Cheaply Prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Have Color in Cheeks

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.

In Studio and Gallery

AN exhibition of 25 water colors by E. Olaf Olson, a young Swedish painter wose popularity in the East is rapidly increasing, is the result of a recent visit to New York made by Arthur Kocian. The paintings have just arrived and the exhibit will open tomorrow.

Olson, born in Minnesota, has been painting in Gloucester during the past few seasons * * * a fact immediately evident in his wharf marines of such directness. These subjects and this manner of painting constitute undoubtedly his best work in this display. Strong hulls and spars of brilliant water craft, and their big, certain reflections in vivid waters are naturally attractive to the Scandinavian temperament preferring clarity rather than subtlety.

With as little washing as possible, Olson straightway plies his swift, sure brush strokes. To get it said quickly and clearly seems his aim. No weaknesses of composition or color are camouflaged beneath dull washings of convenient grey or blue.

Street scenes in New England and clear outlines of Swedish villages with their bits of foreign-looking architecture are some of his variations of subject. Architectural interiors of Moorish temples done in vivid colors and with more freedom than tight accuracy represent another phase of his experiment with subject.

"Brooklyn Bridge" and its companion picture in like tone, are still different in character. These are the only attempts at subtlety, relying on their half tones to produce the soft effect, thus merely reducing his usual force to half strength. The pictures are sightly, well enough, yet vary from houbig, loud, colorful ones only because the soft pedal has been put on them to temporarily mute their sound.

A difficult feat on which Olsen is to be commended is his figure study. It is placed in the woods, where a young woman in gleaming white linen reclines upon a cleared spot of uneven ground. The pose is extremely difficult, the levels of the ground necessitating many foreshortenings. The effect of sunlight through the trees is strongly done.

These pictures will remain on display for three weeks, when they will be replaced by an exhibit of paintings by Emma Ciardi, an Italian painter, whose work came to America for the first time two years ago, and were introduced to New York by the Howard Young Galleries. Her themes are eighteenth century Venetian and are more decorative in their lyrical way than realistic. These will comprise the March exhibit at Kocian Gallery.

A JURY composed of Henry Thiede and J. Allen St. John of Chicago and Adolph Blondheim of Kansas City, has been chosen to decide the winning pictures of the Post-Dispatch Black and White Competition now in progress at the Artists' Guild. Points on which the pictures are to be judged—whether from the standpoint of reproductive qualities, purely artistic merit, technique in the black and white medium, composition or subject, have not been announced, so speculation on the winning pictures is not so simple. However, the prize awards are to be made immediately and will be announced within a day or two.

FRANK NUDERSCHER'S one-man exhibition which was scheduled for either January or February at the Newhouse Galleries, has been postponed until a little later in the spring, by which time the Newhouse Galleries will have moved into their new quarters, where they will be well equipped to display fine paintings to the best advantage.

FIFTY photographs and drawings illustrating the progress of stagecraft within the past 20 years from the current exhibition at the Art Department of the Central Public Library. The collection was assembled by the editors of Theatre Arts Monthly and includes examples of the work of foremost modern designers.

Tendencies evolving from the prosaic stage sets of 15 and 20 years ago are clearly indicated. Footlights as the only lighting and back drops as the only settings have been replaced by elaborate and expensively simple improvements.

The most outstanding successes in practical examples of stage design under the new movement are here shown. Also several theories yet to be practically executed are of interest.

Robert Edmond Jones, director of the work with the Provincetown Players, who is said to be the greatest American designer, is represented here by photographs of his memorable sets for "The Emperor Jones," "The Hairy Ape," etc. Lee Simonson, whose work with the New York Theater Guild has been heralded throughout the country, is the designed of the sets for "Lilliom," "The Failures," "Peer Gynt," "The Faithful," "Back to Methuselah" and other equally prominent productions of art. Photographs of many of these sets are shown now at the library.

Persons having seen "The Miracle" will remember the powerful scenes which were designed by Max Reinhardt.

Boris Anisfeld's voluptuous and voluminous stage settings are ever a source of admiration and wonder. One of his designs is included here, that for "Le Roi de Lahore."

A simplicity showing unmistakeable genius gives the power to the set designed for "Emporung des Lucius" by Jessner, a Continental producer. Steps and steps and steps lead from one level to another and down again, then across, then up, then down. They are white, without ornament. The back curtain drop is plain. Such classic simplicity is so pure that one trembles for the actors, since a hint of an error or the least slumping from character would shine mercilessly out like a glaring light. The set is magnificent.

Motion pictures are represented, also. Settings as extraordinary as those fanciful, captivating, powerful ones used in the German film, "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari," could not possibly be overlooked. "The Golem," another German film but of less art, in my opinion, contained unusual and modernistic sets. Douglas Fairbanks' "The Thief of Bagdad," has been chosen to represent American-made movies in this collection. Another American film whose sets deserve especial notice but which does not seem to be represented here, is Nazimova's "Salome."

The original sketch of sets for "The Firebrand," now running in New York, made by Woodman Thompson, and John Wenger's drawings for "The Follies" are shown here and are especially attractive.

A SLIGHT delay has occurred in the shipment of the 15 Savage paintings to comprise the February exhibition at the City Art Museum, which will make the show open the latter part of this week instead of tomorrow, as formerly planned.

ROBERT KISSACK, supervisor of drawing in the St. Louis Public Schools, will deliver a lecture at the City Art Museum Saturday afternoon, at 3:00 p. m. on the subject of "Art in Industry."

On Feb. 18, at 3 p. m., F. Oskar Hagen from the University of Wisconsin will lecture at the Museum on "Albrecht Durer." Both lectures are free and the public is cordially invited.

THREE LECTURES TO BE GIVEN HERE ON CARE OF GARDENS

Seriesof Lectures Will Be Delivered at Wednesday Club During Next Two Months.

A series of three lectures on "The Garden and the Great Outdoors" will be given at Wednesday Club Auditorium during February and March, by the Garden Club of St. Louis.

The first lecture will be given by Louise S. Hubbard on Wednesday evening, Feb. 11, her subject being "Garden Design." Monday, March 2, Frederick Payne Clatworthy will talk on "Wonders of the West," illustrating his lecture with stereopticon views in natural colors. Saturday, March 21, Loring Underwood of Boston will speak on "English Homes and Gardens in Surrey."

Course tickets will be sold at $2.50 for the three lectures, single lectures at $1 each. The St. Louis Garden Club is one of 75 such organizations composing the Associated Garden Clubs of America. Its purpose is to stimulate interest in amateur gardening.

Special Music at St. Peter's Today.

At the 4:30 o'clock service this afternoon at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, the choir of the church, under the direction of Charles Galloway, organist, will be heard in a number of special musical appointments, including excerpts from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," and Sir George Martin's setting of "Hail, Gladdening Light," one of the glories of the English school of church music. Incidental solos will be sung by Miss Marie Becker, soprano; Miss Margaret Stille, alto; Mr. Herbert Kragh, tenor, and Mr. Arthur Brigham, bass. Mr. Galloway will play one organ composition—Bartlett's "Toccata" in E major.

Flotsam of a Klan War: Blinded and a Widow at 25

Yet She Is Determined to Push on the Work of Her Husband, S. Glenn Young, Two-Gun Raider of "Bloody Williamson"

Will Make Her Home in Herrin, the Scene of Young's Active Life and His Death Where She Will Rear Their Two-Year-Old Son—How She Was Drawn Into the Fight There and the Tragic Consequences—Why It Is Likely That the Liquor War in Williamson County Will Continue, With Some Illustrations of the Tactics Employed by Both Sides.

By FREDERICK H. BRENNAN

WHITE-ROBED horses carried the pallbearers beside the hearse. Knights of the Ku Klux Klan—men are arguing bitterly as to their number—surrounded the newly built mausoleum. An army, it seemed, had followed Glenn Young to this little house in the cemetery. The restless tramp of feet startled the sparrows among the tombstones and made the sod ugly. It was a brave show, intentionally ornate.

His followers took courage from it. They believe that Glenn Young died in a just cause, so would not forsake him in the final hour with the enemy watching. March bold to the graveyard! Lay him away with sturdy pomp. Parade the flaming cross! Let the sky glint on the rifles of militia there to preserve order among the mourners. Men are not yet at peace with one another in Williamson County. It was wise, thought the klansmen, to demonstrate their strength at the funeral service.

But when the last ritual was said, and the fallen leader rested alone in his vault, and his men had gone back to their work and their war with neighbors who do not think as they about law, citizenship or religion—a widow and child were left.

Mrs. Glenn Young was not comforted by the funeral show. To her sightless eyes it must have seemed a futile pageantry indeed. Friends told her about the funeral, saying those words that friends say to widows. They spoke of the flowers, the lovely flowers sent in loyalty and sympathy by hundreds. She must have delighted in flowers before the blackness came, and even now can enjoy their perfume—but widows do not enjoy the perfume of funeral flowers. Perhaps her friends murmured praise of the music but it was funeral music in the dark. Certainly, she was told of the thousands who marched in respect for Glenn Young, yet her comfort in the thought of such a demonstration was stolen away by pitiful envy. They could take leave of him with their eyes. For her, only a groping in the gloom, the touch of a coffin lid, the cold of a still face.

Tears were shed for the slain leader, but those others who gave way to sorrow wept in the sunshine. To her, whose grief is deepest no light comes through the tears. They burn in her useless eyes like molten drops in the night. The few who have seen her blind eyes crying know that the crueller tragedy lies not with the man who passed but with the woman who remains.

The Second Generation

She rests on a bed in a hotel room at Herrin. Some day they will bring little Bobby in, and he will snuggle close not understanding why his mother seems to fumble as she reaches a hand to him. Bobby, being only 23 months old, has escaped the hurt of this so far. But Bobby's time of anguish will come. Mrs. Young feels its approach more terribly, perhaps, than the past. Time will take away the pain of what has happened, but there is no forgetting the ever present. One cannot forget a fatherless son who must be cared for with uncertain hands and guided by blind eyes.

"Oh, what have I done to be blinded and widowed in this way?" she sobs.

The voices of women friends who stay with her night and day break in, soothingly. They almost hide the sound made by the scuffle of a sentry's feet on the pavement below, or the bawled order of a national guard sergeant. They cannot, however, answer her question.

She moves her head on the pillow and she knows the thoughts behind that black band where her eyes once gave her the sights of the world. They were young and laughing eyes not so long ago, but now their stare sickens the heart, and there is a scar above one brow. An assassin's bullet intended for her husband made that scar one evening last May, and other bullets, cutting deeper took away her sight.

Her hands grip the counterpane during spells of sobbing. They are shapely hands, beautifully kept; hands that had nothing to do with bootlegging wars or gun fights. The body that lies wracked with grief is still girlish—she is not yet 25—and small under the weight of tragedy. She has been robbed, you know, seeing her there; robbed of loveliness, of sight, of her husband, of happiness.

"Carry On"

Strangely incongruous talk surrounds her. Her visitors press her hand and utter gruff unfinished sentences about "carrying on your husband's work" and "more raids" and "no backing down now" and "your huband's [illegible]." Reporters plague her for comments on the course of inquests at the City Hall and want to know her plans.

The war still swirls about Maude Young, stricken wife of a dead leader. It is a war that engulfed her when she was a bride, caused her married life to be one long apprehension, and now in her despair, calls her forth to battle.

"Do you feel that this fight to clean up Williamson County should continue?" a reporter asks.

"Yes. It must," she cries, and you guess she has summoned all her courage to appear brave before her husband's grim-faced friends.

She seems to have seen so little of the war and it has made her suffer so greatly for the glimpse. Talking with her you wonder if she even saw very much of S. Glenn Young, the principal warrior. He is not remembered by her as a killer, a relentless feudist, a two-gun man, a swaggering braggart. To her Glenn Young is a martyr, fallen in a great cause.

"He was trying to do his duty," she tells you, steadying her voice which always falters on the first "he." "He wanted to keep Williamson County clean. It wasn't religious or race prejudice with him. And he didn't want to kill anybody. He often told me, 'Any fool can go out and kill people, but I'll clean up this County without a shot.' And he kept his word, only shooting when his murderers shot first."

MRS. MAUDE SIMCOX YOUNG

A portrait study of Mrs. Young, made before she was blinded and her face disfigured by buckshot intended by the assassins for her husband.

Maude Young is bewildered that there should be raging such a war over law enforcement in Williamson County. Her viewpoint of law has been since she was a girl from the Law's side, because she is the daughter of an officer.

The late George Simcox of Danville, her father, served as chief deputy United States Marshal in the Danville district and later as night captain of police in Danville. He shot and killed a prisoner who was attempting to escape and the resultant inquiry is said to have broken him. Yet there was no bitterness in him toward the law; he honored and tried his best to enforce it; and his daughter became imbued with the code.

Trained in high school and at business college in Danville, Maude Simcox was given appointment as private secretary to Federal Judge English in 1920. Here there was the same background that she had at home—always the Law, the tracking down of evildoers and their punishment. She must have been a little startled by the vast influx of Federal prisoners charged with breaking the prohibition law to Judge English's court at Cairo. She believed in prohibition.

Then came S. Glenn Young.

A Romantic Figure

A court attache pointed him out to her the first day he brought prisoners before the Judge.

"That's Glenn Young," said her informant, "he's the crack clean-up man of the department. Square as a die and a tough egg. He's killed 30 men, I hear."

He was a romantic figure to Maude Simcox. A short, powerfully built body, a rather handsome face, steady, even bold eyes, and a slow, quiet voice. He fascinated her. She met him the next time he came to court, and drew him out on his exploits, girlishly breathless.

For his part, he seemed willing to talk. She learned of his 10 years' service as a Government officer, and how dangerous duties had called him to many places. He had chased auto thieves in Kansas and train robbers in Oklahoma. In one fight he had beaten Black Meyers, a bad actor, to the draw. During the war he had gone into the mountains of Tennessee and Georgia after draft dodgers, and single-handed had rounded up the Crawleys, a desperate lot, who swore to kill any man sent after them.

S. GLENN YOUNG.

A photograph of the famous klan raider posed as an illustration for his book of memoirs.

"Do you think the law can be enforced, whether people want it or not?" she asked him.

"Sure," he replied in that soft, slow, confident way, "I can clean up any damn town in the United States."

She saw only the ideal in Glenn Young. To her he was not the deadly agent of the Law, in whom many scenes of bloodshed had left callous places and perhaps a thirst for more blood. To her he was the brave fighter for the right, and about him lingered a suggestion of the days of romance when men upheld the Law by quick trigger fingers.

Her father objected strenuously to her growing fondness for Young. He knew Young's reputation. He knew that Two-Gun Young was a trouble-maker, and like all trouble-makers led a stormy, dangerous life. More than that, Young was married and the father of two little girls. Although he was separated from his wife, Mrs. Pearl B. Young of Watseka, Ill., she had not divorced him.

Maude Simcox, of course, was the more determined by her father's opposition. She pitied the lone wolf in Glenn Young. When men or newspapers called him a mercenary and a bully and a braggart, she raged. He was fighting on the right side, wasn't he? It did not matter so much how he fought, did it? He had to be hard; his enemies were hard. He had to shoot sometimes, or his enemies would shoot.

Mrs. Young, spurred no doubt by widespread talk of her husband's association with Miss Simcox filed suit for divorce in 1921, but she did not name a co-respondent. Her charges were cruelty and neglect. The court granted her a decree with custody of her children and $50 a month alimony.

The way now partly clear, Young and Maude Simcox eloped. In doing so they defied the Illinois statute against remarriage of divorced persons within two years of the divorce. But the bride was plunging into worse trouble than this. She had become the wife of Glenn Young, klansman and liquor raider, and the turmoil of four years was before them.

She soon learned that law enforcement is not the simple thing she thought. Her husband had taken arms against bootleggers, thugs, gunmen, politicians, citizens who did not believe in prohibition, newspapers which opposed prohibition.

Charges, Charges, Charges

The first clash came when Young killed Luke Vukovic, an East St. Louis bootlegger. He was exonerated by a Coroner's jury on the evidence that Vukovic had resisted arrest and had snapped a pistol at him. But political pressure was brought to bear to have him indicted and he stood trial for murder.

This was Glenn Young's favorite picture of his wife, reproduced from the original print he carried with him when he was slain.

His wife worried those days, being new to the backlash of lawless men, and not knowing how powerful the illicit liquor traffic is in Illinois. Young was acquitted.

The next charge was that he had attacked a 16-year-old girl. His denials were published, but so were the charges, and Maude Young suffered. That the prosecution came to naught and that her husband railed about the frame-up did not help matters much. She was learning what it meant to be the wife of S. Glenn Young.

Charges of misconduct, always vague but persistent, caused Young to be dropped from the Federal Prohibition force. He was out of a job when the Ku Klux Klan started up in Illinois.

Why the Ku Klux Klan started is an open question. Its opponents say it was born in race hatred, fanaticism, jealousy and tyranny. Mrs. Glenn Young saw it differently. She had visited the Illinois coal towns with her husband. She had seen the drunken miners making the streets indecent after night; the peddling of bad liquor to the hoodlum element which is so startlingly large in many towns of the coal belt.

Her husband was a liquor raider by conviction and profession. Thus, when men came to him and offered him work as the official raider of the Ku Klux Klan neither he nor she stopped to question whether the cure was worse than the disease. In Southern Illinois the klan is essentially a prohibition party. Prohibition law enforcement is the fundamental issue. Race and religion have little to do with it. And then as now, the crux of the problem centered in Williamson County—"Bloody Williamson."

Maude Young is no philosopher. She believed that the issue in the klan's fight in Williamson County was strictly an issue of whether men were to be permitted to sell, import, manufacture and drink booze or not.

War Is Declared

So the klan hired Two-Gun Glenn Young to make raids, and his wife was plunged into the war between raider and bootlegger. It was rather a sorry spectacle on both sides. But her feelings swept her along, a fierce partisan. She attended klan meetings and heard the exhortations of small-town preachers who spouted confidently of solutions to questions of social economy, immigration, religion and law which have given the solons of the land pause.

"This fight may come to bloodshed," shouted the pro-klan ministers from their pulpits. When Mrs. Young was in church people looked at her, pityingly.

The other side inflamed quickly. Presence of a killer of Glenn Young's reputation in Williamson County was taken as a threat. Rumors traveled.

"The klan is going to wipe 'em out...... the klan is going to mob the next bootlegger," rumors said.

The Flaming Circle organized as an anti-klan body. Taking its cue from the klan it provided gunmen to equalize Glenn Young. Sheriff Galligan, who opposed the klan from the start, frankly admitted to newspaper men that he was going to gather men around him who could and would shoot. Ora Thomas was one of them.

So it went. If Mrs. Young in the midst of the hubub wondered what contingencies were impending, she did not weaken. Her

A SHIP, A HURRICANE AND 17 BRAVE MEN MAKE A SAGA OF THE SEA

The Crew of the Manuel Caragol Fight Atlantic Storms for 42 Days Until Vessel Is Reduced to a Derelict

"They Sailed 'Er Till the 'Uricane Tore 'Er Blasted Gizzard Out," Say the Men of Gloucester, and Capt. Jose Mogano Had To Be Taken From the Wreck by Force—Ship Was Bound for Philadelphia From Rio de Janeiro, Sailing Shorthanded With a Crew of 14 Portuguese and Three Italians—Rescued by Shipping Board Vessel.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Jan. 31.

THE four-masted schooner Manuel Caragol, 69 days out of Rio de Janeiro, ran into a hurricane that carried away her rigging on Jan. 6. Five days later her crew of 17 men were taken off by the Shipping Board freighter Kenowis, and the Manuel Caragol set afire as a menace to navigation. Her skipper, Jose Mogano, who had once before refused to desert a doomed ship, was taken from the burning vessel by force.

When a few days ago in New York he was asked to tell the story of the last voyage of the Manuel Caragol, Capt. Jose at first refused. The Portuguese Consul-General urged him.

"I shall; but for one reason," Capt. Jose said in Portuguese, "for the greater glory of my country."

Capt. Jose learned his trade when he was 8 years old. He is 48 now, and all that time he has been at sea. He learned the business of being a sailor from men who had taught each other since the days of Prince Henry the Navigator, Vasco da Gama, and Amerigo Vespucci. The Portuguese were sailors when the English were bobbing around in basketwork coracles. The great Portuguese sailors are much more real to Capt. Jose than Washington and Lincoln are to most Americans. It was necessary to reflect on Portuguese traditions, he said, before he could tell of the last voyage of the Manuel Caragol.

On Oct. 29, 1924, Capt. Jose ran up the flag of Portugal on his spanker, and tried to imagine how Amerigo would have scorned the great, awkward English and German tramps which filled the harbor of Rio. Capt. Jose is a wiry little scrap of a man, weighing perhaps 110 pounds, with thinning hair and rough, grizzled cheeks. It is impossible for him to speak sitting down, or with anything in his hands, for he must walk about and gesticulate.

A Brave Ship

The Manuel Caragol, as she slumbered at her dock in the rock-walled harbor of Rio de Janeiro, was a smart, able ship. She had been built in Boston in 1917, as part of the fleet laid down in the war emergency. Her descent from the glamour of war times to the dusty, truck-horse task of hauling cheap cargoes on a starvation diet had been swift.

Now she was laden with animal bones, fit for Yankee buttons and knife handles, value $32,000. Yet that did not spoil the smooth run of her deck lines, nor the rake of her slim masts, nor the quick falling away of her stem. Her last crew had deserted to the gay, dirty cottages set back from the port's water front; it was a hopeless undertaking to round them up while their money lasted. So the schooner was short-handed with a makeshift crew. Capt. Jose Mogano had just taken the ship over, and he was very proud of his command, though mistrusting the seaworthiness of his helpers.

There was cursing as the Manuel Caragol cleared from Rio that October day. Oaths start from the deep lungs of Portuguese sailors as they work; oaths breathed more for the sound than the malediction. In a crackling storm of these, the winches were started and the canvas set on the Manuel Caragol.

Besides Capt. Jose, there were 13 other Portuguese in the crew, two of them his friends, and three Italians. Aft of the fo'c'sle hatch, in a white-painted coop, was a hen to be killed for Christmas.

Lying at her dock in Rio, the ship had been a thing with distinct parts, masts, deck houses, and hold. But as she lay down to the wind and her rigging stiffened and sang, she became a thing alive, to be studied and loved by sailor men. Her four great sails were close-hauled, for the Manuel Caragol had head winds all the way, and life was lived on a slant as she ploughed ahead on the starboard tack day after day. She crossed the Equator and nosed up under an immense tropic sky through the West Indies.

The Hurricane Approaches

Capt. Jose hoped to make Philadelphia in 85 days. On Nov. 25, only 27 days out, he lay off Delaware Bay, expecting to go in the next day. He turned in in the after cabin, fully dressed, with one eye on the glass, ready to catch any shift of the wind. In the second watch a sailor came tumbling down the companionway with a warning for the captain. The list of the schooner answered Capt. Jose's unasked question. A hurricane was coming.

They worked together, the cook and crew and Capt. Jose. They got the sails down, vast white walls of canvas in which a fist can hardly make a dent, and swaying booms which when the schooner lurches, bring hissing water close to your neck. The chicken coop went down in the galley. Tarpaulin was lashed over the winches, boats made fast with the sailor knots which are the earliest lore of civilization.

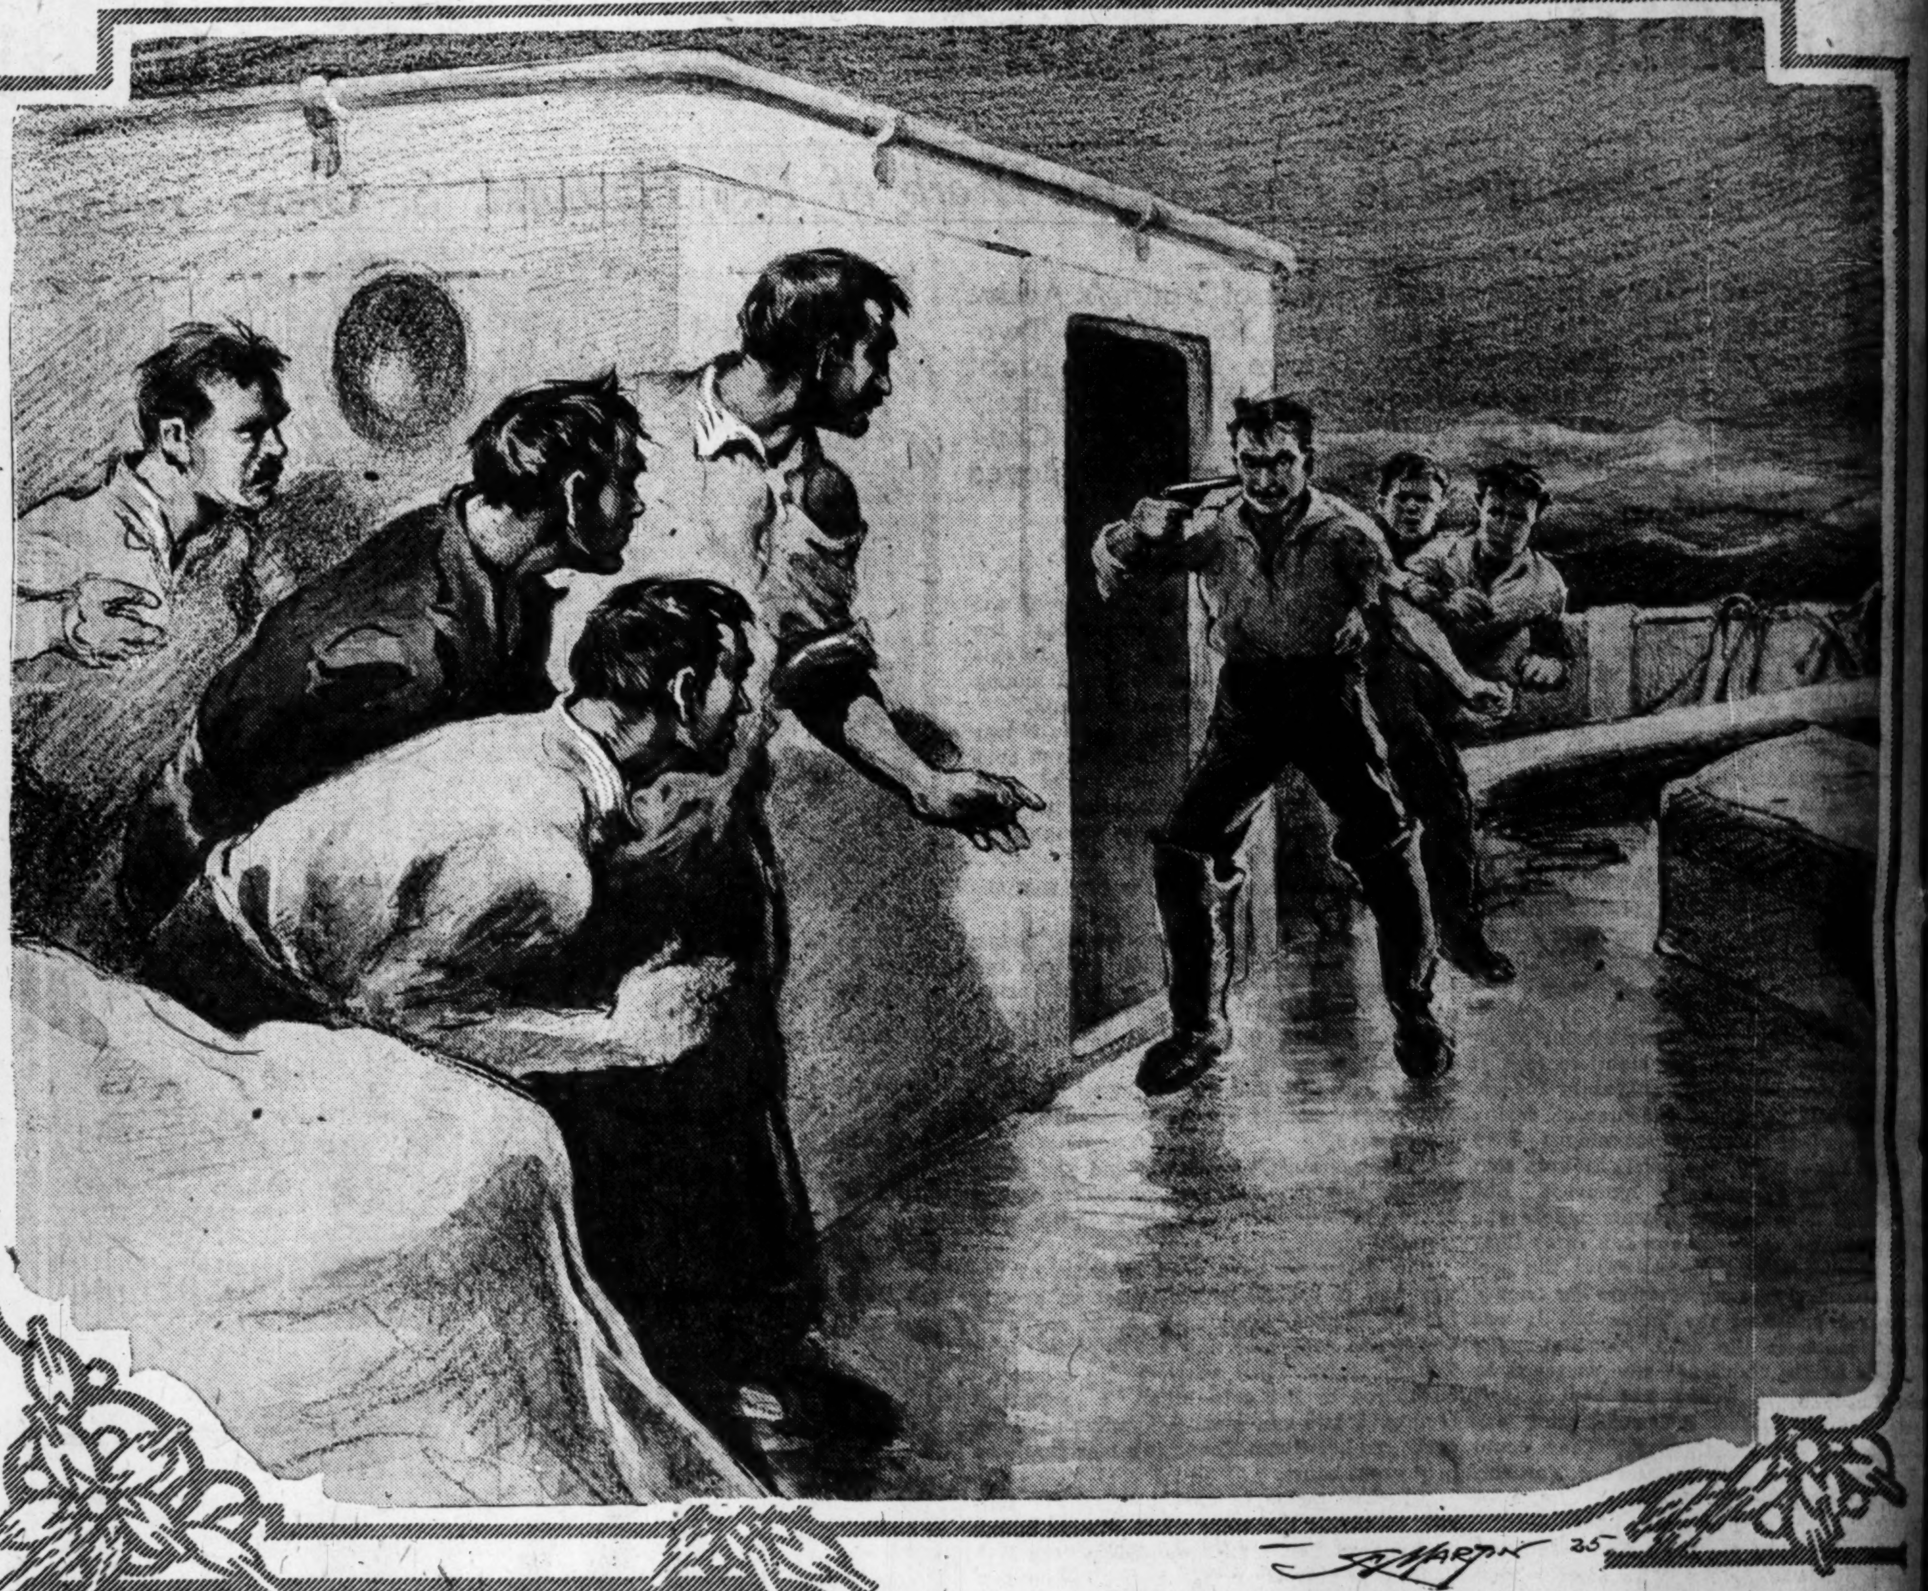
From that night onwards until Jan. 6, 1925, for 42 days, the Manuel Caragol fought the stormy seas to gain back to Philadelphia. Capt. Jose clung, a wet, triumphant, sea-demon, to the spanker rigging, as two seamen grunted at the bucking wheel. The lean bow of the Manuel Caragol with her dead eyes under romped into the waves like a puppy into a fight. She shook herself joyously and coasted down their backs, to rise again in a snarl of spray.

The monotony of days was stirred only by the cook's perilous trips with food along the water polished deck to the after cabin. For the rest of the time, it was wet to bed, and wet up again. To set even the stays'l required the full crew, braced until their oilskin trousers scraped the deck, before the sheet could be brought over the winch head.

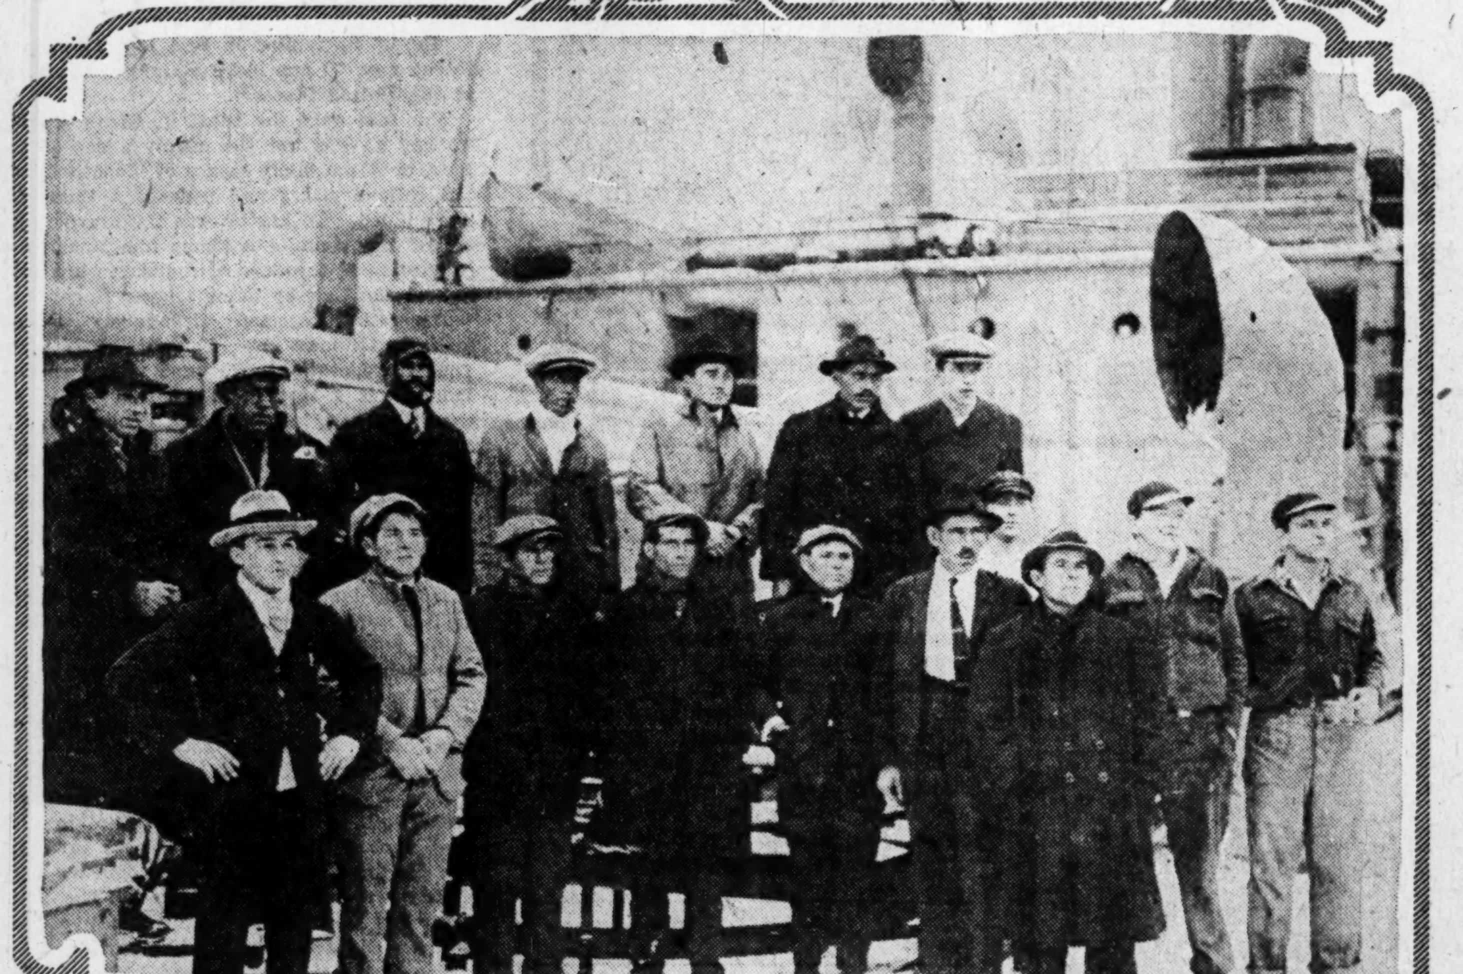
The Manuel Caragol on Jan. 6 was 300 miles off New York. So Capt. Jose reckons it although he had lost track of the weary days. He had become a succession of sparks, like the gap in an electric circuit. The crew were dog-like automatons.

Before dawn that morning, the wind out of the northwest fell upon them. It was as if a workman of the sea had used a pneumatic hammer. There is no repeating what happened. The schooner went over like a shot doe. Her slender masts whipped crazily. All the deck gear leaped impatiently overside. Sheet and halliard ends wrapped themselves like snakes around masts and booms.

The weight of the hull threw itself against the wind. Slowly the schooner righted itself, pressing the great sails against the sledge blow of the gale. With a crack like a small cannon, lost in the wind, the sails tore from their bolt ropes. Twitching as a fallen horse does, the Manuel Caragol righted herself, and stood into the hurricane.



Captain Jose appeared on deck, reeling from exhaustion like a drunken man, with a wild light in his bloodshot eyes. His crew stared at him apathetically. In a sudden frenzy of desperation the skipper waved a revolver and pointed it at his head. Men leaped to take it away, and after a struggle managed to prevent him from pressing the trigger.



The crew of the Manuel Caragol on the deck of the Shipping Board ship Kenowis which rescued them from the hulk that had been a stout windjammer. They appeared little the worse for their 42-day fight for life in the grip of an Atlantic hurricane. The only comment made to reporters was, "Lucky for us the water was warm, or we'd have frozen to death." Capt. Jose, the skipper, plans to visit his wife and children in Portugal before he signs as master of another ship.

Behind it came the water. High over the schooner, above the masts, swallowing the sky, hung the froth of the first wave. Tons of water fell straight down as a boulder drops from a precipice. Green water, waist deep, whirled along the deck, scraping each crack. Galley vent, deck houses, spare booms, boats, wheel box, everything went. As the schooner's stern settled into the wave, the rudder crumpled into a mass of splinters.

All this took perhaps 20 minutes. Capt. Jose and the crew could only guess what had happened. All they knew was that their ship, the friendly creature on which they lived, had been knocked down. They clung breathlessly in the rigging. Strange, black minutes passed. Then they were battered by the rushing water again and again. It was no use to speak, they could hear nothing but the storm.

With daylight they crawled to the pumps, and took stock. The stays'l, which had been furled, and the ship's boat lashed amidships, had been left. Otherwise the Manuel Caragol was very like a derelict. She lay helpless broadside to the wind, rolling horribly. With each roll, the heels of the masts kicked against her seams. She was making 30 inches of water an hour, and the rate was steadily increasing.

Flung to and fro on the deck, four men lashed to the pump, worked despairingly. The water was rising over the floor of the fo'c'sle and cabin; in either one the crew could dip it out in buckets. Slithering crazily along the bulwark, was Capt. Jose. His strength scored like the flame of a forest fire eating into a dead tree. They must not give up, he told them. When the schooner was pumped out, they could work at her seams. They would sail her under forestays'l alone. They'd rig a jury rudder.

The Manuel Caragol was slowly beating herself to death. The first thing which must be done was to get her head up. Capt. Jose called his crew from their hopeless task at the pump, scourged them with snapping oaths into action, and prepared to set the remaining sail. In the mess of gear, they made fast the halliards. The sheet bit around the boom. The schooner trembled through her length.

As her bowsprit started to lift, the wind jabbed again. The forestays'l cracked clean across. Capt. Jose was picked up and thrown down into the leeward scupper.

The Portuguese are sailor men. The gale has never blown that Portuguese have not ridden. The crew fished the captain back with one broken and two dislocated ribs. His eyes had become red films. He clawed his way back to the cabin. By the binnacle he found his huge revolver. He stood by the companionway a dancing gnome, with its muzzle to his chin. His mouth was oddly open. He must have been laughing but no one could hear him.

The crew, dully, hopelessly, took the gun from him. Another ship would have been flying distress signals for a month past. Another ship would now be derelict and abandoned. But this was a Portuguese ship. The men quit the pumps only when there was 12 feet of water in the hold. The hatches were secure, the length of the deck. With a flapping scrap of a sail above them, they clung to the rigging with a bare and treacherous deck beneath them.

They stayed there four days until they were rescued early Sunday morning, Jan. 11. There were countless miles of angry sea, and in the middle a tiny, barepoled, waterlogged schooner rocked drunkenly. Seventeen midget specks dotted its rigging, one of them its mad and cursing skipper.

Like Flies on a Chip

The things which happen in such hiatuses between life and death, in restrospect telescope into a few simple events. The cook, nursing a pile of soggy pantile (hardtack), climbed the length of the ship each day, and gave every man one. Tobacco there was none. On the second day the crew considered apathetically taking to the one remaining boat. They were far off the steamer track. The boat's engine was useless, but they knew a sail was stowed under the thwarts. Several men, exhausted, were lashed high in the halliards that day for fear they would be carried overboard.

The next day the skipper stopped his sulking maledictions and searched carefully for the gun. He was twisted with the agony of his broken rib. When he did not find it, he leaped down the deck, was caught and dragged back by the crew. That day they also sighted a steamer's smoke. After a little while it disappeared.

The third day it moderated a little.

"If the weather had been cold," Capt. Jose said in New York, "we should have perished."

At evening the crew prayed to its sailor gods. The Italians, hunched together, called upon the Virgin. There was not a man on board at this time who had not been thrown on the deck and cut. They went through one more hopeless, helpless night.

At 4:05 a. m. Sunday morning, the Shipping Board freighter Kenowis, seven days overdue and blown 800 miles off her course, sighted the Manuel Caragol. The sea was calm, and a tower of smoke rose from tar buckets which the crew had succeeded in breaking out and kindling with their shirts.

The Kenowis came alongside. Capt. W. [illegible] Humphrey surveyed the schooner through his glasses. The crew were tumbling into the schooner's boat. Then the captain saw a tiny figure with a brand lit from the tar buckets lurching to the cabin companionway slide. His head and shoulders disappeared within, and presently smoke arose.

Meantime the Manuel Caragol's crew was on board. They gasped out that their captain would not leave, that he would go down with the ship. Humphrey asked them not to be damn fools. The schooner's boat went back again, and across the soggily moving deck three oilskin-coated men captured Capt. Jose and dragged him off. Then at Capt. Humphrey's orders, they made a thorough job of the fire, so that the Manuel Caragol would [illegible] be a menace to navigation.

Jose doesn't admit he really tried to commit suicide. He says he can't understand what he really was thinking of. He seems to think it only natural he didn't leave his schooner. His ribs are healing, and very shortly he is going back to his wife and children in Ilhavo, Portugal, as a passenger. He was asked if he was going sailoring again.

"Things sometimes are, unfriendly," he said. "I remember I was torpedoed twice during the war. Once it was very sad, five men were drowned. But such things happen. I shall go back, for Portuguese love the sea."

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.

THE statistical fiend, that horrid fellow who insists on setting everything down in figures—using his pencil and your patience—at last has been justified. Walter S. Gifford is now president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

If the connection seems obscure to those who never read Babson or revel in Forbes, it should be explained that Gifford for many years has been the champion of the chart, the giant of the graph, the saint of statisticians. All over this land go-getters who can tell you in a flash how Anaconda Copper was selling April 13, 1914, or what the operating expenses of the Canadian National Railways were during March, 1909, have followed Gifford's career with fond faith. He has been their shining example, their beau ideal.

The line of Gifford's business progress, statistically speaking, is a delight to the eye. When plotted on a chart the graph begins climbing abruptly from the lowest square on the left, representing his position at the age of 20, to the top square on the right, representing his position at 40. When he was 20 he held the post of payroll clerk in the Chicago offices of the Western Electric Co. Today, at 40, he is president of the largest corporation in the United States. Straight from the bottom to the top that line climbs. It is the sort of graph that sends sales and circulation managers into ecstasies. No off years. No parallel lines.

Let the clicking of adding machines be his paean of victory! He made his way to success over a thousand perfect ledger sheets. His path is strewn with the faulty trial balances and imperfect cost accounts he exposed. While others were mulling slipshod double-entries, he sailed in and knocked business deficits for a row of zeros. He was the nemesis of red ink and the lord of profits. Small wonder that among statisticians his name and his career are praised.

The Facts Prove It

Efficiency experts already are beginning to point a moral in Gifford's career. Advertising club lecturers and Chamber of Commerce speakers will have a word of praise for him. Professors of business administration will tell their classes in advanced accounting of the Gifford method. The correspondence schools may take him up. Indeed, all who believe that the ultimate truth must be stated in black and white with columns balanced can say, "There's Gifford of the A. T. & T. He's a case in point. Statistics put him where he is today."

The St. Louis men who run the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. know Gifford well. Their company is a subsidiary of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and from his president's office in New York, Gifford will make the general suggestions helpful to independent but observant officials. The Gifford system already is firmly established in the St. Louis company, so much so that every executive has a book of Gifford charts.

Armed with those charts their wisdom seems almost omniscient. They can tell you by the turn of a finger what last month's operating expense was in ratio to the income as compared with the corresponding month of the previous year. They can state in an instant how many poles are set and how many feet of wire are strung. It's all down on a Gifford chart. Here is a black oblong, representing the gross physical valuation of all the Southwestern Bell properties, there a shaded oblong representing the census of employes, divided as to male and female.

"A good executive must never be at loss for an answer to any sensible question about business." The precept is Gifford's. He himself, is never at loss. Even if he misplaces his charts he remembers them so well he can state approximate figures offhand.

A Born Statistician

His taste for figures was either born with him or he acquired it at an early age. Folk of Salem, Mass., where he passed his boyhood vow that at the age of 10 he would rather do short division than play one-old-cat. They say that he liked percentage better than football. At least, he preferred to keep score rather than play.

It is possible that the lad's heredity had a great deal to do with his mathematical bent. His mother had been a schoolteacher. Anyway, young Gifford was the most unmathematical boy in Salem. When he went fishing with the other boys it pleased him more to calculate by the law of probabilities how many bull-heads would pass a certain spot in 17 minutes than to ply hook and line. At baseball, the other boys said, he tried to figure curves by trigonometry.

Then the story of his first experience in business and how it taught him to calculate first and act afterwards. The story has to do with a deal he made with his father to keep a room in the Gifford lumber mill clear of debris for 25 cents. He, in his youthful rashness left the time plus cost element out entirely. He thought he had engaged to clean the room once for 25 cents. But his father had engaged him to clean it and keep it clean for a whole day for 25 cents. As it filled up again as soon as cleaned the 25 cents bid was far too low. He couldn't show a profit.

His Chart Begins

After finishing high school in about half the usual time, he worked for a while and saved his money, having decided upon a career at Harvard. He had his course plotted on a chart, already. There was so much studying to be done and so much time to do it in. If he reduced the time element he would have to expend more effort. He decided to go to Harvard on a three-four ratio; that is, he would make a four years' course in three years by working harder.

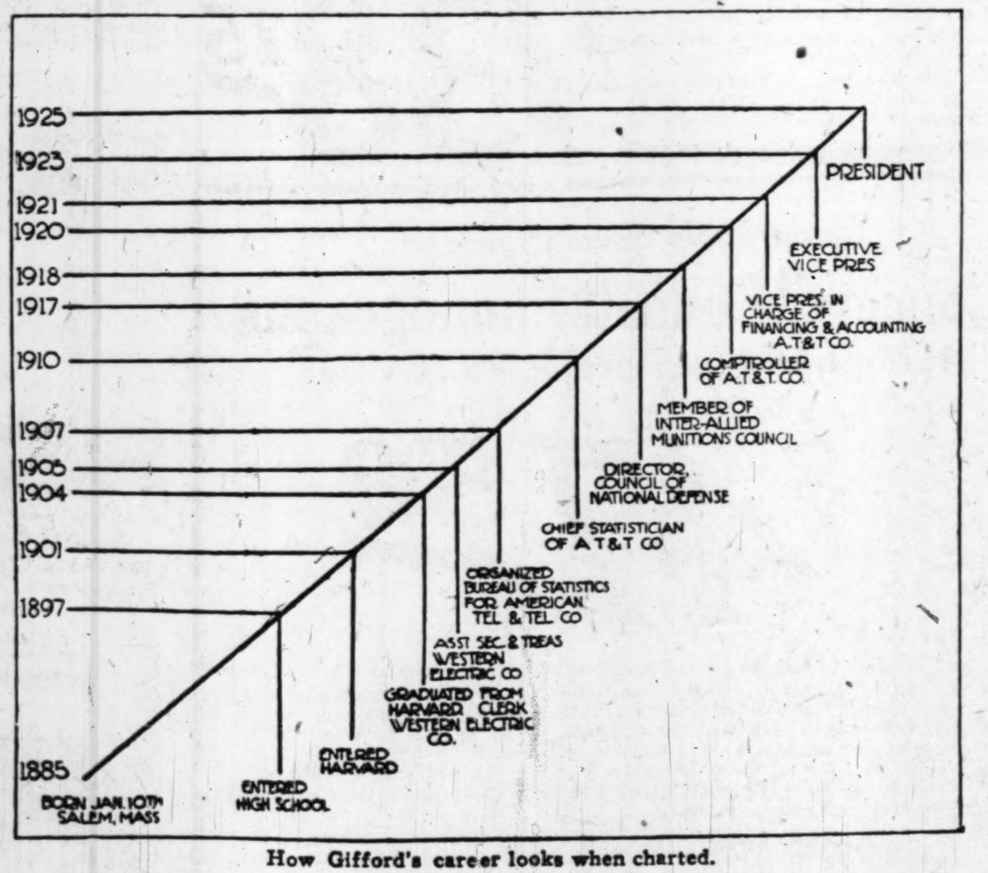
The ratio proved up. He graduated from Harvard in 1904 at the age of 19, completing the course in three years. The next step was to engage in business. He had resolved to be a statistician. He believed that there should be more statistics in business. It was his theory that charts should do for business what logarithms and slide-rules have done for mathematics. He would simplify business accounting.

His friends at college warned him not to work for a corporation. Corporations, they told him, are soulless things, and he would get nowhere with them unless he had influence. But to Gifford the corporation was the ideal business. The corporation was run on books and figures; it had complicated systems of accounting. He must work for a corporation by all means. He saw them in his dreams, these columns and columns of figures. He must get to figuring at once.

So he wrote letters of application to the General Electric Co. and the Western Electric Co. In his haste he put the Western Electric's letter in the General Electric's envelope and vice versa. The Western Electric, however, advised him of this so he wrote another application and was given a job as payroll clerk in its Chicago office.

In a few weeks Gifford saw that the payroll clerks were doing a lot of unnecessary work. He devised a chart which enabled him and his colleagues to more easily figure the wages due workmen on a piece-work basis. The chart enabled one clerk to do the work of two and a third clerks—or some figure like that.

Gifford's superiors were overjoyed to discover a young man who really loved figures. So many of their young men swore at figures. Gifford was rewarded by a transfer to the office of the secretary and controller of the company.



How Gifford's career looks when charted.

He Steps Up

Three years after he started with the Western Electric he was made assistant secretary and treasurer. His charts were becoming known. In New York they heard of the new man, and presently he was sent East to confer with high officials.

It was explained to him that the Western Electric was manufacturing phone equipment for the American Telephone Co. and would be obliged to expand to keep pace wtih the phenomenal growth of its best customer. Would Gifford go to Boston and install a new system of accounting at the office there? If it worked the company might adopt his system in all its branches.

Gifford simply reveled in the mass of figures he found at Boston. He worked night and day with balance sheets and charts. So thorough was his reorganization that even the old-stagers who sniffed at the chart-era in business could see its feasibility. They sent glowing reports of the financial wizard to New York, and Gifford was told to organize a statistical bureau for the company.

One day the late Theodore N. Vail, then president of the Western Electric Co., sent for Gifford.

"Can you get me some figures on the use of the telegraph?" he asked.

Alas, No Charts

Gifford reviled himself for being unable to click his heels together and reply, "Sir, the telegraph system at present is being used by 19.9 per cent of the adult population of the United States and is 86.2 per cent efficient."

But he had no charts, confound it, he had no charts. All he could say was, "I'll get them up for you, Mr. Vail."

He resolved as he hastened back to his statistics that never again would he be caught napping like that. He got together the figures on the telegraph matter, and decided to enlarge the scope of his bureau to include all essential facts of the telephone and telegraph business, and also of other businesses as well.

Through figures supplied by Gifford, President Vail learned that the telegraph lines were not handling all the traffic they had capacity for. So Vail devised the night and day letter system, providing for deferred service during slack time at lower rates. This service is now a large item in the telegraph business of the country.

When Henry B. Thayer became president of the Western Electric, and when later this company was allied with the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., Gifford stood in line to profit by the new alliance. One of the things that brought him favorably to Thayer's notice was his plan enabling employes of the company to buy stock on time payment. This plan has been extended until now more than 70,000 of the corporation's 300,000 employes own about $50,000,000 worth of stock.

A Nervous Wreck at 30

At 30 Gifford was chief statistician of the A. T. & T. He had not reached this important post without cost. His health had been sacrificed.

When he told physicians of his symptoms they looked grave and wanted to know how many cigars he smoked, and how hard he had been working. They told him to quit work and to cut down on the cigars. Unless he did, they said, he would suffer a nervous collapse. At the thought of having to leave his charts and figures he nearly collapsed on the spot.

He sought a specialist and made known his problem. If he quit work he felt he was done for. The specialist, who seems to have been a remarkable man, gave this verdict:

"By no means quit work. Go after it as hard as you like. Cut down the cigars to 10 a day. Do just one thing—drink at least a quart of milk a day."

So on milk and trial balances Gifford won back to health. His hand grew steadier as he traced graph lines and his old mastery of charts returned.

He was at the heart of the business. Its net results were always before him. He saw in summary its strength and weaknesses. Gains here and losses there were known to him, even before the president called for reports. His bureau was the clearing house of all information. He knew the A. T. & T. down to the last telephone pole.

When the United States entered the war the Government needed somone who would undertake an inventory of 27,000 American manufacturing concerns so that they might be mobilized for production. The Bell System loaned Gifford for this work, under an agreement that he was to return in 90 days. But when the time was up the War Department wanted to keep him. This was a war of figures as well as bullets. Someone had to keep the books. And Gifford was drafted as director of the Council of National Defense.

He held the post for two years. Afterwards he was sent to Europe to help organize the Interallied Munitions Council. Neither job was spectacular nor very colorful, having to do with facts and figures. Reduced to a chart, the war itself would not be colorful. But Gifford's were important jobs and his handling of them did not hurt his standing with the A. T. & T.

When he returned to his firm he was made controller in charge of finances and soon elevated to the executive vice presidency. In this post he was responsible only to President Thayer. The work enabled him to spread the doctrine of charts to the company's many subsidiaries, a job he performed well. As a speaker he is said to be positively appalling. Figures fall from his lips with such precision and profusion as to dumbfound even a roomful of bookkeepers. He is much in demand for luncheon talks, but generally too busy to accept invitations.

The Highest Point

Gifford is always impatient of details, wanting the facts summarized and if possible diagrammed.

"I know, I know," is his most frequent expression, "but what is the main idea?"

He sees things on charts.

A few weeks ago came word of Gifford's elevation to the presidency to succeed Thayer, who is to be chairman of the Board of Directors. The graph of Gifford's career had reached its peak. From office clerk to president of a $2,500,000,000 corporation in 20 years! Do figures pay?

On the personal side, Gifford is as amazing. Men who meet him listen to his bantering conversation and finding a sense of humor where none was expected or even hoped for exclaim, "Why, he doesn't talk like a statistician!"

Gifford likes to hunt and to attend football games. He has few intimates or close acquaintances, but if he has traveled fast he has traveled pleasantly. Men speak well of him.

"If I find that business is making me old, I'll quit," he has told friends.

And—oh yes—on the chart of his career, somewhere about the 30-year mark we must put in something to represent a wife and then along at intervals two exclamation points to represent his two children. That about completes the record so far.

FLOTSAM OF A KLAN WAR; BLINDED AND WIDOWED

husband, busy raiding in towns all over the county, told her the klan had the liquor element on the run.

The First Blow.

Trouble started centering in Herrin, scene of the mine massacre of 1922. Last February Constable Caesar Cagle, a klan sympathizer, was killed by anti-klansmen at the Jefferson Bar. In retaliation klansmen fired on the Herrin Hospital, where Sheriff Galligan and several deputies were said to be hiding. Militia was sent to quell the rioting.

Glenn Young was in the thick of it. A grand jury indicted him for alleged high-handed proceedings, and he took his wife to East St. Louis for a clean-up campaign there. She saw the threat in the serious turn events had taken, but it was not in her mind to urge her husband's withdrawal from the fray.

She and he were returning to East St. Louis in an automobile about 5:30 p. m. May 23. There had been a lull in the bickerings prior to this. Mrs. Young had not worried so much about the danger to her husband. As to the danger to herself, she had never considered it. She was a noncombatant, a woman. What danger could there be?

They drove down the concrete road, approaching Okawville, Herrin and Williamson County and the liquor war seemed far away. Perhaps she had hoped that the war was ended; that men would give up their liquor without more fighting.

Then the curtained automobile drew alongside. She heard a confusion of shouts and curses—her husband turned quickly and tried to stop the car....a volley, of shots....shattering glass....the stab of bullets....she was hit and lost consciousness.

Next....the hospital....ether....operations....the bandage across her eyes. For weeks they did not tell her how badly her husband had been hurt. They did not tell her how badly she had been hurt. When they left the hospital he limped and she was blind.

Followed trips to Atlanta and Rochester to see if surgeons could do anything. They gave her no hope.

Meanwhile there was fighting at Herrin. Jack Skelcher, a coal miner, and a man named Brown were slain the morning after the attack on the Youngs, presumably by klansmen seeking revenge. Weeks of charge and countercharge followed and then on Aug. 30 the forces clashed again in Herrin. This time seven men fell dead or mortally wounded. Once more the troops sped to Herrin, once more there were inquests and investigations, but no punishment of the guilty.

What It Meant.

Maude Young knew what the liquor war meant now. It might have been a victory for personal liberty when she slumped wounded in the car that evening and a triumph for law and order when men died in a blazing of pistols afterwards, but she could not appreciate them. Yet there smouldered in her heart a fierce resentment against the enemy that had blinded her. She knew that her husband's rage at the attack in the dusk on a lonely road was a terrible thing. Should they go back to Herrin now? Go back to the fight?

"I'll make them pay," Glenn Young told her.

It is not of record what she replied. But she went back with him, knowing that a return might mean anything. Together, wounded and almost penniless, they went back to the fight. Young wore his automatics on either hip and rallied his forces. They would raid again. They would carry on. Meanwhile he would try to make some money by writing his memoirs.

She waited in the darkness, hoping that sight was the only price she would have to pay. How the rumblings of hate in Herrin must have terrified her. How she must have prayed for no more shooting. She heard the whispers; heard that Ora Thomas was gunning for her husband and that a clash might come any minute.

Let this much be said for S. Glenn Young: He had courage beyond sheer bravado, courage above the mercenary man killer's. It would have been so easy for him to have avoided the issue; so sensible and pardonable. Actuated as he probably was by a cold-blooded thirst for revenge, still he knew the risk and took it.

Exit Glenn Young.

There will always be two stories of what happened that Saturday night, Coroner's verdicts to the contrary. Klansmen and Mrs. Glenn Young will always believe that he was ambushed and murdered by Ora Thomas and friends. Anti-klansmen will always believe that he swaggered out spoiling for a fight and got it.

When the shooting was over Glenn Young lay dead, Ora Thomas lay dead, George Forbes was dead and Homer Warren dying.

She waited in the hotel room for the voice in the darkness that would say, "Mrs. Young—your—husband"— The liquor war had passed for her from a panorama of struggling men to a blackness of sounds and now—the sound of the voice saying, "Your husband is dead."

. . . Maude Young has decided to stay in Herrin. The most of her life is buried there, and the cause for which she has sacrificed is there. She will stay where all can see her blind eyes and her fatherless son. Perhaps the sight will have an effect in the hearts of Herrin men.

February Gains Popularity as Bridal Month, Several Weddings Of Interest on Social Calendar

Miss Ethel Sultan to Become Bride of Edward E. Pershall at Quiet Ceremony Tomorrow — News of Marriage of Ensign John Pinckney Wheeler Vest, U. S. N. in San Francisco, Reaches His Friends Here.

ALTHOUGH February has never been known as a marriage month, it seems to have gained in popularity this season, and beginning tomorrow four or five interesting ceremonies will be performed before Lent bars all but the most informal function. A quiet wedding of tomorrow is that of Miss Ethel Sultan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Sultan of 6900 Kingsbury boulevard, and Edward E. Pershall of St. Louis. The ceremony will be performed at 8 o'clock in the evening at the Sultan home, and because of deep mourning in the family of the bridegroom, the guests will include only members of the bride's family and Mr. Pershall's small daughter. There will be no attendants. Miss Sultan will wear an ensemble suit of kasha cloth. The gown is tan, and the coat rust colored and trimmed with brown fur. A small hat of rust straw and moire will complete the costume.

r. Pershall and his bride will to Miami, Fla., where they leased an apartment on the ch for a month, and will make home in St. Louis. Miss Sul- is a graduate of Mary Insti- Mr. Pershall is an alumnus University of Illinois and a er of the Missouri Athletic iation and Sunset Hill Coun- Club.

Dr. and Mrs. R. Dodson, will become the Malcolm Channing Rees of eb. 18. This wedding will take place in the Church of the Unity, where Dr. Dodson is pastor. On the folllowing day Miss Damaris Macbeth will be married to George Knapp, son of Mrs. Harry G. Knapp of Persihng avenue, at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. George W. Kerr, 3703 West Pine boulevard.

News has reached St. Louis of the marriage of Miss Frances Neville, daughter of Major-General Wendell C. Neville, U. S. M. C., and Ensign John Pinckney Wheeler Vest, U. S. N., in San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 23. Ensign Vest is the son of Mrs. Agatha W., Vest of 5817 Cabanne avenue, and a grandson of the late Senator Vest of Missouri. His brother is George Graham Vest III of the University Club, and his aunt is Mrs. George P. B. Jackson of St. Louis. Ensign Vest was here two years ago for the wedding of his cousin, Miss Katherine Servis Vest and Leslie Williams. He is also a cousin of Mrs. Robert Harmsburger and Mrs. Harvey Dunham, both of whom figured in St. Louis society several years ago.

There was a large military wedding, with the Episcopal service, at the home of the bride's parents, in a setting of pink roses and Japanest quince. Fellow officers on the bridegroom's ship, the U. S. S. Maryland were best man and groomsmen.

The couple will make their home in San Pedro.

gomery Blair, at their home in Silver Springs. Princess Boncampagni is the godchild of the Queen Dowager of Italy whose name she bears and who presented her with a necklace of pearls when she was christened.

Mrs. John R. Williams who was Miss Marie Hewitt of St. Louis, entertained at dinner on Friday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Nelano Robbins who are in America for a few weeks while Mr. Robbins is in special consultation with the State Department before he returns to his post as Counselor of the American Embassy at Berlin.

Prince Caetani, the Italian Ambassador, leaves Washington this week, a bachelor as he came. Handsome, wealthy and debonair, it was thought that the Prince would marry some American heiress, but no romance developed during his stay here although he was much sought after as a dinner guest and became quite a patron of music, giving a number of recitals at the Embassy.

Members of the Missouri colony in Washington are beginning to wonder just how many tickets for the charity inaugural ball, which is to take the place of the official inaugural ball, will be allotted for Missouri visitors. The ballrooms of the Mayflower, where the ball is to be held, will hold only 4500 persons and to date about 10,000 have applied for tickets, so the committees in charge are allotting them by states. A congressional woman's committee has been appointed to handle the matter and the wives of the Senators from Missouri are serving on the subcommittee that has in charge the tickets for that State and section.

Another interesting ball will be "The Mount Vernon ball" to be held the day after Washington's birthday at which many prominent Missouri women will be present and take part in the tableaux. Among these are Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, wife of the Assistant Secretary of War; Mrs. John B. Henderson, Mrs. David Blair, Mrs. Leigh Palmer and Mrs. Willard Hutchison.

Mrs. Robert Coontz, wife of Rear Admiral Coontz, now in command of the Pacific squadron, and her daughter, Miss Bertha Coontz, who have been spending the fall in San Francisco with Admiral Coontz, will return to Washington early in February in time to be here for the inauguration festivities. Rear Admiral Coontz will come to Washington in April when with his family he will revisit his old home in Missouri.

Mrs. John B. Henderson was at home on Tuesday afternoon at Boundary Castle where a number of guests from official, diplomatic and resident society called upon her there. Among those pouring tea for her was Mrs. George Barnett, wife of Major-General George Barnett; Mrs. William Barrett Ridgely and the Marquise de Bernezzo, wife of the military attache of the Italian embassy. Mrs. Henderson is popular with the diplomatic set because of her generosity in loaning her swimming pool and tennis courts for their entertainment each spring and summer. Mrs. Leigh Palmer is another Missouri woman in demand just now, for with Mrs. Breckinridge Long, another Missourian, she is to play as human tiles in the mah jong production which is occupying society with rehearsals and dress planning for the affair on Feb. 6 at the new auditorium for the benefit of the Belleau Wood memorial fund.

Mrs. Howard Hodgkins, wife of the dean of George Washington University, gave a luncheon Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Bessie Bruggeman, to which a number of Missouri women here were invited.

SONNENFELD'S "BOOSTING FEBRUARY" SALES

When I Saw These Coats

by

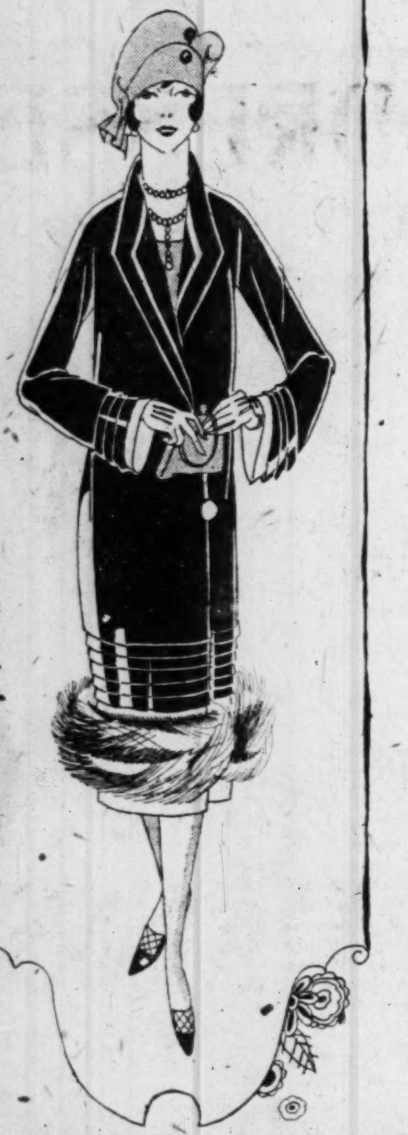
Shirley Deane

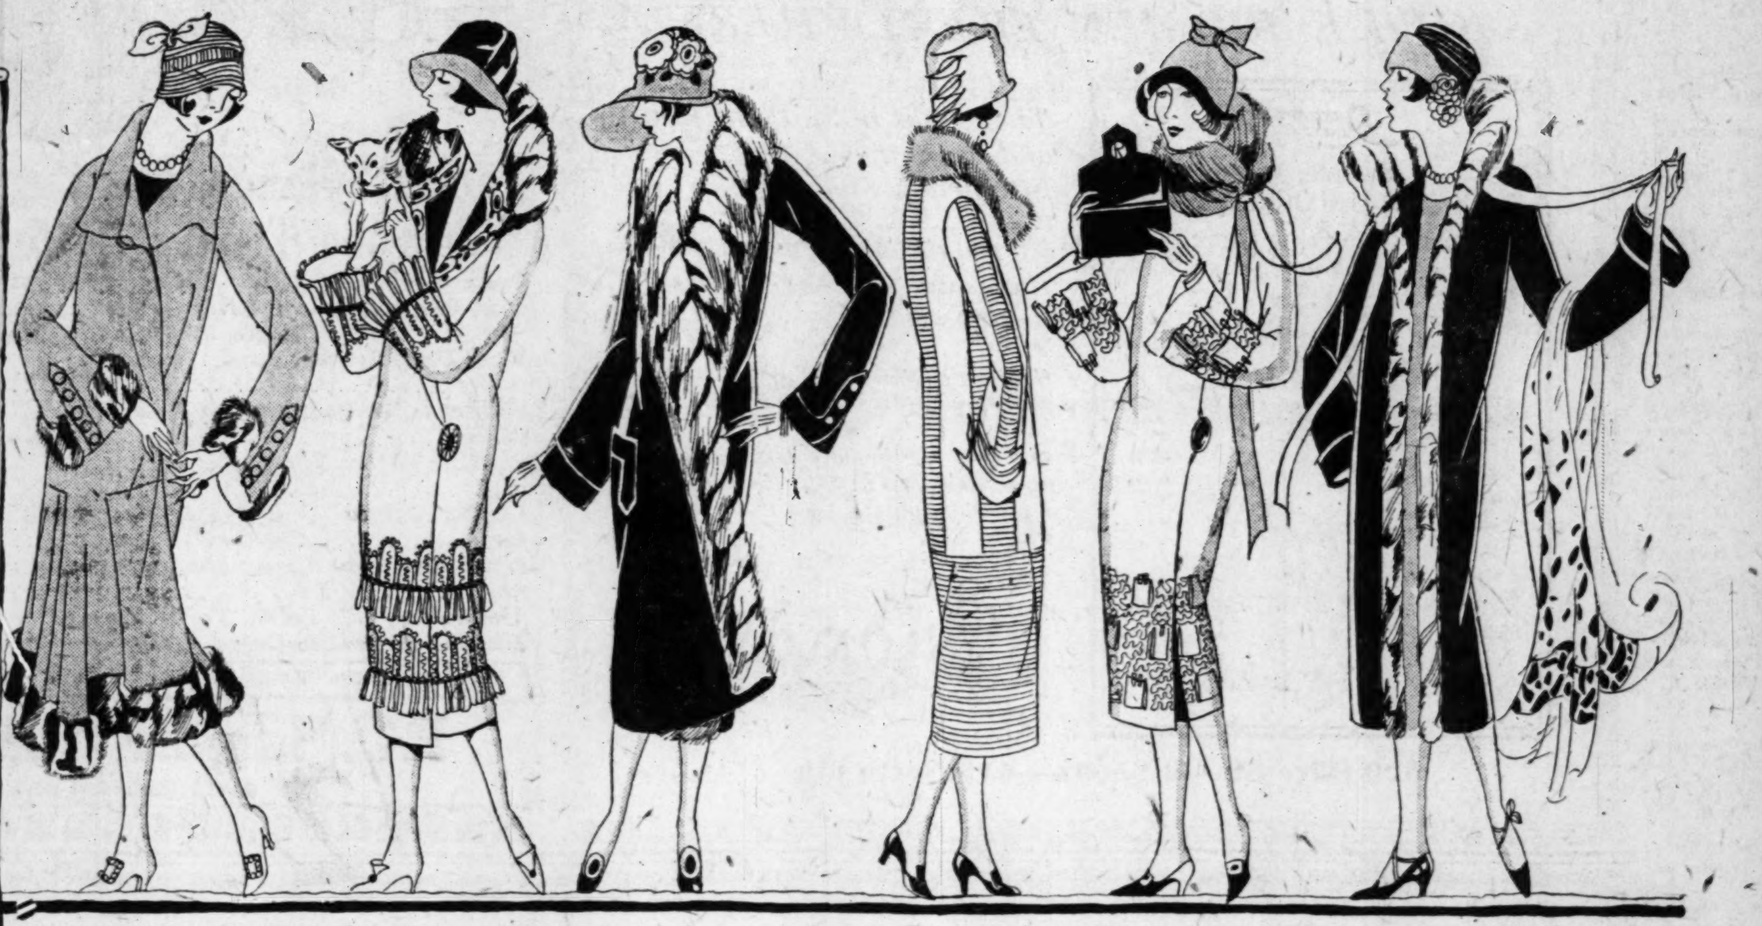
—I wanted to shout about them from the housetops, so that everyone I had ever known would benefit by this sale.

Fashion has never before to my knowledge expressed herself so eloquently in color and fabric. The colors are like royal jewels, the fabrics like chiffon velvets.

Every detail is of the finest. I, personally, wanted every single one, as I watched them being taken from their boxes.

So different are the styles, so superior the furs, the fabrics, the craftsmanship, the color tones, selection will indeed be difficult, as every woman will find many, many, many of them irresistible.





OUR seventh "Boosting February" Sales campaign will begin Monday. Its original purpose, that of converting February into a month of intense selling activity by the presentation of new Spring apparel at special prices, has been faithfully adhered to—and that our patrons accept our February announcement as a signal to anticipate their apparel needs is demonstrated by the substantial growth of this occasion.

EVERY department buyer has prepared a number of outstanding events, and the sales scheduled for Monday will convey, more eloquently than can words, the extraordinary nature of this occasion.

TIVITIES OF CLUB WOMEN IN ST. LOUIS

on her recent world tour and vocal renditions by Mrs. John Stoker. The St. Louis, Jefferson and county chapters, D. A. R., will celebrate jointly Washington's birthday with a luncheon at Chase Hotel, Feb. 21, at 1 p. m. A brief but interesting program has been arranged. Reservations should be obtained from Mrs. Joseph M. Long, 4922 McPherson avenue.

The St. Louis Story Tellers' League gave their January program in the auditorium of the Central Library, Jan. 23. Dr. Henry Forsyth of the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church gave an instructive talk on the use of the story in teaching the principles of religion. "Three Parasols" was told by Miss Mathilde Schuhr; "Wonderful Words of Life," by F. A. Clifford; "The Captive Maid," by Miss Verena Fohrman; "Two Pilgrims," by Tolstoi, told by Mrs. W. T. Byrum; "To Your Good Health," by Miss Lily, and a song, "The Garden of Prayer," by Mrs. Peugh of Washington, D. C.

The Barr Study Circle will meet at the home of Mrs. W. H. Hipolite, 3664 Washington boulevard, tomorrow at 10 a. m.

The Webster Groves Chapter, D. A. R., will give a Washington Birthday party, Feb. 3, at the home of Mrs. C. M. Skinner, 403 Hawthorne avenue, Webster Groves. Assistant hostesses will be Mmes. William Clegg, Herbert Rountree, Clarence Becker, Edward Curtis, William Turnbull and Miss Margaret Bryant.

The Kappa Delphian Chapter held its regular meeting Wednesday morning at the Cabanne Branch Library. The study of Egyptian history was resumed, topics being discussed by Mmes. Card, Cooley, Cornell, Cowan and Fisher. Invitations were extended to a lecture to be delivered on Egypt by the Rev. Ivan Lee Holt at the home of Mrs. Edward W. Felger, president, 6359 Pershing avenue.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Athena Delphian Chapter was held at the Cabanne Branch Library Monday evening, Jan. 26, 1925. The subject for the evening was "King Lear," with Mrs. A. B. McPhee presiding. The program included the following topics, "The Source of the Play," by Miss Wilma Nutt; "The Five Stages of its Dramatic Plot," by Mrs. R. B. Helser, and a discussion of act one by Mrs. I. T. Gilmore. The next meeting will be held Feb. 9.

The Twentieth Century Art Club met Jan. 26 in the clubrooms at the Jefferson Memorial. Mrs. W. L. Michener presided. Papers on Michael Angelo were given by Mrs. H. L. King and Miss Agatha Murphy. The papers were illustrated with stereopticon slides.

This club was organized in 1900, making this year its twenty-fifth anniversary. The years have attested to a growth in strength and in numbers until today the Twentieth Century Art Club ranks among the first in the State in the study and promotion of all that is good in art.

A fitting observance of this anniversary will be held before the close of the club year. In the 25 years the following women have served as president: Mmes. W. O. Beckley, Morton Jourdan, Forman Sloan, Arthur E. Reton, J. B. Dobyne, H. L. King, George F. Bergfeld, Thomas B. Teasdale, L. L. King, Albert D. Nortoni, Clinton P. Headley and Walter L. Michener.

The social hour Monday was presided over by Mrs. C. P. Headley, assisted by Mrs. Mary Gravely.

The Junior Girls' Auxiliary of the Jewish Orphan Home will hold its monthly meeting this afternoon at 2:30 p. m. at the Jewish Community Center, 3636 Page boulevard.

The beginners' class of the St. Louis Parliamentary Club will hold a regular meeting tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the committee room of Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney for the purpose of instruction under the direction of Mrs. N. P. Zimmer.

The Ensee Study Circle, M. F. W. C., met Monday, Jan. 26, at the home of Mrs. A. E. Wright on Enright avenue. After luncheon the president, Mrs. Fred Armstrong, gave a talk on business and finance, pertaining to the club's organised work. Helpful information was discussed from federated committee reports. GOOD-BYE FAT

LOST 43 POUNDS in 7 WEEKS—French Discovery Works out Wonders—Simple, Easy Way is Explained to You FREE.

"At last I kissed good-by to the ugly rolls of fat which burdened me for years—to-day I am a new woman, filled with pep and energy. No more tired feeling, backache, pains nor ills—no more puffing—no more trouble getting clothes to fit me—from a 'wall flower' I became one of the most popular girls in my set; now I have friends galore, and everyone admires my looks and envies my health. I am convinced from the results I have obtained and from the cases of several people I know, that any man or woman burdened with ugly, unhealthy fat can now easily, safely and surely lose it all, regain a slender figure and at the same time improve their health 100 per cent. with this marvelous new French discovery. For years I had tried everything known to reduce, without success. One day I met Madame Elaine of 350 West 31st street, New York City. She explained to me what I should do to reduce. The result was that in less than seven weeks I had lost 43 pounds. I DID NOT HAVE TO USE DANGEROUS DRUGS—WEAKENING EXERCISES OR DIETS—I DID NOT RUB MYSELF WITH ABSURD CREAMS, NOR DID I WEAR PAINFUL REDUCING GARMENTS. This discovery is simple, easy, safe. With it you can either lose 10 pounds or 100 pounds. All you need to do is to go to any good drug store, get a package of SAN-GRI-NA and take 2 small tablets before each meal. SAN-GRI-NA is GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS—cannot injure your health in any way; on the contrary, after I took SAN-GRI-NA my entire system felt stronger, my food digested better—no more bloating, headaches, nor puffing—with your excess fat melting away, you should find yourself filled with ambition and energy. Remember, that Madame Elaine herself lost 50 pounds in 2 months with this wonderful SAN-GRI-NA. I have lost over 43 pounds in 7 weeks, and I know of hundreds of women in New York and Paris who are keeping their figures slender and attractive with this most wonderful discovery for the reduction of excess fat. You are bound to use it some day—why not to-day?—(Mrs. G. B., N. Y. City.") On sale at Speckart Bros.', Draper's, Enderle's, Otto's, Judge & Dolph's, Wolff-Wilson's, Johnson or Kranson Bros.' Drug Stores or any department store.

The National Society of World War Registrars held their annual meeting in room 203, Chamber of Commerce, 511 Locust street, last Thursday.

The society was organized in 1920 and from the reports of the national chairman of the departments, an immense amount of organization work has been completed.

The chairman of the Gold Star Highways reported that the Governors of 48 states have approved the highway, and the State Highway Engineers of 21 states have named a state highway leading to the national center.

The State organizer for Missouri has visited many counties and is organizing units in St. Louis and the counties of the State.

The national publicity chairman made a report of the co-operation of the St. Louis newspapers in giving publicity in regard to St. Louis as the national Gold Star Highway center and the establishing of a revolving electrical star at the intersection of Lindell and Kingshighway boulevards and on the Kingshighway Gold Star Court of Honor boulevard in honor of the Gold Star Mothers and their veteran sons.

The Adjutant-Generals of many states have sent in a list of veterans of the World War, compiled in book form.

The national membership chairman is obtaining many active national members consisting of the veteran and all blood relatives.

Mrs. Frank P. Hays has been appointed national associate membership chairman.

The associate members are men or women who gave service in the Red Cross, Council of National Defense, Liberty Loan, Thrift Stamps, Food Administration and all other war services.

The regular monthly meeting of the registrars will be the fourth Friday in each month at 2 o'clock in room 203, Chamber of Commerce.

The Mothers' Club of Soldan High School will meet tomorrow, when Miss Lucy Elliot will give a demonstration of an intelligence test, and Prof. McGeogh of Washington University's psychology department will give a talk on "The Use and Possible Abuse of Intelligence Tests." The meeting is open to the public.

The Harmony Literary Club, M. F. W. C., held its regular meeting Friday. Mrs. J. T. Emmett was hostess for the afternoon. Mrs. W. C. Markham presided. Final plans were brought up by the chairman of the social committee, Mrs. Geo. Springmeyer, regarding the twenty-fifth birthday of the club, which will be celebrated in the form of a silver anniversary reciprocity held in the ballroom of the Chase Hotel, Feb. 6, from 2 to 5 o'clock. The program will consist of professional talent followed by Start Them Right!

The lessening of crime is a problem which has occupied the attention of the authorities of our principal cities for many years.
Recently the subject has taken fresh impetus.
Prominent men and women in all walks of life have taken an active interest in the matter and various methods have been suggested for its curbing.
Foremost in the methods advocated is PROPER HOME ENVIRONMENTS.
The ages-old saying "Bring up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it," may have its exceptions, but proper HOME training will lessen these exceptions.
Righteousness originates at home.

Pains

That are needless Relieve at once

Rheumatic pains, lameness, soreness—pains you can end at once should be stopped. The means should always be on call.

The modern relief is Red Pepper Rub. It so excels the old ways that there is no comparison. It is saving eons of pain.

Nothing else creates such concentrated, such penetrating heat. And heat that doesn't hurt.

Apply Red Pepper Rub and the tingling heat is instantly apparent. In three minutes that heat seems to reach the depths. Then the pain and soreness disappear.

At first the results seem like magic. No other method ever brought them. Then you come to rely on them. You come to know that most pain is easily avoided.

But these troubles often appear at night. That means hours of suffering. A jar of Red Pepper Rub on your shelf would prevent them.

So many people suffer needless pains—pains that this method can end in three minutes. That is a pity. Get this Rub today and have it ready to end every such pain at once.

How Anyone Can Wear a Perfect Complexion

Many a famous beauty owes her lovely skin to ordinary mercolized wax. The secret of its success is very simple. Every woman has a beautiful complexion underneath—but alas! This young and healthy complexion is choked and concealed by the outer skin that has become dry and discolored. A little mercolized wax applied at night and washed off in the morning, gradually, easily, and imperceptibly dissolves away the old, muddy or blemished scarf skin and brings out all the beauty of the fresh, clean, spotless skin that has been lying underneath. The results are quick, and truly marvelous. Obtain an ounce of mercolized wax from your druggist and enjoy the wonderful complexion you really possess!

USE CANTHROX Shampoo

BOBBED HAIR IS EASIER TO SHAMPOO

Here's a formula for shampooing bobbed hair that is the easiest shampoo to apply that you ever heard of.

You can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with Canthrox. It makes a very simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil, leaving a wonderfully clean, wholesome feeling. After its use you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy; so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of Canthrox, which you can get from any good druggist, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head.—Advertisement.

Health Questions Answered

Reducing Weight

Science recognizes truly the extreme embarrassment, the constant annoyance and the real danger of becoming too fleshy. It appears to be an established fact that obesity is often due to partial failure of the thyroid gland to secrete and disperse through the blood an iodine gland substance which nature intended as a regulator of the fat absorption from the food consumed. Science, through myriads of experiments, discovered that the simple administration of the dessicated thyroid gland substance, supplies to a degree, nature's need for the control of fatty accumulation.

For many years I have recommended Arbolone tablets as a reliable, non-secret home remedy, as it contains one grain of thyroid gland, with other approved ingredients, that have a tendency to aid in reducing the superfluous fatty tissues and to regulate the perverted craving for wrong foods. Taken as per directions, I have never known them to be harmful; on the contrary, many have gratefully written the facts of their success. Leading pharmacies dispense Arbolone tablets.

H. P. B. asks: Have tried many things to help me of kidney and bladder trouble. Have to arise many times each night, losing rest thereby, and on arising feel stiff and sore with dreadful backache and puffs under my eyes. Have been told there is no organic trouble, so what can I do?"

Answer: A tonic-diuretic, neutralizing agency in the form of Balmwort tablets may be taken for the relief you desire.

P. A. T. asks: I have been in a weak, run-down nervous condition since undergoing operations which confined me in bed for many weeks. Appetite fickle, pale, thin and circulation not good. What can I use to improve health?"

Answer: I suggest Cadomene tablets for the benefit they afford to the anemic blood and weakened nervous system.

Mrs. L. B. asks: "I want to reduce my weight, and wish to know if the Arbolone tablets you so often recommend are harmful to those who take them?"

Answer: In my opinion, backed up by observation and correspondents' statements, and the sale of hundreds of thousands of this tablet, they are not harmful when used as directed, but on the contrary they seem to give almost universal satifaction.

M. C. B. writes: "My blood and skin are in poor condition, because of a constant tendency to be constipated. Also am billious and have headache, besides pimples, itching, and occasionally a bad case of hives."

Answer: I suggest Sulpherb tablets, which tend to correct constipation while providing sulphur, cream of tartar, sarsaparilla as helpful in minor blood and skin disorders manifested by acne, itching, etc.

Mrs. M. A. writes: "I have found the 5-grain Su-thol tablets the most satisfactory in relieving pain, and so I am confidently writing for your advice as to an equally good medicine to use for my children's coughs and colds."

Answer: Obtain essence Mentho-Laxene. Use it—concentrated or dilute with sugar syrup or honey. Children like it best diluted. Either way the taste is pleasant and the effect unusually quick. Colds, just beginning, may often be checked if used promptly.

Mrs. J. R. asks: "I suffer greatly with neuritis. Is there anything to help relieve the dreadful pain?"

Answer: Neuritis is a condition which your physician should attend to. The analgesic power of triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve may give relief if lightly applied without rubbing. Five-grain Su-thol Tablets are often effective in relieving the pain when of a rheumatic character, or in simple neuralgia.

H. E. V. writes: "I hope you can tell me what to do to banish stomach trouble manifested by bloating, gas, sour-risings and a heavy sluggish feeling after meals followed by severe headache."

Answer: Watch your diet. Try to find and eat only that which agrees with you. Discontinue coffee if drunk to excess. Then take Triopeptine tablets to aid the digestive processes, and in a short time the distress should be gone.

Miss C. R. C. asks: "Will you recommend a method whereby I may increase my weight and thereby improve my appearance? I am very thin and colorless and a few pounds is my wish."

Answer: Sleep in a well ventilated room and take deep breathing exercises at least three times daily. Drink milk daily. As a nutritional tonic take Hypo-Nuclane tablets, which contain elements often needed by the abnormally thin persons.

Mrs. M. M. asks: "Can you recommend a sanitary antiseptic for a douche which will not irritate or injure when catarrhal condition is present?"

Answer: Obtain Vilane Powder, a simple alkaline antiseptic, which is never irritating or injurious. Directions come with each package.

Answer to Mrs. C.: To improve the quality of your blood, build strength and avoid catching cold so frequently, try using Cadomene tablets for several weeks as a tonic.

NOTE: For many years, Dr. Lewis Baker, Medical Director, The Blackburn Products Co., College Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, has been recommending trustworthy medicines to millions of people through the medium of the newspapers, and doubtless has helped in relieving the ailments and minor infirmities of the public more than any single individual in the world's history; and by an inexpensive method.

The medicines mentioned by him are pure and free from habit-forming drugs. They represent the combined wisdom and experience of physician and chemist.

Progressive druggists can supply them.

By reading his answers to others you should find a case similar to your own.

A copy of Dr. Baker's great guide book, "Health and Beauty," will be mailed to any one sending ten cents (coin).

Thousands have written him expressions similar to the following:

Letters to Dr. Baker

NEW YORK CITY: N. Mc. St. Clair, R. N., 34 W. 126th St., writes: "I have benefited after using for about three months when all other prescriptions did me no good at all. Arbolone certainly has done for me and another member of my family what nothing else could do though I had tried for years, etc."

* * *

CLEVELAND, OHIO: Mrs. Geo. Harris, 1022 St. Clair St., writes: "I have followed directions and lost 10 pounds in two weeks, thanks to Arbolone tablets, etc."

* * *

MONONGAHELA, PA.: Mrs. Tom Wood, Church St., writes: "I have been troubled by a bad condition of the blood for some time. My face would be unsightly, marred by blotches and pimples (acne). I suffered also with severe bilious headaches. On reading your advice in our Pittsburgh paper, I purchased three boxes of 3-grain Sulpherb tablets and today I can readily recommend them. They are worth twice the price asked for them. It is my wish that the whole world know of this wonderful remedy, etc."

VALLEY FALLS, RHODE ISLAND: Mary Cummings, 56 High St., writes: "Your Su-thol tablets (for relief of pain) and Cadomene tablets as a tonic are wonderful. I never had anything, no matter what price I paid for it, that worked so sure, so mild and wonderful. I am glad to write you about them and will adways keep a supply in my home, etc."

* * *

CLEVELAND, OHIO: Mrs. H. Kohl, 2657 E. 130th St., writes: "I read your health helps in the paper. I had suffered with nasal and throat catarrh. After using two tubes of Mentho-Laxene Salve and two boxes of Vilane Powder, I am almost entirely well. They are both wonderful remedies, etc."

* * *

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO: Marie Ellis, 625 Fairmont Av., writes: "Our family has used Casca Royal Pills for many years and have always found them to be an ideal physic. Have experimented with other pills at times but always go back to Casca Royal. Sincerely, etc."

ROCHESTER, N. Y.: Mr. Wm. J. Wilson, 29 George St., writes: "My wife, my son and myself all suffered from digestive troubles, and I wish to tell you of the benefits we received from taking Triopeptine tablets. Never had anything like them. I have no more trouble. I recommend to all I know, etc."

* * *

HANOVER, KANS.: Mrs. Mina Jaedicke writes: "Last winter I used essence Mentho-Laxene with excellent results. I had a stubborn cough from which I could not get relief until I used it. The cough yielded almost instantly, and I was well pleased. With my best wishes, etc."

EAST LYNN, MASS.: Mrs. F. G. Billings, 26 Williams Av., writes: "In the past two years I had two operations. They both left me with a weakened and nervous condition. I saw your advice about Cadomene tablets. Have taken 3 boxes and weakness has left me and my nerves are improving every day. I cannot speak too highly of them, etc."

MUSCATINE, IOWA: Harold Kopf, 106 E. Second St., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys and bladder so bad I could only work a few hours a day. At night was up and down 3 to 4 times and in the morning could hardly bend over to dress myself. I took one box of Balmwort tablets and never have been troubled since. Also have recommended to others and they have found relief, etc."

* * *

LYONS, N. Y.: L. H. Gutschow, 38 Spencer St., writes: "Some two months ago I had a very stubborn case of dandruff. I purchased two jars of plain yellow Minyol, used them both. It is without doubt the finest scalp treatment on the market today, because it not only stops the dandruff but stimulates new hair growth and restores life and luster to the hair. I heartily recommend it to the public, etc."

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.

You Can't Comb it Out

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, and bladder disorders.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and other organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

WEBSTER GROVES WOMAN WINS FIRST GRAND PRIZE; THREE OTHERS TO TEXAS

Mrs. William Bauer, C. Evans, Mrs. John F. Link and Miss Lenora McDonald Get Top Awards.

THE Tangled Comic, keenest rival of the cross-word puzzle, has enlisted more than 150,000 "fans" in St. Louis and the Post-Dispatch circulation territory, in the past three months.

The four grand prize awards, which amount to $1800 and which complete the distribution of $15,-00 to 3976 contestants, are announced here.

FIRST PRIZE, $1000.

Mrs. William Bauer, 720 Greeley avenue, Webster Groves, Mo. For solution of Tangled Comic No. 7.

SECOND PRIZE, $500.

C. Evans, P. O. Box 586, Dallas, Tex. For No. 12.

THIRD PRIZE, $200.

Mrs. John F. Link, 108½ North commerce street, Fort Worth, Tex. For No. 3.

FOURTH PRIZE, $100.

Miss Lenora McDonald, 509 South Adams street, Fort Worth, Tex. For No. 10.

Honorable mention is given to four other competitors in the grand prize awards. They are:

Raymond E. Helmerichs, 6211 Marmaduke avenue, St. Louis. For No. 2.

John W. Newcomb, 1533 Marcus avenue, St. Louis. For No. 11.

John F. Link, 108½ North Commerce street, Fort Worth, Tex. For No. 9.

John H. D. Langebartel, 520 South Ninth street, Quincy, Ill. For No. 5.

Winning Answers to Be Displayed.

The grand prize-winning solutions will be on view shortly at the Famous-Barr store, sixth floor. Contestants in and near St. Louis, who "got it right" once or oftener and who have wondered why they received no prize, or only a small award, may see, by looking at the winner's work, how much more they did than merely to "get it right."

The first condition of the awards was accuracy and correctness. But so many met this requirement that the competition came to turn on the two other conditions—neatness of the finished solution, and skill, originality or unique method of arrangement.

The last condition, to those who read it attentively, suggested the possibility of "stunts." And many "stunt" solutions were received.

Many Sided Ingenuity.

Many of the "fans" sent in real fans, with the rearranged and corrected comics, in their order, pasted within their folds. Lamp shades and telephone screens bore the solutions of others. Pillows and quilts were favorite modes of display.

A miniature billboard, built in workmanlike fashion, painted white, and with electric lights in such a position as to reflect upon the display of rectangular pictures, was the most substantial, though probably not the most artistic, of the frames devised by ingenious contestants. It won fourth grand prize.

Several toy theaters were received. The "cutest" of these, which won third grand prize, had a high pasteboard proscenium, scenery in the wings, fringed curtain, tiny vases of flowers at either side of the stage, and a music box to serve as orchestral accompaniment as the roll of comics is run off, one picture appearing at a time.

Colonial dolls, their gowns concealing electric lamps, gave the display opportunity sought by other seekers of the unique. China plates and platters bore the work of others. The sawed-out form of a bellboy, taken from a display advertisement of the Tangled Comic competition, held in its hand, instead of a bag of money, a sheaf of solutions.

Two Highest Not "Stunts."

Artists' tables and easels were used as means of display. The motion picture film idea was worked out in various ways. Radio devices were simulated in the setting of one of the comics, which had to do with the radio. Calendars, handkerchiefs, aprons, books, albums and portfolios were in many forms.

The cleverest of these "stunts" were recognized with prizes in the weekly competitions, in which a $100 prize and 330 other prizes, a total of $1100, were disbursed for each of the 12 subjects.

But the two highest grand prizes were not "stunt" solutions. They were mounted on very heavy cardboard, with fresh white paper backgrounds, and were cut and assembled with marvelous neatness.

Mrs. Bauer's Artistry.

Mrs. Bauer's first prize picture was worked out as delicately as lace or drawn-work. In two of the sections, square tiles of a wall had been cut out individually, and pasted so neatly and truly as to form a representation as artistic as a painter could have made. Every detail of the drawings was made to stand out, and the seams in sections which had been cut diagonally were hardly visible. Even the single line border around each picture was cut out and mounted with extraordinary neatness.

The second grand prize winner followed a similar plan.

An artistic border was provided by both the first and the second grand prize winners, the second winner's treatment of his subject being similar to that of Mrs. Bauer, with a different subject.

Photographs, and their printed reproductions, would not show the delicate skill with which these two solutions were set forth. They are not printed, therefore, but will be on display.

150,000 Answers.

Tangled Comic No. 10, printed Jan. 4, was the one which brought most solutions. The number received was 19,393. No. 4, with 15,-714, and No. 12, with 15,073, were next. No. 3 brought the smallest number of solutions, 8861. The total number of solutions received for the 12 weeks were 142,031.

In addition to those regularly received, thousands of others were rejected for insufficient postage, or for arriving after the time specified. These, it is believed, were enough in number to bring the total of attempted solutions to 150,-000.

An Artist's Mistake.

Last week, in publishing the awards for No. 11, the Post-Dispatch said that the word "alright," which is not a word at all, but a mistaken version of "all right," had been the chief stumbling block of contestants, many of whom had overlooked it, while correcting other errors properly. This was true; but in the corrected picture, which accompanied the matter, the "alright" still appeared, through an inadvertence. In that case, the picture was wrong and the news story was right, and the Post-Dispatch now repeats, in reply to many inquiries, that "alright" is not a good word. One dictionary contains it, but labels it an "erroneous form." The word in the artist's drawing, which was misspelled was most unfortunately not corrected for reproduction.

The individual winners of the twelfth and final competition are printed on this page.

Two Elaborate Settings for Tangled Comic Solutions

POST-DISPATCH THEATRE

THIS toy theater, with silk-fringed curtain, music-box orchestra and vases of flowers at either side of the stage, was the setting used by Mrs. Link of Fort Worth for her solution of Tangled Comic No. 3. She won the third grand prize of $200. The 12 episodes of the comic unroll so as to give a moving-picture effect.

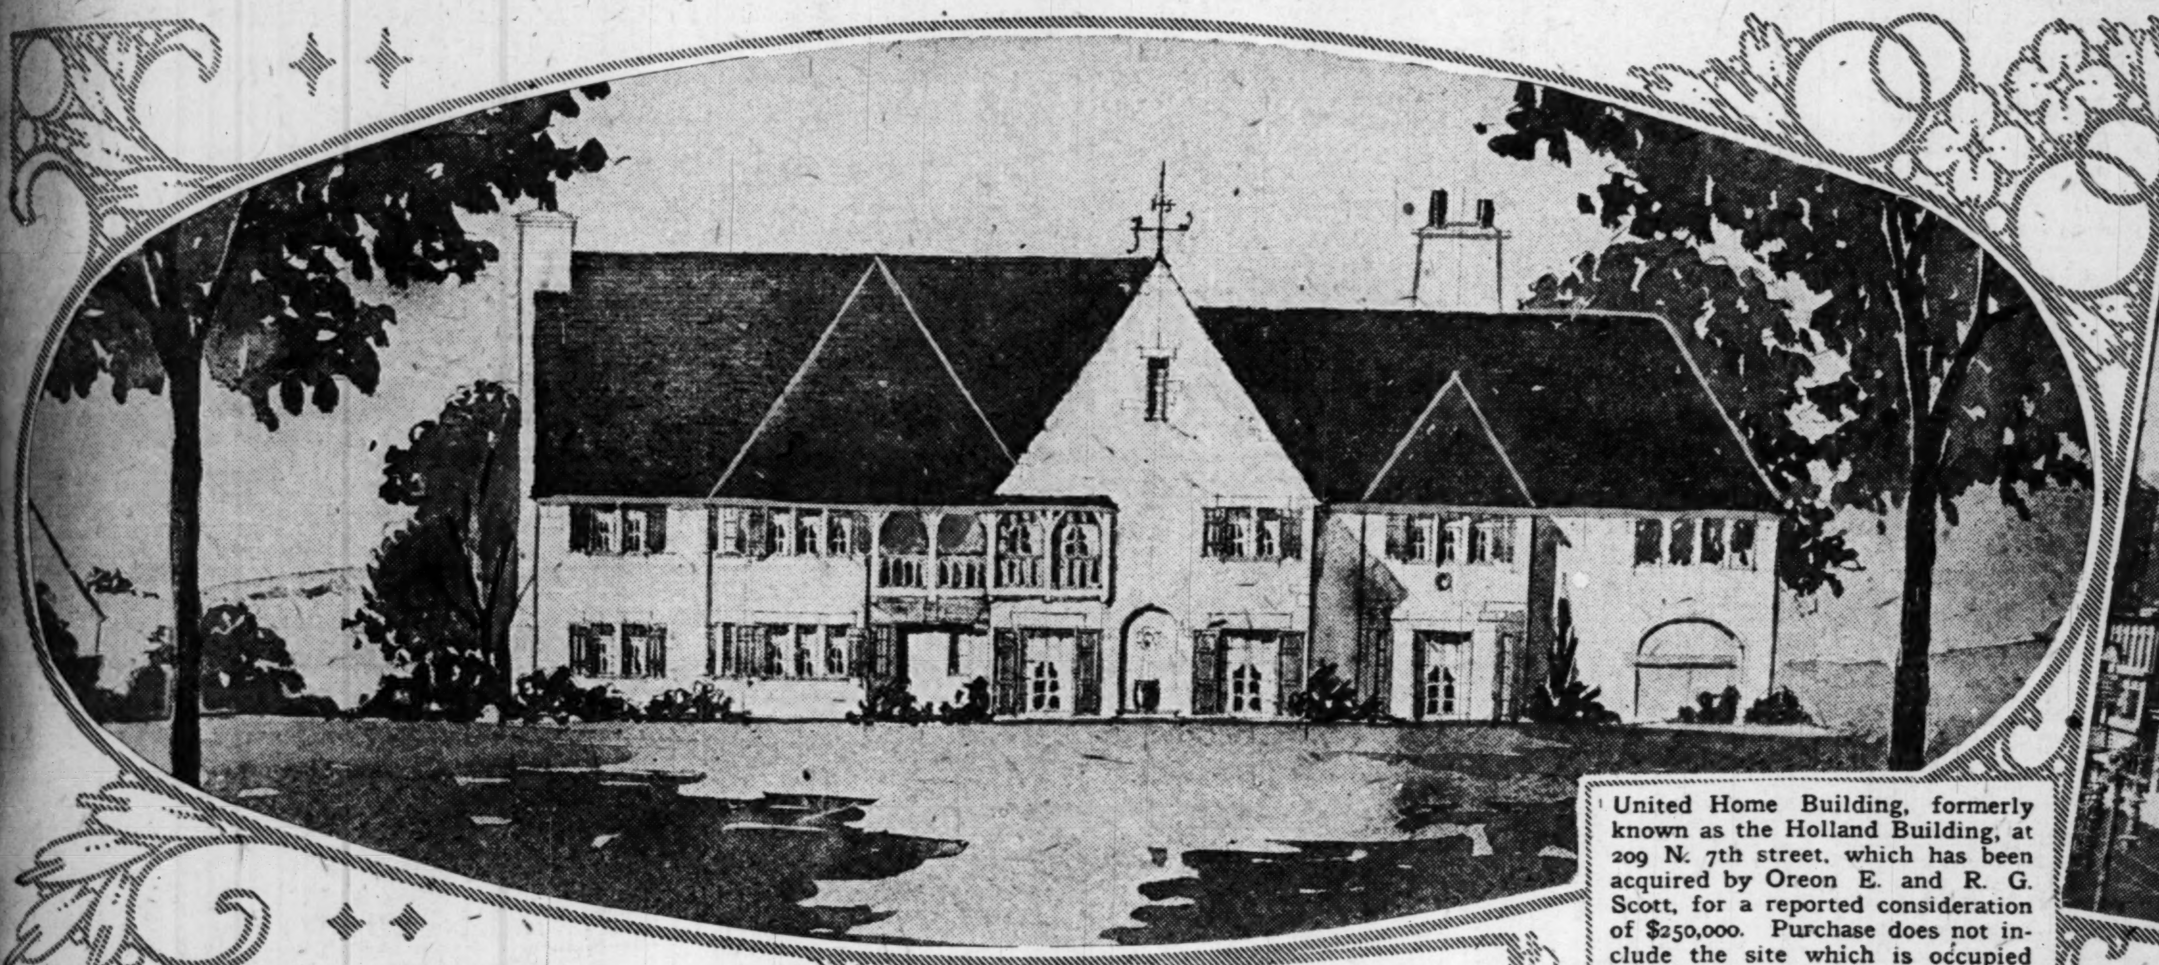
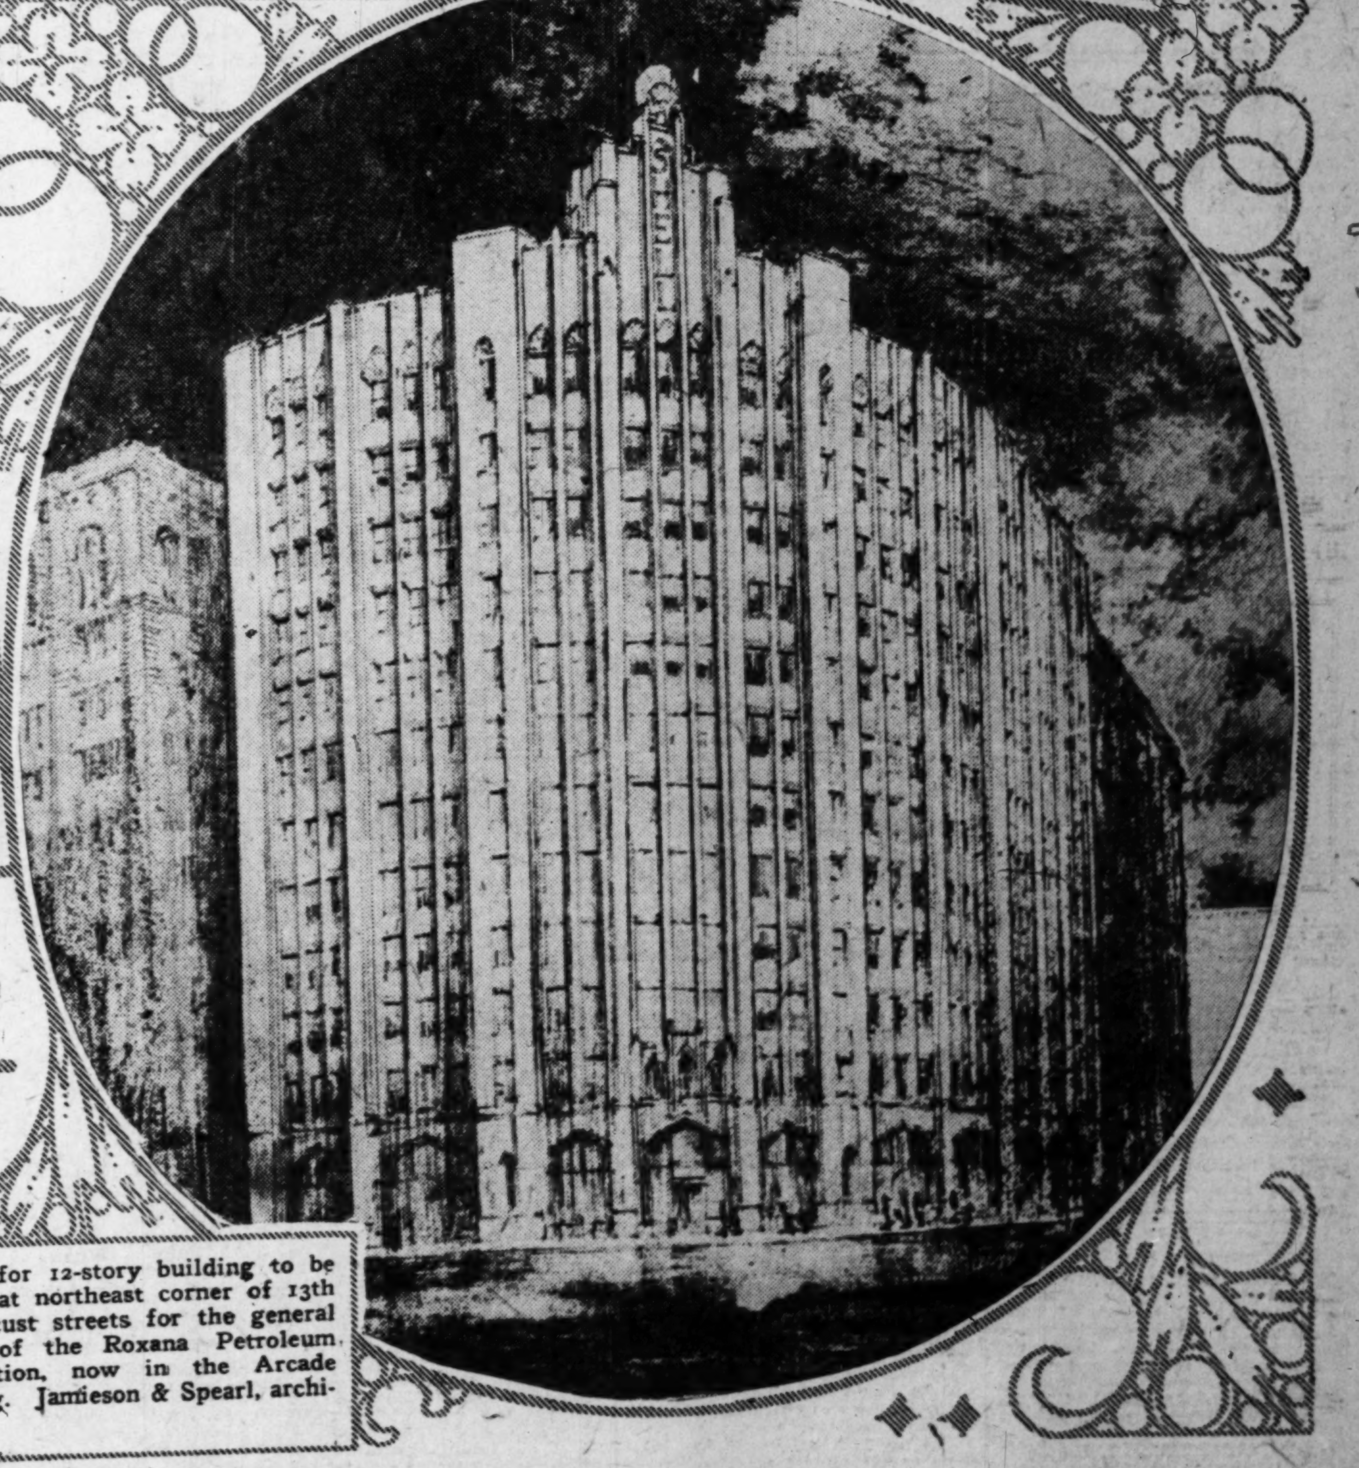
New 12-Story Shell Building and Office Structure and Hotel Included in Speculative Transactions—New Country Residence



Residence for Oliver Anderson on the south side of Ladue road, about half a mile west of the St. Louis Country Club grounds. Maritz & Young, Inc., architects.

United Home Building, formerly known as the Holland Building, at 209 N. 7th street, which has been acquired by Oreon E. and R. G. Scott, for a reported consideration of $250,000. Purchase does not include the site which is occupied under 99-year lease.

Marquette Hotel at the southeast corner of Washington avenue and 18th street, sold to the Levitt Corporation for $1,200,000.



Design for 12-story building to be erected at northeast corner of 13th and Locust streets for the general offices of the Roxana Petroleum Corporation, now in the Arcade Building. Jamieson & Spearl, architects.

Sale of Home Builders' Property Clears Mortgage

Encumbrance of $191,000 to Be Paid and Remaining $59,000 Divided Among Creditors.

By Berry Moore.

The outstanding feature of the week in realty transactions was furnished by Oreon E. & R. G. Scott, who yesterday concluded the purchase of the United Home building, formerly the Holland buildingg, at 209 North Seventh street, for $250,000.

Sale of the property was authorized Thursday at that price by Circuit Judge Falkenhainer, but at the time the identity of the prospective purchaser was not disclosed. Negotiations were handled by the Albert Wenzlick Real Estate Co., through Sidney Schiele, in connection with State Finance Commissioner Millspaugh, represented by former Circuit Judge Vital Garesche. The transaction does not include the site, which is occupied under a 99-year lease.

The building, a 13-story structure of the tower type, was taken over by Millspaugh, together with other assets of the Home Builders, in July, 1923. The sale was made urgent owing to a mortgage of $191,000, which was overdue and which is to be liquidated out of the purchase money. The balance of the purchase money, $59,000, will be divided between the creditors and stockholders of the United Home Builders.

The purchasers have plans for the complete rehabilitation of the building, which will include the installation of new passenger and freight elevators of the most improved type.

Third Big Realty Deal.

This makes the third extensive acquisition of the Scotts in the downtown district, the other two embracing the Scott Building, at the southwest corner of Eighth and Chestnut streets, which has been remodeled on a handsome scale, and the former Peper holdings, comprising three-quarters of the block at the southeast corner of Twelfth boulevard and Market street.

The deal for the United Home Building is especially significant in view of the fact that the Scotts are among the most astute real estate operators in the city.

The week was marked by renewed operations in large holdings on an aggressive scale, the business district both east and west of Twelfth boulevard, as well as the Grand boulevard district, being characterized by decided buoyancy.

Marquette Hotel Sold.

chase of the Marquette Hotel, had been pending for several weeks, was brought to successful conclusion yesterday. Title was acquired by the Leavitt Corporation, of which Samuel Leavitt, an attorney, is president. Consideration in this instance was $1,200,000, according to the deed.

The grantor in the transaction was the Marquette Hotel Co., of which C. H. Glancy was president, and which was represented by Fletcher R. Harris of the Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co. Harris promoted the hotel building enterprise, together with several other notable improvements, which formed the nucleus for the present advanced development of upper Washington avenue.

The building, a 10-story structure, includes 365 guest rooms and nine stores, and has a frontage on Washington avenue of 316 feet by a depth of 150 feet on Eighteenth street.

According to realty circles, negotiations are progresisng favorably for the erection of a lofty hotel structure at the northwest corner of Washington avenue and Eighteenth street. It is to be financed and controlled by Chicago interests, it is understood.

New Grand Boulevard Building.

The northeast corner of Grand boulevard and Franklin avenue has been acquired under a 99-year lease by Saum, Architects, through the Albert G. Blanke Real Estate Co., which is to finance the improvements. An attractive shops building is to be erected on the site, which has extensive frontage on both Grand boulevard and Franklin avenue, and which was formerly occupied by the building of the Central Y. M. C. A., destroyed by fire.

Negotiations are already under way for leases of large floor space in the new 12-story Shell Building, to be erected at the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Locust streets by the Roxana Petroleum Corporation, according to Phil H. Zepp, real estate officer of the Mercantile Trust Co., which will have the management of the building. Approximately 60 per cent of the space in the new building will be occupied by the Roxana Petroleum Corporation. This improvement promises to form one of the most notable features incident to the Memorial Plaza project.

DRUG STORE OWNER BUYS ON 9TH STREET

Another notable sale involved 114 North Ninth street, the purchaser being George M. Scheu, president of a chain of retail drug stores, with headquarters at Twelfth boulevard and Pine street. Negotiations were conducted by the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., which has interested the purchaser in a number of other locations recently.

The building, a three-story structure comprising stores and offices, has a frontage of 25 feet 6 inches by a depth of 127 feet to an alley, and adjoins the building to be occupied by the Cytron Mortgage Co. The former owner was E. Ahlemeier. The price paid was not disclosed. The building is to be remodeled with a new front and otherwise made attractive. It will be under the management of the Weisels-Gerhart company.

H. H. MAYER REALTY CO. MOVES INTO LARGER OFFICE

H. H. Mayer Realty & Building Co. has removed its office from 5004 North Union boulevard to 3328 North Union boulevard to larger quarters. The location is just south of Natural Bridge avenue.

Larger quarters were made necessary in order to meet the growing demands of the concern's business.

PLANS FOR NEW SHELL BUILDING COMPLETED

Structure to Be Twelve Stories High Instead of Nine as First Announced.

Plans have been completed for the new Shell Building to be erected at the northeast corner of Thirteeenth and Locust streets by the Roxana Petroleum Corporation, which recently purchased the site through Mercantile Trust Co.

The building will be 12 stories in height, instead of nine, as was originaly announced, and will occupy a commanding position where Locust street will join the proposed Memorial Plaza, and where it can be seen as far west as Theresa avenue.

This will be the first notable building to be erected in connection with the Plaza project. A tower on the axis of the street will distinguish the structure. Exterior will be of Bedford stone or of special light brick with Bedford stone trimmings.

The type of architecture belongs to no particular style, but is a development of the structural requirements. The building has been planned with a special view to eliminating all dark corners and poorly lighted flooor areas. The windows will be large, extending to within a few inches of the ceiling. Entrance lobby to the building itself will be at the east end of the Locust street front and will be richly decorated in marble, with a vaulted ceiling.

Specifications provide for high-speed elevators of the latest type. Entire equipment of the building will be first-class. While not the largest it will probably be the most complete and best appointed of any of the newer office buildings in St. Louis, according to officials of the Roxana Corporation.

Approximately 50 per cent of teh space will be occupied by the Roxana Petroleum Corporation, producer and distributor of Shell gasoline, and other petroleum products. The remainder of the space will be offered for lease to high class office tenants through the Mercantile Trust Co., which is now receiving applications from prospective tenants. Negotiations are pending for several floors of the building for occupancy by representative concerns.

The building was designed by Jamieson & Spearl, architects.

BEAUMONT AND MARKET CORNER BOUGHT BY GRALNICK

As a site for a modern business building to comprise eight stores and 16 offices on the upper floors, A. A. Gralnick has purchased through Mullin and Walters the southwest corner of Beaumont and Market streets.

The site has a frontage of 26 feet on Market by a depth of 159 feet on Beaumont. An old building now occupies the site which will be appreciably enhanced in value with the widening of Market, provided for under the $87,000,000 bond issue.

The new building will be ready for occupancy by April. Sale of the corner was on behalf of Dave Goldman.

Plan before building or remodeling for residential use to pipe throughout for Gas so that gas-fired basement heating plants, laundry appliances and water heaters, gas ranges and gas-fired radiant heaters may be installed when desired. It will add to the comfort, saleability and rental value of your property.

Rapidly increasing use of Gas as industrial fuel virtually demands that all structures for factory, plant or business use be piped throughout for Gas.

☆ A SPECIAL ☆
NEW MAT BRICK FLAT
IN GANSS' CREST HILL
4863 PENROSE—$11,500
SEEING IS BELIEVING
OPEN TODAY 10 A. M. TO 5 P. M.

The above advertisement appeared last Sunday. This flat was sold.

I advised quick action—But—can console the many disappointed prospective buyers—(if they can wait until May 15)—with equally as good a bargain in the two new flats immediately adjoining, now being erected—the same honest, substantial construction—probably at the same price, possibly at a slight advance.

You, your builder or architect, are respectfully requested to carefully scrutinize these buildings while in course of construction—notwithstanding the propaganda that it is impossible to deliver at the price advertised. It has been accomplished, and will be done again.

Remember, there was no inflation in the price of the ground, and the material is bought in carload quantities, the work executed by union mechanics—who know how—and last, but not least, the builder is satisfied with a moderate profit. Come out and be convinced. Be guided by the leading star and follow the crowd.

I am authorized by the purchaser of 4863 Penrose st. to show same to those anticipating or contemplating owning their own "Home, Sweet Home" and investment.

California

MAKE more money on a small farm in San Joaquin Valley, Cal., where you can work outdoors all the year. Splendid opportunities here for the man of moderate means. Twenty and 40-acre farms grow alfalfa abundantly. Dairying, hogs and poultry make good returns; and many varieties of fruits yield dependable crops; a combination of these means a certain income from a well-balanced farm with good income throughout the year. Winterless California offers much to the man looking for the country where he can get the most out of life. Climate is delightful, with long growing seasons; wonderful roads, excellent schools. Nearby markets and cooperative marketing associations afford profitable outlets for all produce. A small one-family farm, cutting out high labor costs, insures success. There are no winter handicaps. ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

CONSTANT READER.—Varnish and paint, no matter how old and hard, may be softened in a few minutes so that they can be easily scraped off, by applying the following mixture: Water glass, 5 parts; soda lye, 40 degrees B. (27 per cent), 1 part; ammonia water, 1 part. Mix well and apply.

F. S. D.—To take varnish out of cloth, soak the spot with a sponge dipped in alcohol, wetting the sponge as it dries and covering with a thick cloth to prevent too rapid evaporation. When the varnish has softened, scrape off all that will come away, and scrub off the rest with household ammonia.

CAROLYN. — The bear dens at the Forest Park are man-made mountains of concrete. They are built on a hillside just south of Washington drive. The "rocks" were formed from molds patterned after limestone on the Mississippi River bluffs. Concrete shot from a "gun" given them unusual strength and exposure to the weather will turn their whiteness into a more natural color. Portions have been artificially colored. There are fissures and other faults in the "mountains" which, altogether, give the dens a natural appearance. Nothing but a placid moat separates bears and spectators, but that is enough because of the hidden shelving wall of the moat. There is a single railing to keep adventurous children from the water.

HOUSEWIFE.—When your silver is not in regular and daily use, and when you would lay it by in the plate chest for weeks or months, there is no reason why you should expect it to tarnish during its seclusion. Have it perfectly clean when you lay it aside. Do not touch it with the naked hand. Perspiration is an unholy combination of salts and acids, and no matter how dry and clean your fingers may seem to you to be, invisible perspiration is always there and potent Take up spoons and forks and large pieces of silverware with a bit of cotton batting, wrap them carefully in tissue paper and pack in a chest or box. Put a bit of gum camphor in the bottom of the box, close the lid and give yourself no further concern as to tarnish. It will keep bright for six months or for six years.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

H. J. G.—You can hold the man responsible for the cost of cleaning the rug.

A. C.—You can sell your body to be used after death, if you can find a purchaser. We do not think the contract would be binding.

A READER.—A girl is of age in Missouri at 21. Under the circumstances stated a girl of 18 would be justified in leaving home in our opinion.

VICTIM.—Under the law he has a right to file a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. After he has gone into bankruptcy you are no longer able to sue him or to garnish his wages to collect the money he borrowed.

BROWN EYES.—We do not think the circumstances stated would afford grounds for giving the custody of the child to your husband. You should consult a lawyer regarding a suit for separate maintenance.

MUCH OBLIGED. — You do not need to make any income tax return, as your net income was only $1200 and you are living with your wife, unless the gross income from your business was more than $5000.

A WORRIED MOTHER.—Under the conditions as stated you could not legally allow your sister to adopt your child. You can make a will leaving your money to your child, and stating that you desire your sister to be appointed as guardian on your death.

X. Y. Z.—There is no law requiring that marriage licenses be published, but they are a matter of public record and the St. Louis newspapers make a practice of publishing marriage licenses issued here, as news, and for the information of their readers.

READER. — A landlord should give the tenant one month's written notice to vacate. The notice must be served on the tenant not later than the day before the rent is due, but service several days before this day is equally good. The notice you have appears to be legal.

H. D.—(1) If you failed to pay the deed of trust note when it became due the holder could foreclose on the property under the deed of trust. (2) If the material was used in your house they can file a mechanic's lien against the house even though you paid in full the person who did the work.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

Z. W.—The normal blood pressure for a man of 57 years is 134.

JOHN.—You will need to give more information, state age and condition existing during the day.

WORRIED X. — We suggest painting the spot with the following: Iodine, 2 drams; colorless oil of wood tar, 5 drams.

M. BEE.—You need to be more explicit. If you mean as a local application the drug is not efficient.

GOLD LACE.—The elastic pulleys carried by sporting goods houses are splendid for the shoulder exercises. Directions accompany them.

A CONSTANT READER.—Such books as you desire can be secured at the medical book shops. See classified list in the city or telephone directories. It is possible they may also be found in the Public Library.

DAILY READER.—(1) We cannot undertake to run a daily schedule of meals for an individual. Use your judgment. At your age the ordinary food of an adult may be taken. (2) To give correct weight, age and height must be given.

HARMONY. — The tongue may be coated due to various conditions of disturbance of health. Very often the condition is caused by deranged digestion or constipation, or both. An examination should be made if any derangement of health seems to exist.

NOT WELL.—(1) Cholelith pills are recommended for disorders of digestion and disorders of the liver and gall bladder. (2) We advise taking one-tenth grain calomel tablets every two hours, avoiding acids. (3) The symptoms you mention do not necessarily indicate liver trouble.

A rose that is sweetest and fairest
In the end—is killed by the frost,

Is the loved one that I have lost,

By the valley of rest so fair,
Some day, some time when my task is done
With joy we shall muster there.

Ar the hands that made our home.

In memory of Mark N. Little, who died one year ago, Jan. 29, 1924.
In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one I loved so dearly
In his silent, lonely grave.
Oh so calmly did he leave me,
How I miss his smiling face;
He is gone but not forgotten
To the far off distant place.
For his soul so pure and holy,
God did not permit to stay,
He had won his crown in heaven
Sadly missed by his beloved wife,
MRS. M. A. LITTLE.

SLAYER OF KANSAS WARDEN FOUND IN OKLAHOMA PRISON

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 31.—Charles O'Keith, 19 years old, who escaped from the Tucker State Farm last August while serving a 20-year sentence for the murder of Deputy Warden Burns of the Kansas State Prison near Alicia, Ark., was located tonight in the Granite (Ok.) Prison, where he is serving a 10-year sentence, according to Warden Evans of Arkansas Prison.

O'Keith and Benny Casey were serving long terms in a Kansas prison when they escaped. The pair were recaptured at Texarkana, Casey's former home, and were being returned to Kansas by Warden Burns when the officer was shot. The prisoners escaped. O'Keith was again captured a short time later near Bono, Ark., and was convicted on a charge of second degree murder in connection with the slaying of Burns. He was sent to the Tucker State Farm, but again escaped last August.

Casey is under arrest in Mississippi.

CHAUFFEUR SUES DAUDET

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—The chauffeur Badot, in whose taxicab young Philippe Daudet was found dying in November, 1923, has brought a libel action against the youth's father, Leon Daudet, royalist leader and former Deputy. The case is called for May 23.

After an investigation of more than a year Leon Daudet early this week lodged charges against five persons whom he alleges were implicated in the death of his son. He charged that the crime was of a political nature and named a police commissary, two officers, a former officer of the secret service and a storekeeper. After the shooting he claimed the youth was placed in the taxicab with the revolver beside him, in an attempt to indicate suicide.

Bolivian Colonists, Broke, Returning to Oklahoma

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray's Project Has Met With Difficulties From Start, Immigrants Declare.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.
(Copyright, 1925.)

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 31.—Warren Gates, his wife and four small children, and his brother, Erwin Gates, all members of "Alfalfa Bill" Murray's Bolivia colony, started in April, 1924, have sailed for New York after abandoning the project. They arrived in Buenos Aires a few days ago with barely enough money to pay for their passage home, and asserted that only two families remained with Murray and his two married sons on the colony site.

Last year the advance colonists numbered about 75. Their arrival in the spring was heralded as the opening of a fertile Bolivian valley by Oklahoma farmers. From the start the affairs of the immigrants went bad, according to Gates. He asserts that there has been no rainfall in the entire tract and that it is covered with heavy forests.

Two Families Stranded.

It is necessary, he says, even to cut roads through the woods. The distance of the tract from the railroad would prevent marketing of crops, even should it be possible to raise anything among the stumps.

Murray obtained the tract of 20,000 acres from the Bolivian Government and options on a larger tract, all in close proximity to the famous Standard Oil reserve. An oil field of 4,000,000 acres is in the Santa Cruz district of Bolivia, just over the Argentine frontier. Gates asserts that the two remaining families of the colony are without sufficient money to pay their fares back to the United States.

Can't Sell Merchandise.

The Murray families hold a stock of merchandise brought from the United States, but are unable to dispose of it except to naked Indians who live a distance requiring several days' travel on muleback from the colony.

Murray at one time was prominent in Oklahoma politics and was president of the Constitutional Convention. He was also a member at large in Congress from Oklahoma for four years. Defeated in 1916 for re-election, he turned his attention to the Bolivian colonization scheme. It is said here that when he arrived in Bolivia he carried letters from William J. Bryan, Champ Clark and Cardinal Gibbons. He was well received in Government circles and much entertained.

COMMITTEE ASKS NAVY FOR DATA ON THE WASHINGTON

Air Chief Says Naval Officers Are Afraid to Tell "the Real Truth" of Sinking.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The House Aircraft Committee today voted to ask the Navy Department for information regarding the recent bombing and sinking of the battleship Washington. It also decided to ask Secretary Weeks for information contained in the confidential "communication" which Brigadier-General Mitchell, Assistant Chief of the Army Air Service, today told the committee he had ceived as the result of recent testimony he had given before it.

Gen. Mitchell charged it was almost impossible for the committee to obtain correct information from the services on aviation because in testifying officers were afraid of indirect disciplinary action from other departments. The navy should be made to tell "the real truth" of the sinking of the Washington, Gen. Mitchell said. He added that army airplanes could have sunk the Washington in "from two to four minutes."

The navy would rapidly develop into an undersea branch, Gen. Mitchell said in urging a unified air force. He did not advocate immediate abolition of battleships, but declared it was coming to that and that money should be put into submarines and airplanes, rather than into costly battleships that were fast becoming obsolete.

The condensers of the battleship Washington were entirely unaffected by the explosion of bombs, according to a statement today by Secretary Wilbur. Specific tests were made to determine whether bombs exploded in the vicinity of the ship would affect the condensers, Gen. Mitchell having been quoted as stating that the explosion of a 165-pound bomb a mile and a half away would put the condensers out of business.

SHAKSPEARE GIVES WAY TO GIRL SHOW AT DRURY LANE

England's Two Foremost Producers Split Over Instrusion of "Low Brow" at Historic House.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The historic Drury Lane Theater of London, which has been staging Shakspearean productions, will change its policy next month. "Rose Marie," the girl show which has scored a success here, is to succeed the big "all-star" production of "Midsummer Night's Dream" now being presented at the Drury Lane. This change in policy has caused a split between England's two foremost producers and partners, Sir Alfred Butt and Basil Dean.

Sir Alfred, after witnessing "Rose Marie" here, purchased the Engilish production rights from Arthur Hammerstein. Dean opposed the substitution of the "low brow" for the "high brow," as he termed it. Directors of the Drury Lane supported Sir Alfred, with the result that "Rose Marie" goes in and Dean with classic "art" goes out.

Announcement made from the Hammerstein offices here today was that a specially prepared English company will open the musical show in London on March 9. It was also stated that Edith Day had been engaged to play the title part. As a result, it was announced "Wildflower," in which Miss Day is now appearing, will close next Saturday night.

MINISTER'S DAUGHTER ENDS LIFE "BECAUSE OF FAILURE"

"I Can't Stand Being an Underfellow Any Longer," Wrote Missouri Girl in Memphis.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 31.—Failure more quickly to achieve success is believed to have prompted Miss Grace L. Dickson, 19 years old, the daughter of the Rev. Matthew C. Dickson of Greenridge, Mo., to swallow poison here early today. She was found dead today in her room at a private dwelling, where she had made her home since coming to Memphis two years ago. Hospital attaches who examined her body attributed her death to poison.

A note found in the room addressed to the "Dear Folks at Home," read:

"I hope you will not grieve for me. I am a failure in everything that I have attempted. I can't stand this mental agony of being an under-fellow any longer."

An empty glass and a bottle believed to have contained poison also was found.

Miss Dickson was employed in a telephone exchange, but according to friends was talented and had aspirations as a writer and musician.

The shadow foretells (for the groundhog if he steps outside) the shortest winter on record — ending abruptly on Feb. 2

Read all about the Groundhog and His Day on page 2 of this Magazine

The Shadow of February 2

A groundhog photographed in Nebraska but not on Feb. 2, when the clean-cut shadow beside him would have sent the little creature scurrying back into his burrow. Anyway, that is the tradition.

THE one day of the year when people would rather see bad weather, than good, will arrive tomorrow. Some will note carefully the amount of rain or snow which falls, should there be any at all, and will rejoice at a generous quantity of it. Others do not long for a storm, but will be pleased if the sun merely fails to shine.

In America it is called Groundhog Day, this second of February, which is supposed to reveal the kind of weather that may be expected during the next six weeks. Half jokingly and half in earnest, the public watches to see whether the day brings with it any sunlight. The less sunshine on that day, the more there will be in succeeding weeks.

The woodchuck, popularly named groundhog, crawls into his burrow in the late autumn, and hibernates through the cold and sleet and snow of the winter months. So much, at least, is fact. But on February second, exactly, his slumbers are troubled by dreams of luscious roots and bark, which would be so acceptable to a very empty little stomach.

Now we have crossed the dim frontier between fact and legend.

The groundhog has been asleep for many weeks in his dark burrow—so long, in fact, that he has forgotten all about that strange companion of animals and man which is called the shadow. He would have possessed no shadow in his winter home, even if he had been awake to look for it.

So, quite forgetful on that point, the groundhog cautiously emerges from his burrow on the fateful day. If the day is stormy or dark, nothing but a very keen appetite troubles the newly awakened woodchuck, who goes on his way rejoicing. But if the day chances to be sunny, he is frightened by his shadow and dashes back to the safety of his snug chamber.

There is another and more fanciful version of the story about the activities of the groundhog on the day which has been named for him. Many other animals have been credited with foreknowledge of weather conditions. Thus, some of them are supposed to grow thicker fur or to lay up an extra supply of food, when an unusually severe winter approaches.

But the little groundhog knows, or is supposed to know, that fair weather on Feb. 2 is ominous; and that sunlight is proof positive of more winter on the way. Hence, he begins to forage or he returns to slumber, according as he finds foul weather or fair above ground.

The shadow of the groundhog, on his own particular day when the sun is shining, is more than a woodchuck's shadow. It is the shadow of Feb. 2, and it extends around the world, wherever there are people who believe in the old legend. Statistics are not available, of course, but doubtless there are millions upon whom the radiance of a too cheerful Feb. 2 casts its shadow of impending bad weather.

The supposed importance of Feb. 2 as a weather indicator is not an American institution, by any means. That well-known work, "The Book of Days," by R. Chambers, terms it "a universal superstition throughout Christendom," and connects it with the importance attached for ages to Candlemas, which falls on the second day of February.

As far as the American Groundhog Day is concerned, it seems to have been imported by the Germans, who have two interesting proverbs about this date on the calendar. One proverb says:

"The shepherd would rather see the wolf enter his stable on Candlemas Day than the sun." And the other one declares: "The badger peeps out of his hole on Candlemas Day, and when he finds snow walks abroad; but if he sees the sun shining he draws back into his hole."

The reconnoitering of weather conditions is ascribed to different animals in the legends of foreign countries. Thus, in Northern lands, it is the bear who comes forth on Feb. 2, and who knows that if the sky is overcast, the day cold and cheerless, then winter virtually has ended. But a clear sky and mild temperatures he recognizes as a temporary phenomenon, to be followed soon by a renewal of wintry severity.

The Germans, as noted, chose the badger as their four-footed weather prophet. But immigrants to America, although they brought the quaint superstition with them, did not bring any badgers. Perhaps the steamship companies objected, or certain facts about America, such as the distribution of the American species of badger, may have been misrepresented to the newcomers. At any rate, badgers here are little known east of the Mississippi River. Formerly they ranged from Ohio westward, but now are almost unknown east of the great plains, except in Minnesota.

The best substitute for the wise badger of Germany seemed to be the woodchuck, or groundhog, a species of marmot (Arctomys monax), quite similar in appearance to the badger and often mistaken for it, although smaller. The groundhog inhabits North America from Hudson Bay to South Carolina, and is plentiful as far west as Nebraska, where the specimen shown on this page was born and photographed.

The groundhog is a vegetarian, often destructive to crops of red clover or alfalfa and to early garden crops. During the year which ended on June 1 last, Jersey County, Ill., paid 200 bounties of 25 cents each on groundhog scalps. A year or two ago Calhoun County, Ill., was paying a similar bounty, because groundhogs were killing so many young apple trees, by gnawing off the bark. And in Stark County, Ill., last year, poison gas was used against them.

Some communities, evidently, are getting mighty careless about advance tips on the weather. Let it be remembered that many persons believe in the wisdom of the groundhog, or rather in the theory upon which he is supposed to act when he sizes up the weather prevailing on Feb. 2; and the belief prevails most strongly in agricultural communities, where weather means more than it does in the cities.

And, to a degree, the importance with which Feb. 2, or Candlemas, is invested by old-fashioned persons today finds warrant in history. For centuries, the day has been regarded as the turning point in the weather of the young year. Rural England, for example, furnishes more old proverbs about Candlemas, and the significance then of fair skies or foul, than about any other day in the calendar.

Indeed, the festival of Candlesmas goes back to the days of imperial Rome and marvelous Greece. There is even a theory that Candlemas, festival in the Anglican, Catholic and Greek churches, antedates the pagans of classical times and perpetuates an annual ceremony which first arose in the days of prehistoric men.

Candlemas goes back at least to the Greek nature myth of Demeter and her daughter Persephone, who were taken over into Roman mythology under the names of Ceres and Proserpina, respectively. Ceres was the goddess of grain, a dignity which seems to have been shared with Proserpina. The latter was stolen by Pluto and hidden underground from her mother, who sought her in vain. Finally an agreement was reached that Proserpina should spend two-thirds of the year with her mother, Ceres, and one-third with her husband pluto, ruler of the lower world.

Many of the details of Candlemas, as formally observed, indicate that it is a Christianization of the pagan Februalia celebrated in ancient Rome at about the same time of year. Pope Pius XII said so in the course of a sermon, as follows:

"Why do we in this feast carry candles? Because the Gentiles (ancient Romans) dedicated the month of February to the infernal gods, and as at the beginning of it Pluto stole Proserpina, and her mother, Ceres, sought her in the night with lighted candles, so they, at the beginning of this month, walked about the city with lighted candles. Because the holy fathers could not extirpate this custom, they ordained that Christians should carry about candles in honor of the Blessed Virgin; and thus what was done before to the honor of Ceres is now done to the honor of the Virgin."

Feb. 2, being the fortieth day after the birth of Christ, was the day on which, according to Levitical rules, the ceremonies of the purification of the mother, and the presentation of the son in the temple, should occur. It derives other names from these incidents, and in England is known colloquially also as "The Wives' Feast."

•A book entitled "The Country Almanac," published in England in 1676, says under February:

"Foul weather is no news; hail, rain and snow
Are now expected and esteem'd no woe;
Nay, 'tis an omen bad, the yeomen say,
If Phoebus shows his face the second day."

The following rhyme is said to have been common in England for many years:

"As far as the sun shines out on Candlemas Day,
So far will the snow blow in before May;
As far as the snow blows in on Candlemas Day
So far will the sun shine out before May.

The literature of Groundhog Day, or Candlemas, is sprinkled with verses, all insisting upon the baleful meaning of fair weather upon that date. From the earliest times, it would seem, man has been pessimistic about the weather. He has felt that a certain amount of winter was bound to descend upon his shivering head.

If wintry weather prevailed steadily throughout its appointed time, then a spring of normal earliness and good crops could be expected. But if a false suggestion of spring arrived upon the critical second day of February, then beware! The wind-up of winter simply was being delayed, and cold, stormy weather would usurp the rightful place of spring, with consequent heavy damage to crops.

American-made verses upon Groundhog Day are not easily found, but in the older countries there are Candlemas verses which have passed into proverbs. Even the most unpleasantly rigid scientists cannot deny that in many of the years these forecasts, rhymed or otherwise, are fulfilled.

Some of this ancient weather lore has been collected by Viscountess Wolseley, who subscribes herself "Citizen and Gardener of London," in her recent publication, "The Countryman's Log-Book." From Devonshire, for example, comes this warning: "If the cat in February lies in the sun, she will creep under the grate in March." Also from Devonshire:

"If in February there be no rain,
They hay won't goody, nor the grain,
All other months of the year
Most heartily curse a fine Februeer."

From another part of England comes the couplet:

"In February if thou hearest thunder
Thou wilt see a summer's wonder."

Some more of the metrical proverbs are as follows:

"If Candlemas Day be fair and bright,
Winter will have another flight,
But if Candlemas Day be clouds and rain,
Winter is gone and will not come again."

"When Candlemas Day is come and gone,
The snow lies on a hot stone."

"The hind would as lief see his wife on her bier
As that Candlemas Day should be pleasant and clear."

In Sussex they say, dolorously:

"If Candlemas Day be warm and fine,
Be sure the winter is half behind."

From Kent comes this bit of warning, with its implied forecast of an insufficient crop:

"If it neither rains nor snows on Candlemas Day,
You may straddle your horse and go and buy hay."

A seventeenth century almanac declares:

"If Candlemas Day be wet and foul,
The half o' winter's gone at Yule."

That is, winter was half over at Christmas and is now rapidly drawing to a welcome close. And one of the most unpleasant of them all states roundly:

"When the wind's in the east on Candlemas Day,
There it will stick till the second of May.

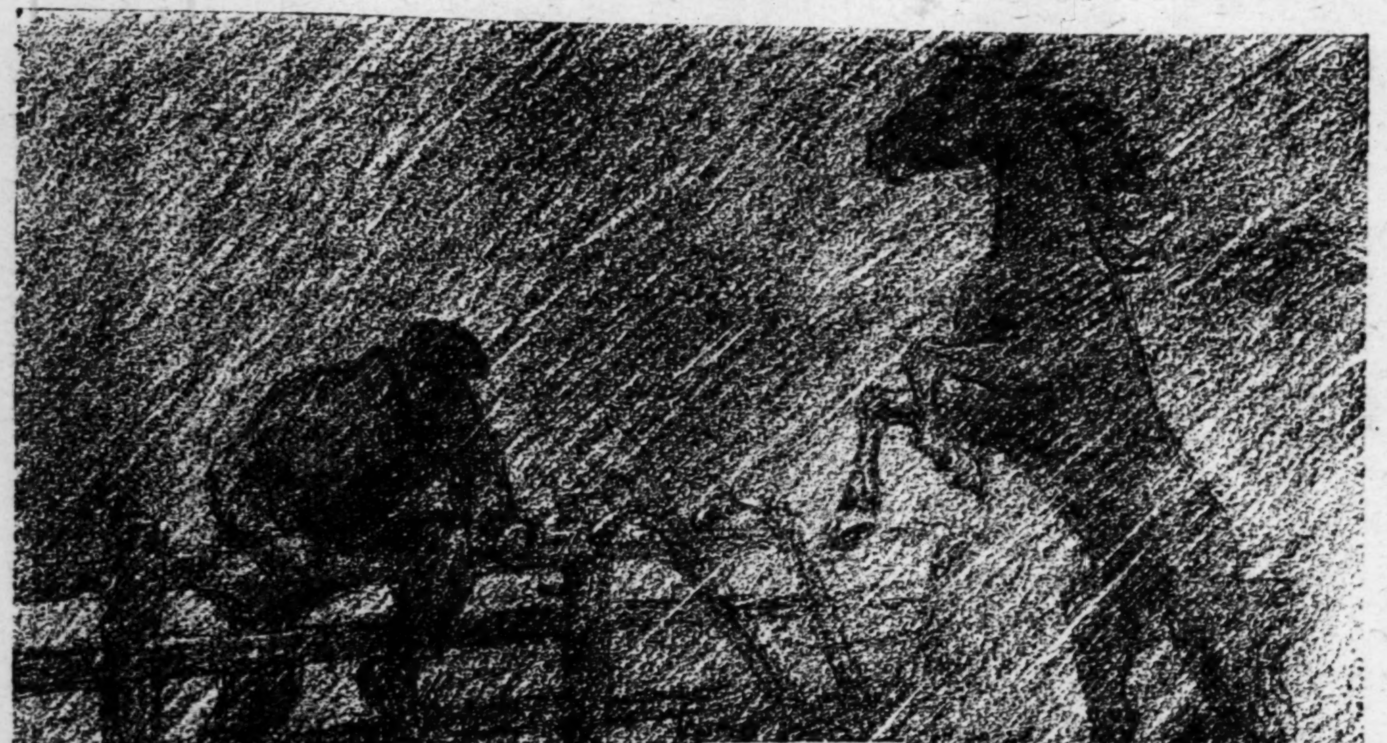
The legend of the groundhog and his peep of six weeks into the future on Feb. 2 may all be superstition, but it has one of the richest backgrounds in our folklore.

"If Candlemas Day be wet and foul, The half o' winter's gone at Yule."

The STRANGE CASE OF GEORGE EDALJI : A New and True Crime Solution

BY SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

THE case of George Edalji is one of the most singular in the chronicles of crime—singular in the character of the accused, singular in the evidence which, in the eyes of police, Judge and jury, and the British Home Office, convicted him of the guilt of cattle maiming—and, above all, singular in the fact that it was left to a lay detective, the creator of Sherlock Holmes, by observations and by reasoning of his own, to tear this specious evidence to tatters. In the most interesting article which follows, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle describes the train of reasoning which led to this result.



A mysterious criminal was abroad, whose custom was to steal into the fields at dead of night, armed with a sharp knife or razor, to rip up cattle, sheep or horses, leaving them to bleed to death.

George Edalji.

DURING the early part of 1903 the little village of Wyrley, in Staffordshire, England, was in a state of tense excitement. A mysterious criminal was abroad, a criminal whose custom was to steal into the fields at dead of night and, armed with a sharp knife or razor, to rip up cattle, sheep or horses, leaving them to bleed to death.

It was on Feb. 2, 1903, that the first serious outrage occurred at Wyrley. On that date a valuable horse belonging to Mr. Joseph Holmes was found to have been ripped up during the night. Two months later, on April 2, a cow belonging to Mr. Thomas was treated in a similar fashion, and a month after that a cow of Mrs. Bungay's was killed in the same way. Within a fortnight a horse of Mr. Badger's was terribly mutilated, and on the same day some sheep were killed. On June 6 two cows suffered the same fate, and three weeks later two valuable horses belonging to the Quinton Colliery Co. were also destroyed. Next in order in this monstrous series of barbarities was the killing of a pony at Great Wyrley Colliery.

It was in vain that the police kept watch; the culprit was too wary to be caught red-handed. But they received mysterious letters, signed with false names, which stated that the criminal was George Edalji, the son of the vicar of the parish, a Parsee. The police theory was that Edalji was himself the writer of the letters.

Twenty constables and detectives had been brought into the district, and several, acting upon the suggestions in the anonymous letters, watched the vicarage at night. On Aug. 17 Edalji, following his own account, returned from his day's work at Birmingham—he had started in practice there as a lawyer—and reached his home about 6:30.

He transacted some business, put on a blue serge coat, and then walked down to the bootmaker's in the village, where he arrived about 8:35, according to the independent evidence of John Hands, the tradesman in question. His supper would not be ready before 9:30, and until that hour he took a walk around, being seen by various people. His household deposed to his return before supper time, and their testimony was confirmed by the statement of Walter Whitehouse, who saw the accused enter the vicarage at 9:25.

After supper Edalji retired to bed in the same room as his father, the pair having shared an apartment for 17 years. The old vicar was a light sleeper, his son was within a few feet of him, the whole house was locked up, and the outside was watched by constables, who saw no one leave it.

And yet upon that night a pony had been destroyed at the Great Wyrley Colliery. Sergt. Parsons gave evidence that he saw the pony apparently all right at 11 o'clock at night. It was a wild night, with rain coming in squalls.

The constables raided the vicarage. The young lawyer had already started for his day's work in Birmingham. There, later in the day, he was arrested by the police. Next day and the following Monday he was before the Magistrates, where the police evidence was given. The magisterial proceedings lasted till Sept. 4, off and on, when a prima facie case was made out and the prisoner committed to the Staffordshire Quarter Sessions.

The accused made a remark which rose up in judgment against him. "I won't have bail," he said to Police Constable Meredith, "and when the next horse is killed it won't be by me." In commenting upon this Mr. Disturnal, the Prosecuting Counsel, said: "In refusing bail the prisoner made use of a very singular observation," and he went on to suggest that the prisoner knew perfectly well what he was about when he refused bail. The inference here is that it was prearranged with a friend of Edalji that he would do a fresh crime in order to clear him.

Now, such a crime was committed, and it occurred upon Sept. 21, between Edalji's committal and trial, while he lay in Staffordshire Jail. Harry Green was the 19-year-old son of a farmer who lived somewhere between the vicarage and the scene of the outrage for which Edalji was convicted. Green's charger was found injured.

The trial lasted for four days. Edalji was convicted by the jury and sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. The Assistant Chairman of Quarter Sessions, who presided at the trial, when afterwards consulted about the conviction, reported that he and his colleagues were strongly of opinion that the conviction was right.

Edalji had been in prison for three years when my attention was, by accident, directed to the case. How I took it up, how I analyzed the evidence, how I showed that, in spite of all its seeming weight, it proved only that the prisoner could not possibly be guilty, I am now about to tell.

It was late in 1906 that I chanced to pick up a paper called The Umpire, and my eye caught an article which was a statement of his case, made by himself, though how he smuggled it out of prison I know not. Anyhow, that was the turning point of his fortunes.

As I read, the unmistakable accent of truth fixed itself upon my attention, and I realized that I was in the presence of an appalling tragedy, and that I was called upon to do what I might to set it right.

I got other papers on the case, studied the original trial, went up to Staffordshire and saw the family, and finally wrote a series of articles upon the case which began in the Daily Telegraph of Jan. 12, 1907. As I bargained that they should be noncopyright, they were largely transferred to other papers, sold for a penny at street curbs and generally had a very wide circulation, so that England soon rang with the wrongs of George Edalji.

These wrongs would have been almost comic had they not had so tragic a result with regard to the Edalji family.

The original theory at the trial had been that Edalji had committed the particular mutilations with which he was charged some time in the late evening. This line of attack broke down completely, as he was able to advance a certain alibi. In the middle of the case, therefore, the police prosecution shifted its ground and advanced the new theory that it was done in the early hours of the morning.

George Edalji, as it happened, slept in the same room as his father, the parish vicar. The latter is a light sleeper and is accustomed, as many people are, to assure privacy by turning the key of his room. He swore that George never left the room during the night. This may not constitute an absolute alibi in the eyes of the law, but it is difficult to imagine anything nearer to one, unless a sentinel had been placed outside the door all night. It is so near an alibi that nothing but the most cogent considerations would shake it, but far from there being any such considerations, the case was such a thing of threads and patches that one cannot imagine how any sane jury could have accepted it, even though the defense was very badly conducted.

So bad was this defense that in the whole trial no mention was ever, so far as I could ascertain, made of the fact that the man was practically blind, save in good light, while between his house and the place where the mutilation was committed lay the full breadth of the London & Northwestern Railway, an expanse of rails, wires and other obstacles, with hedges to be forced on either side, so that I, a strong and active man, in broad daylight, found it a hard matter to pass.

What roused my indignation and gave me the driving force to carry the thing through was the utter helplessness of this forlorn little group of people—the Parsee clergyman in his strange position, the brave, blue-eyed, gray-haired wife, the young daughter, baited by brutal boors and having the police, who should have been their natural protectors, adopting from the beginning the harshest tone towards them and accusing them, beyond all sense and reason, of being the cause of their own troubles and of persecuting and maligning themselves. Such an exhibition of official idiocy, sustained, I am sorry to

The whole breadth of the London & Northwestern Railroad would have to be crossed in the dark from the Vicarage to the field in which the pony was found—and Edalji was "practically blind."

The Indian Bride Who Walked Upon a Carpet

How the Princes of India scatter their jewels broadcast is indicated in this account of the wedding of Tikka Sahib Paranjit to Princess Brinda of Jubbal—The crowning incident was the unrolling of the Carpet of Diamonds, upon which the bride walked, in the midst of a company whose persons were adorned with gems of the aggregate value of an American multimillionaire's fortune :: . ::

By ELEANORE BROWNE.

FASHIONABLE ladies of Paris, with their courtiers of the evening, caught their breath when the red curtains that drape the doorway of Club Maubert, one of the brightest spots in the Parisian night, opened to admit a little company of tawny, inscrutable men. Each of the newcomers was attired in faultless evening clothes, and in their vari-colored turbans flashed gorgeous rubies and diamonds.

The Rajahs of Paris!

Each one of them had given Paris a new sensation. Each had reached deep, for the amusement of a city, into treasure chests that had begun to fill as far back as when the lotus-eyed Sumyrana came out of the River Beas and married the Sun. Individually they were familiar figures, but this night at the Club Maubert Paris had its first glimpse of them banded together in some unheralded adventure.

The Nawab of Burdwan, who remembers each Parisienne of his acquaintance on her birthday with greetings in an alabastar box.

The Aga Khan, who has no throne of his own, but who is watched by every Foreign Office that controls Mohammedan subjects.

The Jam of Nawanagar, for whom 200 houris pine in a palace in the Garden of Nightingales.

The Takhor of Cooch-Behar, at whose frown his lovely bride, the Princess of Katiawar, added a brew of hemp and the mustaches of tigers to her honey and sent her master to the boulevards a widower.

The Gaekwar of Baroda, peasant Rajah, who was first transported from the fields to the gold-and-jasper throne of Baroda, and then to Paris.

And the young Tikka Sahib Paranjit, heir to Kapurthala.

Of them all, Tikka Sahib was least known, and the most romantic. For the Princess Brinda of Jubbal had come from her father's State, with 60 tall Sikhs as a bodyguard to protect her from the touch of nonbelievers, to remind Sahib Tikka that she had been engaged to him since she was 1 year old, and that she was weary of waiting for him to return to Kapurthala. There had been rumors that Great Britain was urging Tikka to part for a time with the ladies of Paris—long enough to go back to India and marry the promised daughter of the Jubbal Maharajah. Paris wondered if he would.

The night at the Club Maubert was a particularly gala one, and the presence of the group of Rajahs added the touch that seldom escapes the Arabian Nights. A famous bayadere, a temple dancing girl of Bengan, so it was said, had defied the sorceries of the priests and escaped to France, after a thrilling pursuit; and, with the companions who had ventured with her, was now to be seen as premier danseuse at the exclusive Maubert. It was the night of her debut; her first exposure to nonbelieving eyes after her race against the priests of the temple she had defiled. In honor of the occasion the club was done in dim lights from lacy lanterns, damask hangings, languorous incense and other Oriental effects.

Prince Antoine of Orleans and Braganza, who might have been the Bourbon King, was among the guests. Also there was the Marquis de Pothnau and his pretty Marquise, and the Count and Co de Polignac with their memories of an ance who wept with Marie Antoinette, and the Vic de la Motte; whose ancestor it was who lost her head because of a collar of diamonds.

The Club Maubert is the fashion, and the of Paris gathered to welcome the famous baya

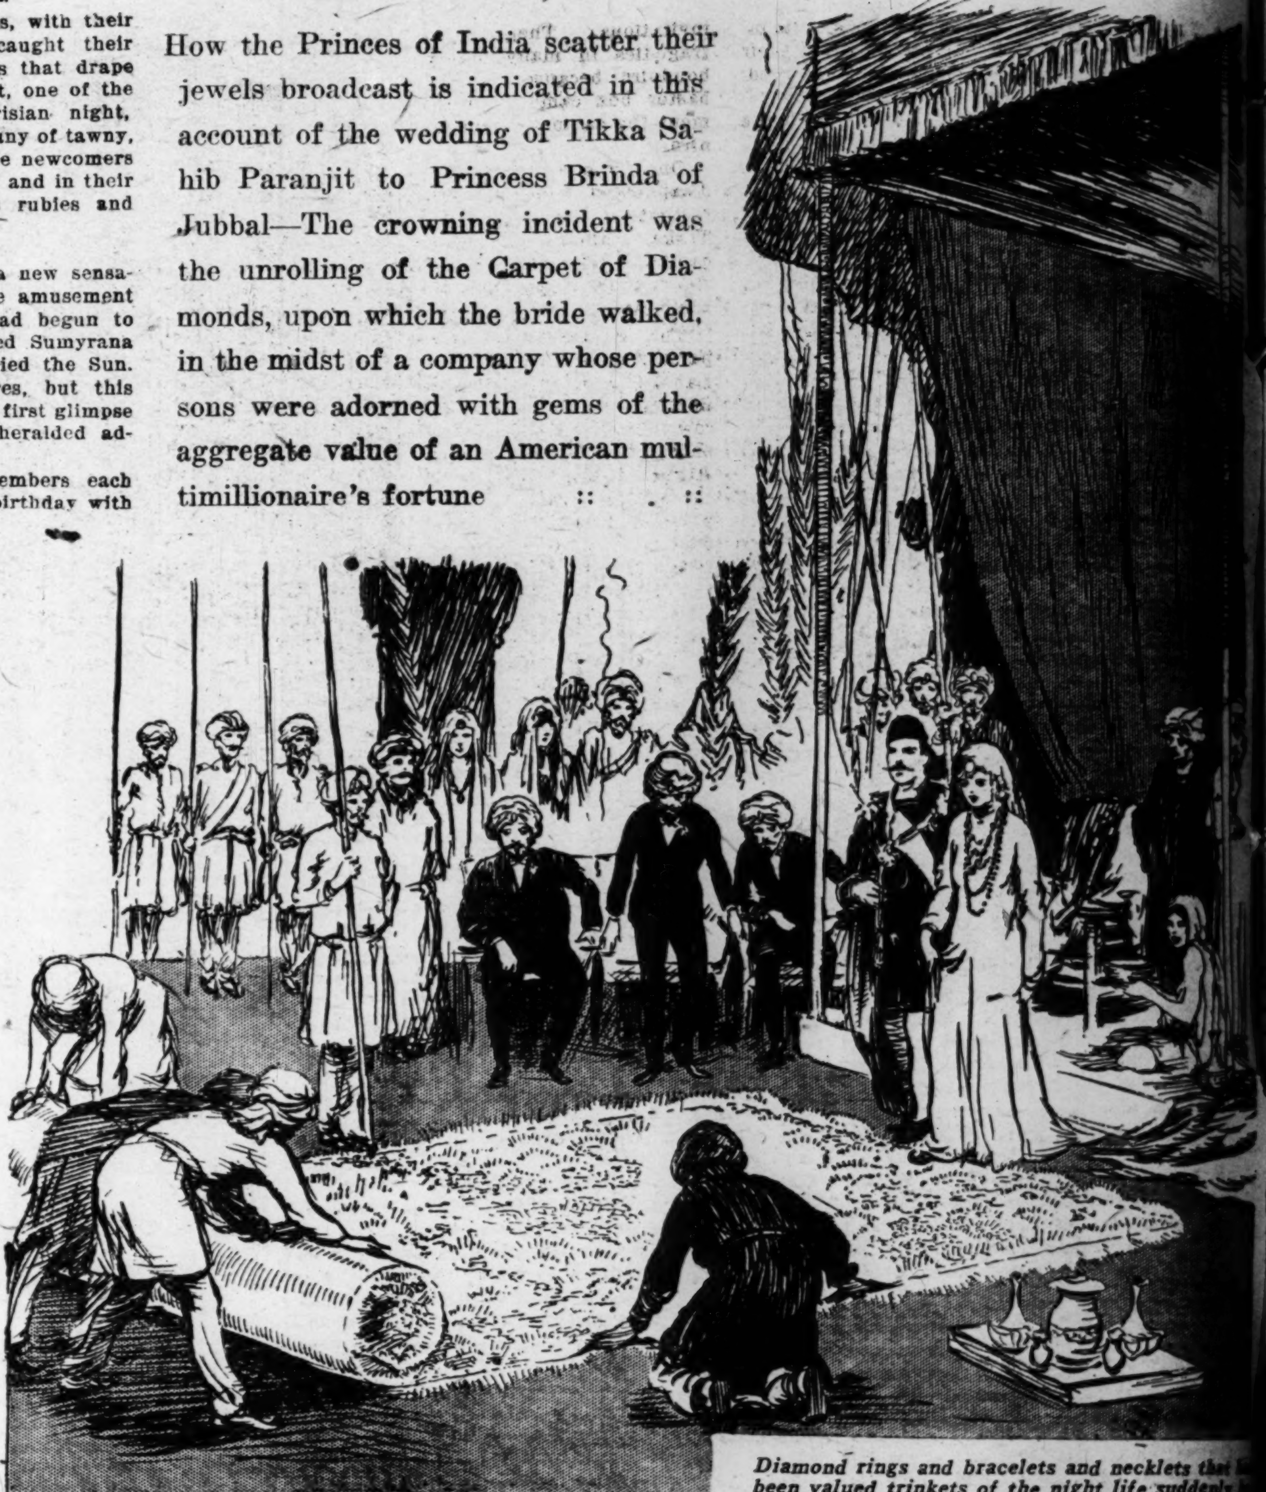
Her paused in midair. Her body held its crouch. tinkling of her silver pendants died. Her bent slowly, and she collapsed, moaning and ing, at the feet of young Tikka Sahib, who her, unmoved.

The patrons of M. Maubert closed in on the tonishing scene. The troupe of dancers disapp in a panic. Tikka Sahib whispered to his aid, a hurried communication was made to M. Ma Walters carried the still moaning bayadere quarters, where a curt message from the Sahib, delivered by his aid, quieted her. She could induced to reappear, however. When M. sought her she had fled. In his apologies guests the desolated proprietor explained was not from the temple at Bengal the advent bayadere had escaped, but from a temple palace of Kapurthala, where it was her amuse the whims of the young heir, Tikka and where the twist of a cord about her the sting of a tarantula hidden in her gold is the sure fate of a faithless bayadere.

"She was overcome by the quaint notion," Maubert explained, "that the twisting cord Kapurthala reach a long way, and that its tara las travel far."



Diamond rings and bracelets and necklets that been valued trinkets of the night life suddenly came puny in the blaze of the 72,968 glitter gems in the carpet on which they walked.

The proprietor might have added to his explanations that the Rajahs were whispering at their table, as anyone in the club might have observed, that his patrons were destined to be amazingly reimbursed for the interruption of the bayadere's dance.

It was little more than one of the odd dramas of the night life of Paris, in which the visiting Rajahs, with their fabled stores of jewels, play such fantastic roles. But it led to an adventure for many of the patrons of M. Maubert, which only a whimsical Rajah could stage, and brought alien feet to experience the blazing splendor of an enormous carpet woven entirely of diamonds.

Tikka Sahib's father, the Maharajah of Kapurthala, who is known even in the United States, and known also for his devotion to the Spanish wife who accompanies him abroad, had been listening to the importunities of the British India Office that his son keep faith with the Rajah of Jubbal and marry the Princess Brinda. Such things as an heir's neglect of a neighboring Princess threaten revolutions in India. Tikka Sahib had arranged to return to Kapurthala with his father for the nuptials. It was his whim, born that night at the Club Maubert, that as many of M. Maubert's guests as could spare the time should come to Kapurthala and witness a dance of faithful bayaderes in honor of his bride. His decision was made in the whisperings at the Rajahs' table. M. Maubert, stammering, presented the compliments of Kapurthala to his most distinguished guest, Prince Antoine of Orleans and Braganza, and begged him to make the arrangements Tikka Sahib proposed. With secrecy and discretion, of course, but with due regard for the fathomless depths of Kapurthala treasure chests.

The Princess Brinda, with her 60 Sikhs, returned to India. Sahib Tikka, with the Maharajah, followed. Prince Antoine, with a mission such as no Bourbon King was ever intrusted with, scanned the lists of M. Maubert's guests of that night and added to it the suggestions of Aga Khan, the Gaekwahr of Baroda and the Jam of Nawanagar. The Nawab of Burdwahn provided the alabaster boxes for the invitations. There were tragedies in many dainty boudoirs because no alabaster box came to ornament the cabinet of souvenirs.

One by one the Rajahs disappeared, bound for the festivities promised by Tikka Sahib in his native capital. With each went the parties delegated to their care.

The Rajahs took their parties through Delhi and Lahore, and on the little puffing trains, with narrow tracks, along the shores of the Five Sacred Rivers of the Punjab, to the ancient capital, Kartapour, between the River Jalandhar and the River Beas. There, on a great plain stretching away from the newly built white marble palace of the Maharajah, they found a miniature city of yellow pavilions, each inclosing three spacious rooms, quarters for servants and its fountain bath.

At the edge of the fairylike city were the waters of the Lake of Immortality, and on its banks the Temple of Gold, from which the bayadere of Paris had fled. Rising in a curious mist of glamour from a tiny island in the Lake of Immortality was the Jug Newas, a little palace of carved walls and fragile balconies, in which the bride to be, the Princess Brinda, in seclusion now, awaited the trumpets that would summon her to her nuptials.

Aga Khan III, one of the Hindoo Princes at the wedding of Princess Brinda and Tikka Sahib.

Among the native guests in the palace itself was the old Maharajah of Jammu-Kashmir, whose heir, Prince Hari Singh, was even then facing the scandal of blackmail, to be aired in a British court. The Maharajah of Jammu-Kasmir had come with his escort of 100 Sikh lancers, 50 chamberlains, 200 elephants and the foot soldiers who guarded his presents for the bride. The fancies of the mademoiselles from Paris and the Riviera were deeply impressed by this one Maharajah's gifts to the lovely Brinda: five ponderous elephants with gold howdah cloths and silver ear bells incrusted with precious stones; six horses imported from America; three camels, 50 falcons and 10 greyhounds, a collar of 600 perfectly matched pearls and 5000 rupees.

Only once before the day of the ceremony did the aloe-eyed Brinda appear. With a fanfare of trumpets from the Marahajah Sikhs, she was escorted across the Lake of Immortality to the Durbar Hall of the old palace.

Now the Tikka Sahib's seat was empty. Before the veiled bride stood a silent circle of priests from the temple, astrologers and the Maharajah's Ministers and the houris of his family. Directly before the bride the chief priest took his stand, with an astrologer on his right, a Minister on his left. At his feet knelt a slave girl holding aloft a gold basket with velvet lining, filled to the brim with huge unset pearls.

The pageantry of the wedding day began with the dance of bayaderes which Tikka Sahib had promised the disappointed guests at the Club Maubert. A score of them, assembled in the Durbar Hall before the glittering company of native Rajahs and their courts, were each more entrancing than the fugitive who had collapsed at her vision of the cord and tarantula. Their eyelids were smeared with kohl, after the fashion that has become popular in Montmartre. Ropes of pearls wound about their bare legs and emeralds glistened in their hair. Their breasts were wrapped in rubies.

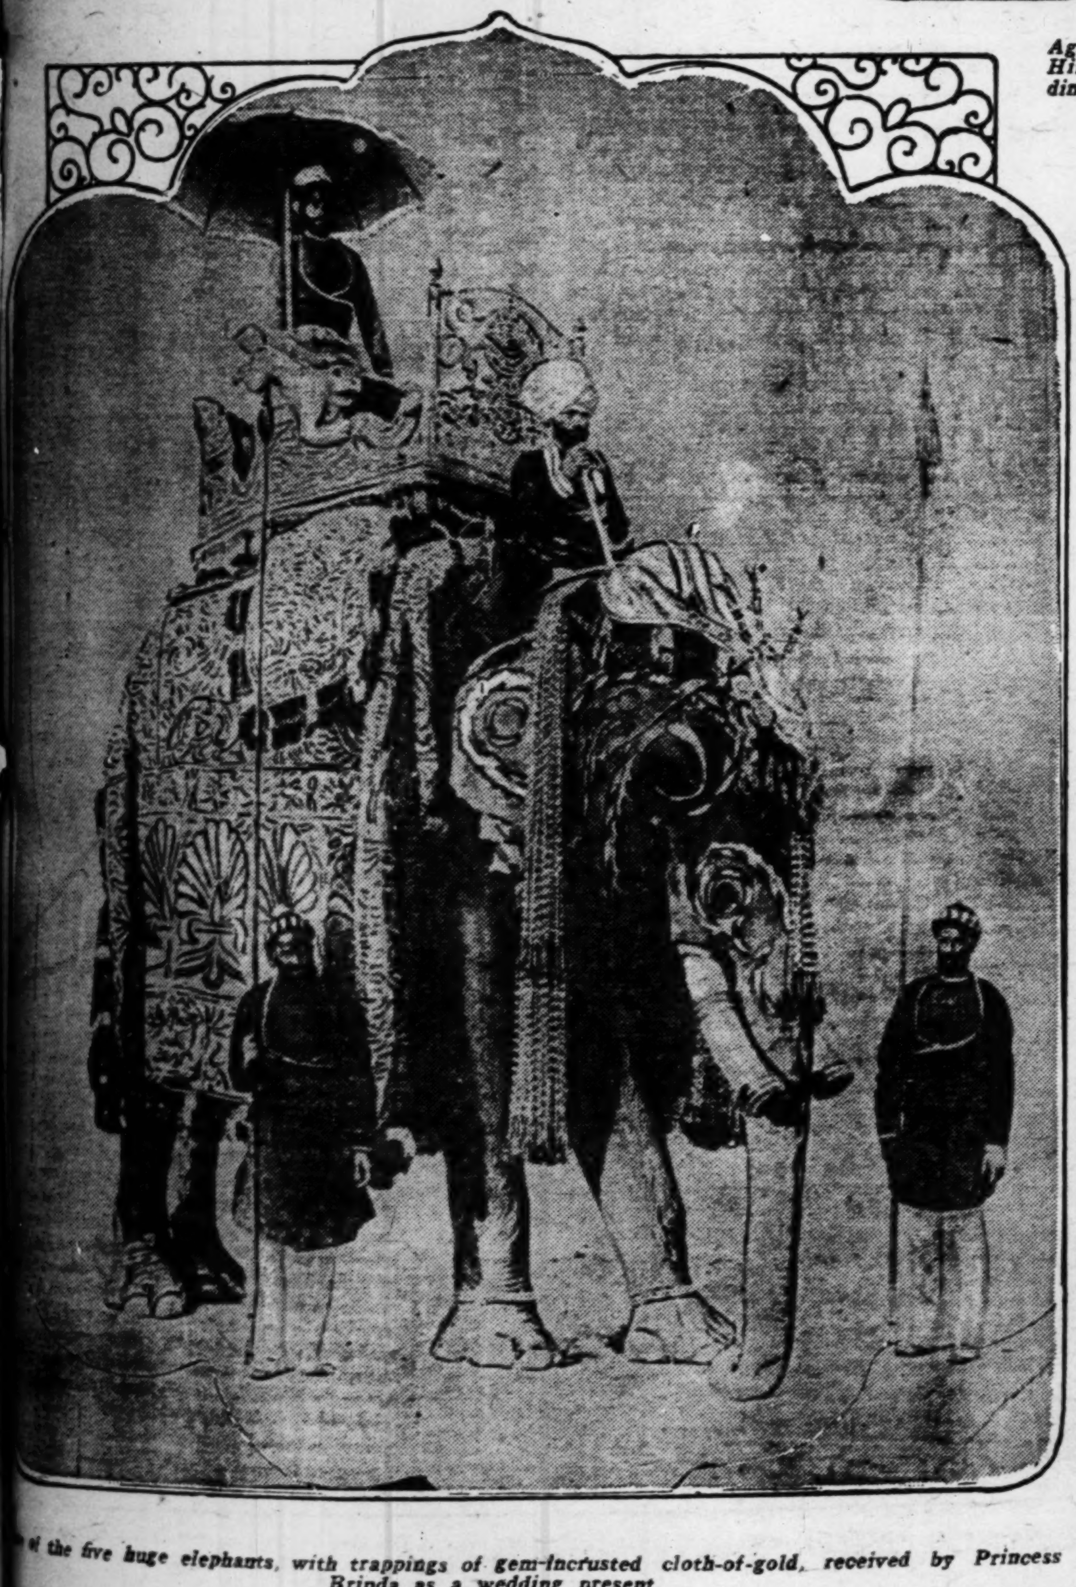
While the visitors stood speechless in their awe of the splendor of the scene, the bride's procession entered the hall, preceded by two elephants with gold and jeweled trappings. Walking ahead of her were her women, 100 of them, each bearing a gift of jewels from the nobles and feudal chiefs of the neighboring states. The green canopy over a throne of gilt and gold was lifted, its drawn curtains disclosing Tikka Sahib, seated, his bride's chair beside him.

Priests, astrologers, trumpeters and the Ministers of the Maharajah's court each performed their rituals before the royal pair. Tikka's eyes mild but inscrutable, Brinda's face hidden by her iridescent veil. The ceremonies, punctuated by the flashing of jeweled cloths and incense burning in silver bowls, lasted four hours.

The young Rajah rose, gave his hand to his bride and lifted her to her feet. A priest touched her veil and she lifted it, fastening it with an emerald pin, for the first time revealing her face.

They stepped back, and a troop of Sikh lancers marched down the hall, bearing between them a great roll that seemed to be a sheet of gold. They dropped their burden before the nuptial throne, and as it spread the guests of M. Maubert and the other visitors from Paris and the Riviera saw the carpet of diamonds which was woven by the jewelers of Sadoo Singh to receive the dainty feet of the first Kapurthala bride, centuries before.

The Kapurthala guests from Paris were led forward by the Maharajah to greet his heir and the Princess Brinda as they stepped onto the carpet. Even the least of the wondering young women of the night clubs, in whose delights the Marahajah took as much comfrt as in those of his more imposing guests, walked on the carpet and received the bride's smile. Diamond rings and bracelets and necklets that had been valued trinkets of the night life suddenly became puny in the blaze of the 72,968 glittering gems in the carpet on which they walked.



of the five huge elephants, with trappings of gem-incrusted cloth-of-gold, received by Princess Brinda as a wedding present.

Bad Bugs Lured to Doom by Sweet Odors

One of Uncle Sam's scientists has devised an apparatus whereby the favorite perfumes of harmful pests are ascertained—This knowledge enables mere man, whose smelling function seems to be vastly inferior to that of an insect, to do to death the unsuspecting and confiding "critter" whose intellect is considerably inferior to that of modern man—Many millions may be saved annually to American agriculture through this new discovery :: :: :: :: :: :: ::

Dr. N. E. McIndoo operating the olfactometer, used in finding out what odors are most attractive to insects. Charts are kept showing the performances of a given species of insect when influenced by each odorous substance. By comparing these charts, the most effective means of luring insect pests to destruction can be discovered.

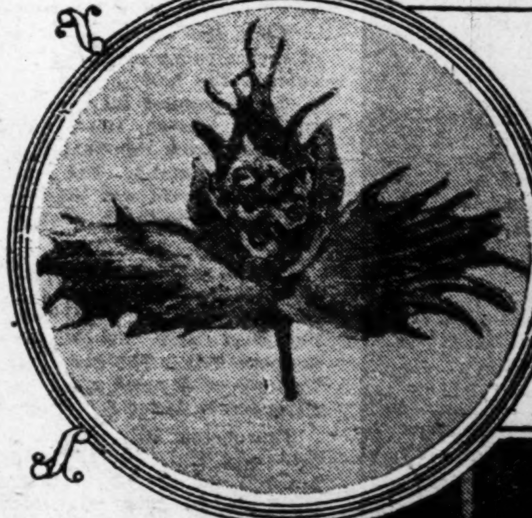
THE "NOSE" OF A FLY

ENLARGED 250 TIMES



This cotton boll will not be much good for making cloth after the weevils have finished their dinner.

APPETIZING odors that say "Food" to the small brains of hungry insects are the latest allies of man in his war on the hordes of "bugs" preying on his agriculture.

As one of the pieces of apparatus vital to the new insect-war plans, the olfactometer is being developed by Dr. N. E. McIndoo in the laboratories of the United States Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Entomology. This is a device that will help bring death to millions of insects. In spite of its formidable name, it is fairly simple. It is used to determine the odor that is most pleasing to a certain kind of insect. That odor can then be employed as bait to lure the insects of the tribe to destruction.

The olfactometer is being developed because in the great war on insects scientists are concentrating more and more closely on the enemy's sense of smell. Some years ago entomologists began to make experiments to find out what senses are fundamental in the insect world. To human beings the sense of sight is most important, far more important than touch, taste, temperature, smell or even hearing. But many insects have such crudely developed eyes that they could not survive by depending on the amount of sight they possess. Instinct is no longer a satisfactory explanation of mysterious behavior in the world of lower animals. Nor do many scientists believe that insects are guided by senses that are totally unknown to man.

Researches by Dr. McIndoo and some other entomologists have indicated that a highly developed sense of smell is the guide on which certain species of insects, at least, depend. This means that the insect world must be so different from the world we know that we can only vaguely imagine what it must be like.

A man's nose is not a subtle or efficient organ at all. He is doing well if, with closed eyes, he can distinguish between a dog and a cat, a parrot and a hen, or a horse and a cow. But Dr. McIndoo says that insects are capable of classifying and analyzing odors, many of which are unknown to us.

The insects obviously do not depend on any crude apparatus resembling a human nose. From the time of Aristotle writers have studied insect anatomy and have speculated and argued over the question of how the tiny creatures managed to smell. Some of the sages concluded that the mouth cavity took the place of the nose in certain orders. Other writers voted in favor of the esophagus, and others in favor of certain glands in the head. Then the antennae and the breathing pores on the sides of the insects' bodies are suggested.

The current theory, to which Dr. McIndoo subscribes, is that they smell by means of pores, which are tiny holes in the skin, through which nerves pass. Since 1909 he has been studying the senses of insects and after examining the olfactory pores in most of the insect orders, including dozens of families and hundreds of species, he reported that he never failed to find these organs in any species examined. He says:

"The olfactory pores are widely scattered over the body, head and appendages of insects, but the more highly developed the insect the more they are arranged in groups, most of the groups being found on the legs, wings and mouth parts. So far only a few olfactory pores have been found on the antennae, these being present on the bases of the antennae of bees, grasshoppers, roaches and crickets."

So dependent are some insects on their organs of smell that they cannot live if these organs are destroyed. So powerful are highly specialized mechanisms of this type that Pomethea moths have been known to locate other moths of the species several miles away and fly direct to them. The organs are so sensitive that bees recognize the odor of their hive, the characteristic odor of all the other bees belonging to the hive, and even the individual odors of the queen and of their fellow workers. And woe to the intruder bee who tries to enter that hive!

Just as a man rarely questions what his eyes tell him, so an insect believes any message it gets by way of its sense of smell. A bee that leaves the hive and stays away for three days loses its hive odor and the guards at the hive entrance will not permit it to enter. It has, in a way, lost its identity and can no longer be recognized by its friends. Such evidence, collected by many experimenters, led scientists to believe that an insect's highly specialized sense of smell would prove to be its vulnerable point. They had found that once an insect scents its favorite food it flies straight toward the source. If the alluring scent should turn out to be part of a poison plot, well, the insect would not learn the truth until after taking the fatal dose.

This reasoning proved sound. Insects of a species can be counted upon to play their part in the tragedies, providing the odor used to attract them is really irresistible.

But studying the likes and dislikes of the pests in their native haunts is apt to be slow work. The Japanese beetle, to take a single example, is attracted to almost anything that looks edible, from apples to asparagus. It gobbles up golf courses and flower gardens. It eats its way through a valuable cornfield or a useless patch of weeds, without much discrimination. In fact, no less than 200 kinds of plant food are eaten with relish by this pest.

As bait, however, certain plants have proved much more alluring to the beetle than others. Moreover, it is not always evident which of a number of odorous substances in a single plant is the one which

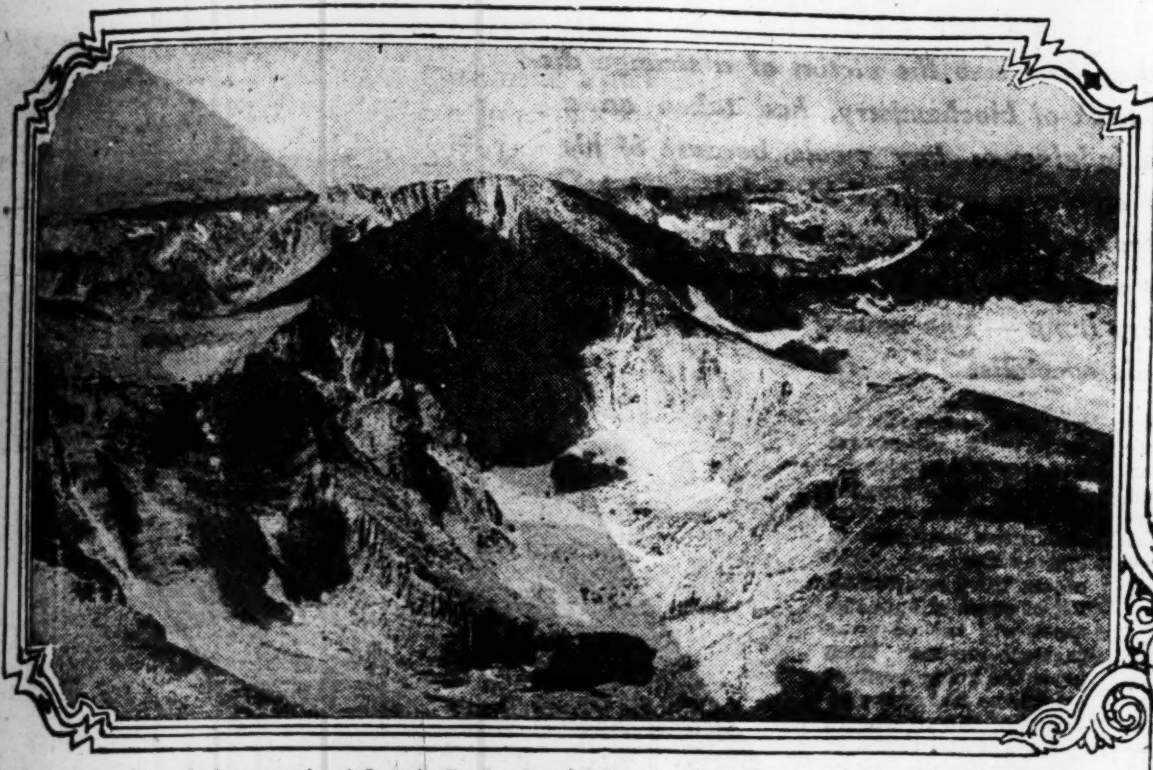
The Ogre of the Perilous Peak



An airplane view of the summit of Long's Peak, showing its precipice and the colossal gorge ground out by a glacier, the remnants of which are visible at the base.

A Post-Dispatch staff writer describes and discusses Long's Peak, in Colorado, from intimate personal acquaintance with the sinister aspect of the mountain which lures daring climbers to doom—He finds in the latest tragedy, the death of Miss Vaille of Denver, but another instance of the treachery of what he terms "The Ogre" :: :: ::

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

LOWERING over Northern Colorado from a stature of 14,255 feet stands a mountain which has slain four human beings in as many years. It is named Long's Peak, after a noted explorer of the early West. But its record as a man-killer and its cruel lineaments cause some to think of it as "The Ogre."

As viewed from the east, the huge mass, to an imaginative eye, seems to possess subhuman contours. The sugar-loaf summit is like the deformed skull of a Patagonian savage. Beneath it glares a monstrous visage—a precipice falling 1500 feet sheer, as if slashed with one blow of a cleaver. On the blank countenance may be traced a wreckage of features, gnawed by the leprosy of ages of ice and rain—a squat forehead, gnarled and brutish; empty eye-sockets and pits of nostrils; a lipless mouth, and granite fangs slavered with glaciers. From the colossal shoulders radiate moraines like arms of an Oriental idol, and their boulder knuckles grasp the plateaus a mile beneath.

It was only a few days ago that the mountain demon opened its jaws and swallowed two lives at one gulp. Miss Agnes W. Vaille, secretary of the Denver Chamber of Commerce and daughter of a millionaire, was frozen to death while descending Long's Peak; and the same fate overtook Herbert Sortland, an employe at Long's Peak Inn and a member of a search party which attempted her rescue.

Then there was J. E. Kitts of Greeley, who was killed by a thunderbolt while standing on the top during the summer of 1922. A year earlier Gregory Aubuchon, 18 years old, fell over the east precipice; his body, with every bone broken, was recovered from a snowfield three months later.

The records also show that Miss Carrie J. Welton, a New Englander, met a fate similar to Miss Vaille's on Long's Peak 40 years ago.

As one who has climbed Long's Peak, though only in the summer, and has ascended neighboring but lower mountains in June and October, which are winter months in those altitudes, the writer fancies that to some extent he may be able to reconstruct the most recent iniquity of "The Ogre." First, some topographical description will be necessary.

Long's Peak, which becomes visible long before one reaches Denver, is 75 miles north of that city; and, contrary to popular opinion, is loftier than the better-known Pike's Peak, near Colorado Springs. Pike's Peak may be ascended by cog railroad or automobile; but Long's Peak is so rugged that automobiles cannot approach nearer than seven miles to its summit. The first five miles may be done on horses, but the second two must be performed on foot. Therefore, in summer, the climb attracts hundreds of mountaineers.

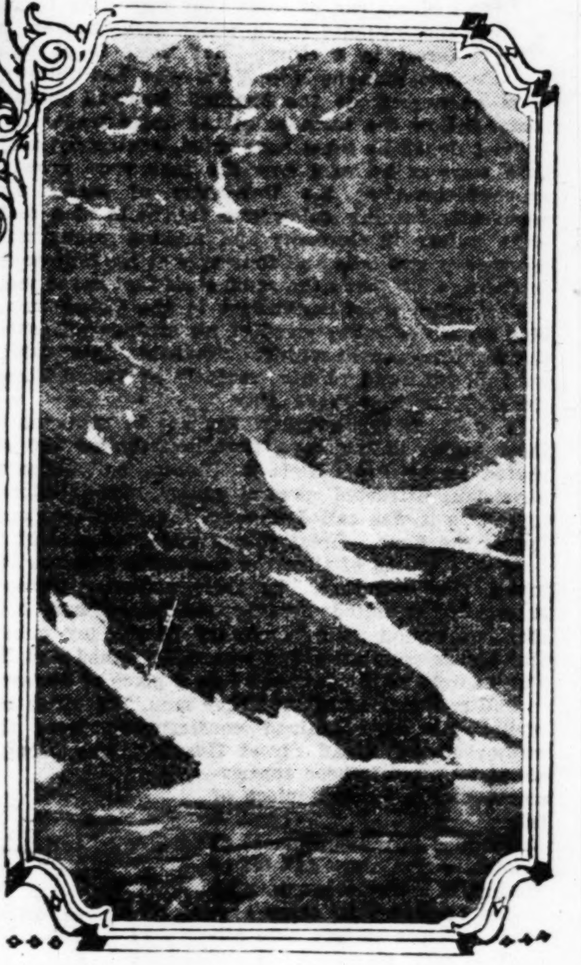
The start usually is made from Long's Peak Inn, or from Hewes-Kirkwood, two hotels at the base of the mountain. These inns lie at an altitude of about 9000 feet, so that the task is to raise one's self along the hypotenuse of a right-angled triangle approximately one mile in height. The hypotenuse itself measures seven miles.

The trail almost universally used by tourists starts at one of the hotels and winds upward over the foothills for three miles to Timber Line Cabin, a hut at an altitude of about 11,000 feet. The horse trail then continues for two miles upward along the north flank of Mount Lady Washington. The horses must be abandoned here, because of a field of gigantic boulders a mile wide, which is as chopped as a congealed section of some titanic English Channel.

Passing through a curious rock formation called the Keyhole, one emerges on the west side of Long's Peak, and continues by a laborious trail to the summit. Portions of this trail have been named "The Narrows" and other such significant titles. At times there is a foothold of only a few inches, with a precipice towering on one hand and a gorge dropping 2000 feet on the other. Just before one reaches the top there is a chimney called "The Home Stretch," up which the mountaineer must crawl on hands and knees, with finger and toe holes in cracks of the granite. The summit is flat and is several acres in area. A cairn marks the highest point.

Miss Agnes W. Vaille, daughter of a Denver millionaire, who was frozen to death last month on a winter climb of Long's Peak. Herbert Sortland, member of a rescue party, also lost his life in the latest tragedy of "The Perilous Peak."

This is the north trail. Long's Peak has also, but infrequently, been climbed from the south and from the west. But it was not until the summer of 1922 that the ascent of the east precipice was conquered by an instructor of mathematics at Princeton named Alexander, an expert Alpinist. Until then this face was regarded as totally impracticable, though the perilous descent had once been made by the late Enos A. Mills, naturalist and author. Mr. Alexander repeated the climb several times, and marked his route with cairns for the guidance of other mountaineers. It was an attempt to follow Alexander's path, and to win the glory of having been the first to do so in winter, which cost Miss Vaille her life.



A view of the east precipice of Long's Peak from Chasm Lake at the foot of its sheer drop of 1500 feet. This is the face which Miss Vaille and her companion, Walter Kiener of Denver, succeeded in scaling.

Even in summer, one reaches the Arctic Zone, as regards climate, vegetation and fauna, long before arriving at the peak's summit. One comes first to Timber Line, that frontier of heroism at which trees struggle for life against cold and storm. There you will see firs and pines stripped of bark and branches on the windward side and beaten to earth, so that they grow horizontally along the ground, or lie with crucified white arms against some boulder. There are trees a foot tall with rings showing them to be a century old.

Above this stricken but indomitable line of timber shock troops are grasses and lichens, and then nothing but rock—a region of death like the surface of the moon. Here is a prophesy of what the earth will be when it, too, expires, like its defunct satellite. It is odd that in 36 hours one may travel to St. Louis from this realm

The LATEST HOSPITAL M ACLE

Even the nurses shrank away when they first saw the victim of a strange disease whose peeling skin, by some trick of biochemistry, had taken on a blue color—He could hardly hire a lodging or buy meals, because of his appearance, and objections of other employes prevented his holding a job—Hopelessly, this social pariah and economic outcast went to one more hospital, where they soaked him in strong salt water, then treated him with invisible light rays from a quartz mercury lamp — The newest story about light therapy, and comments by a St. Louis specialist :: :: ::

SOME of the more recent discoveries regarding the properties and powers of ultra-violet light have been marvelous. For the general run of folks they may have lacked the intimate touch which gives human interest to a story. But there is at least one man in New York who has followed them as eagerly as the baseball fan and football rooter follow the fortunes of the home team.

"Hot dog!" he must have cried, exultingly, more than once as he read how the rays were growing super-chickens at the University of Maine and apparently turning quicksilver into gold at a technical college in Germany and making young minnows grow two tails and four eyes at the University of Chicago. "That's the same stuff that cured me."

This ultra-violet enthusiast is the "blue man," blue no more, but relieved of his strange affliction, thanks to treatment with the "invisible light" which was administered to him recently at Broad Street Hospital, in New York City.

It is 20 years now since the use in medicine of these highly actinic rays, first investigated and reported on by Prof. Niels R. Finsen, noted Danish physician, attracted general notice. The "Finsen light," as it was called, became the popular-science fad of the hour. Great things were expected of it.

In due course of time the inevitable reaction followed this optimism. In this particular instance it was accentuated because charlatans had been alert to exploit the credulity of the lay public. Quickly as popularity had waxed, it waned and the Finsen light treatment sank into a place of disfavor.

The reclamation of the "blue man," of which the writer recently obtained confirmation from the authorities of Broad Street Hospital, was brought about by one of these contrivances, plus a random piece of talk.

Included in the equipment of the institution were several of the quartz mercury lamps, such as are employed in other hospitals to treat certain skin ailments, particularly cases of eczema and the stubborn, tricky disease called psoriasis, which is commonly ranked among the "incurable" afflictions.

At Broad street, as elsewhere, the ultra-violet treatment was, for a long time uncertain and disappointing. Some cases were healed by the irradiation. Some were improved. Some showed no apparent benefit. And then a story told by a patient resulted in the adoption of a revised technique from which results so noteworthy in their uniform success were achieved that the treatment is now a standard method at the hospital.

This patient had a severe eczema of long standing. In giving the history of his case to the examining physicians, he happened to mention the peculiar effect on him of sea bathing. Whenever he took a sea bath, he said, and then sunned himself on the beach long enough to burn and peel, he obtained temporary relief from his skin affection. The eczema, as it were, peeled off with the dead cuticle, and for some weeks or months thereafter he was not troubled by the disease.

Now the invisible ultra-violet rays are the element in sunlight which are the cause of both sunburn and sunstroke. The physicians took the hint and made an experiment. They sopped the skin area affected by eczema with a strong solution of salt and then gave the patient a sufficient ultra-violet irridiation to cause slow peeling. The new skin which replaced the old proved to be normal skin in both appearance and function.

Other cases of eczema were given like treatment, with similar results. Without much hope a case of psoriasis was made the subject of experiment and this patient also recovered. With growing confidence, the hospital authorities continued to employ the new technique, till a substantial list of cures of both diseases was tucked away in their records. Then came the "blue man" as a supreme test of the efficacy of the treatment.

He was the victim of an exceptionally severe case of eczema, which covered almost his entire body and kept him in perpetual torment. But at this, his bodily suffering was almost negligible compared with his agony of mind and soul.

By some peculiar manifestation of biochemistry, his scaling cuticle had taken on a blue color. He had become literally a "blue man," and a spectacle from which other men shrank back affrighted. He could not get, or hold, a job because of the objection ltra-violet ray is a therapeutic agent which ed healing powers," said Dr. F. H. Ewer-hardt, head of the department. "Under favorable conditions, the sun emits about 25 per cent of its energy in the form of ultra-violet rays, but the percentage of these rays which can be used therapeutically depends on climatic conditions and on locality.

"In St. Louis, where the atmosphere is so heavily laden with solid matter, only a small quantity of the rays is available. Because of these factors, scientists have been working on the problem of developing a mechanical appliance which would produce the ultra-violet rays. Such an apparatus, which is called the quartz mercury lamp, was put on the market for therapeutic usage about three or four years ago.

"Realizing the possibilities of the new modality, a lamp was purchased and placed in the department of physical therapeutics at Barnes Hospital some three years ago, and it has been in use almost daily since that time. Since then, two other lamps have been purchased, one of which is being used on the convalescent farm of the Children's Hospital. There the lamp is used in conjunction with the open-air sun treatment, on cloudy days.

"The usual conservatism with which the medical profession surrounds itself was a direct drawback to the acceptance of this therapeutic agent until scientists had definitely proved its efficacy. The true value of the ultra-violet ray is firmly established today and has been accepted as such by the medical profession.

"The ultra-violet ray is an invisible ray, and must in no sense be confused with the so-called 'violet ray treatment,' which is advertised so extensively as a 'cure-all.' This latter is merely a form of electricity converted into heat, and its action is that of heat, and the violet color which is contained within the glass electrode is of no value in itself.

"The best results so far have been obtained in skin diseases, erysipelas, tonsils and all forms of tuberculosis except lung tuberculosis (which is still in experimental stage), and whenever we desire to stimulate body cell metabolism—that is, a toning up of the body. It may, therefore, be considered a splendid tonic where a general building-up process is desired.

"Another light ray which is being experimented upon therapeutically is the infra-red ray, which also is an invisible ray, but has a very much longer wave length than the ultra-violet. On the spectrum it is found between the visible red ray and the wireless or radio ray. This ray has the power of deep penetration in the human tissue and is there converted into heat.

"It is still too early to predict to what extent this ray will be of use to the medical profession. But from reports at hand from various sources, it seems that the infra-red ray, too, in the course of time will become a valuable therapeutic agent."

There is nothing "violet" about the ultra-violet rays except their position in the spectrum. From the red end of the spectrum to the violet end, the light waves decrease in length. Beyond (which in Latin is ultra) the violet, they become invisible. Not even the visible light given off by a mercury quartz lamp in producing ultra-violet rays is quite violet in color. Instead, the visible radiance of such a lamp is purplish, or a bluish-green.

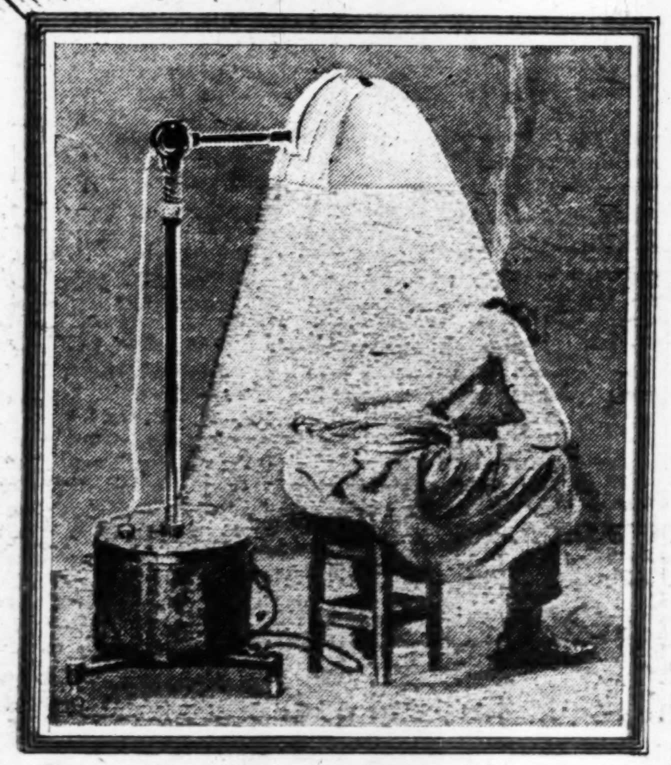
The tube in such a lamp is made of quartz, not glass, for the reason that the ultra-violet rays easily penetrate quartz, but do not penetrate glass. Thus, ordinary window glass filters out all, or nearly all, of the ultra-violet rays in sunlight, which explains why sunlight in the open is so much more beneficial than sunlight which comes through a window pane.

In the quartz tube of a lamp which produces ultra-violet rays is mercury. An electric current, passing through the mercury, vaporizes it and this vapor gives off the ultra-violet rays. They are heatless. Recently, the manufacture of fused quartz has been begun on a commercial basis, making available a much more desirable glass for nurseries, chicken houses, greenhouses, dwellings and windows and doors in general where health is a consideration.

Some remarkable things have been done by means of ultra-violet rays, or "artificial sunlight," at the University of Maine, where experiments were directed by President C. C. Little of the university and Dr. W. T. Bovie, professor at the Harvard Medical School.

In experiments with a brood of pedigreed chicks, the results indicated not only that larger and stronger chicks can be raised under the rays of the quartz mercury lamp, but also that such fowls are healthier. Chicks raised in the sunlight which had filtered through ordinary window glass were much more subject to rickets and other diseases.

Because the vital difference between ordinary window glass and the quartz of the lamp is that ultra-violet rays cannot pass through the former, Dr. Bovie said that children would benefit as much as chicks from the use of window glass made from clear fused quartz.



How the radiations of a quartz mercury lamp may be applied in treating the back. The patient sits in a relaxed position and receives the full therapeutic value of the ultra-violet rays.

"Babies, particularly those of poor families, brought up in dark alleys and crowded tenement houses, and rich children brought up in homes where the windows are closed and all sunlight is filtered through common glass, develop rickets," said Dr. Bovie.

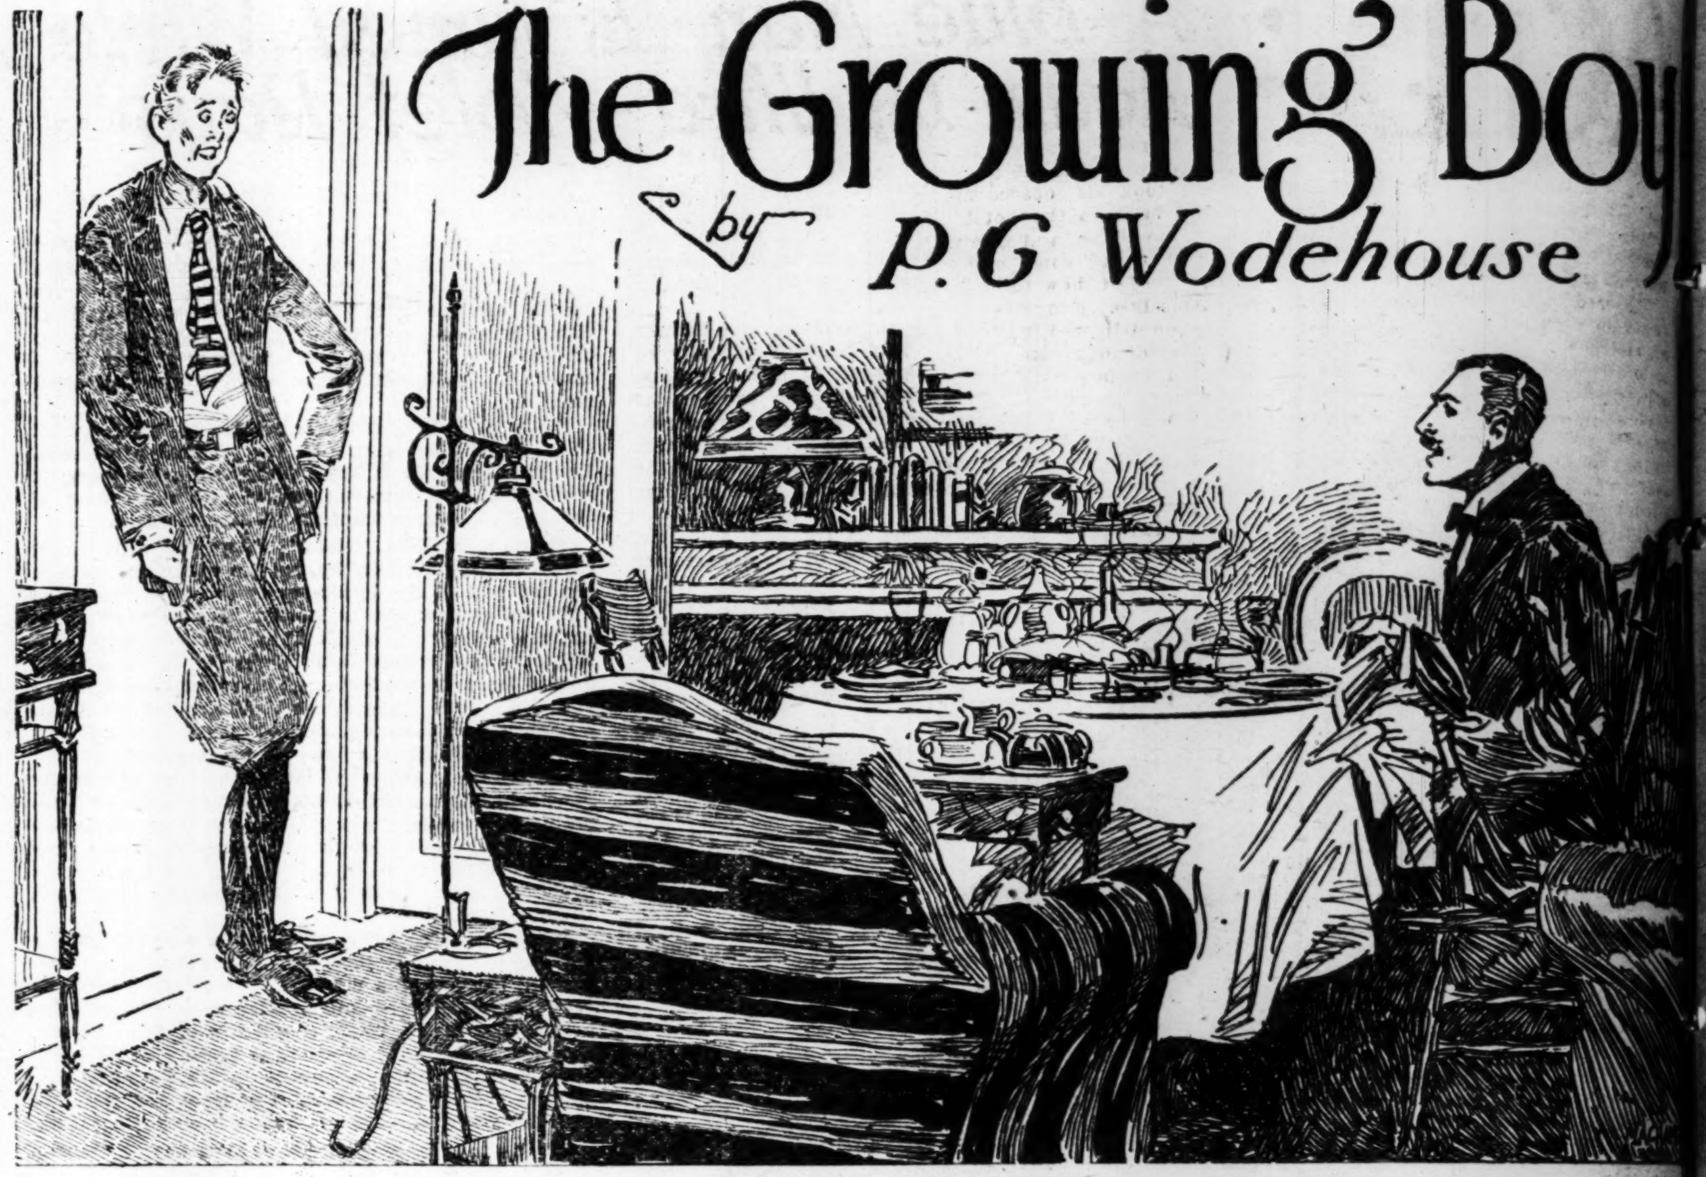
The use of clear fused quartz upon any such scale as that which permits its manufacture into window glass has only become possible during the last year. Fused quartz, it is true, has been produced for many years, but only in such small quantities that, by weight, it was many times costlier than gold.

The discovery of economic methods of manufacture followed 10 years of costly experimentation at the Thomson Research Laboratory of the General Electric Co., West Lynn, Mass., where the work was in charge of Edward R. Berry, assistant directory of the laboratory. Berry did not christen his product with a fancy name, but called it, simply, fused quartz.

Quartz mercury lamps for cloudy days and dark places and hospital treatment, together with quartz window panes which will admit all the sunlight—at last, it seems, man is ready to avail himself of the priceless ultra-violet rays, whether they come from the sun or from his own manufactured apparatus.

The Growing Boy

by P. G Wodehouse



"Come on in, then," said Archie, "and close the door. The fatted calf is getting cold."

THE lobby of the Cosmopolis Hotel was a favorite stamping ground of Mr. Daniel Brewster, its proprietor. He liked to wander about there, keeping a paternal eye on things, rather in the manner of the jolly innkeeper of the old-fashioned novel. Customers who, hurrying in to dinner, tripped over Mr. Brewster were apt to mistake him for the house detective, for his eye was keen and his aspect a trifle austere, but, nevertheless, he was being as jolly an innkeeper as he knew how.

Most of the time, Mr. Brewster stood in one spot and just looked thoughtful; but now and again he would wander to the marble slab behind which he kept the desk clerk and run his eye over the register to see who had booked rooms—like a child examining the stocking on Christmas morning to ascertain what Santa Claus had brought him.

As a rule, Mr. Brewster concluded this performance by shoving the book back across the marble slab and resuming his meditations. But one night in the early spring he varied this procedure by starting rather violently, turning purple, and uttering an exclamation which was manifestly an exclamation of chagrin. He turned abruptly and caromed into his son-in-law, Archie Moffam, who, in company with Lucille, his wife, happened to be crossing the lobby on his way to dine in their suite. Mr. Brewster apologized gruffly, then, recognizing the victim, seemed to regret having done so.

"You mustn't bully Archie," said Lucille, severely, "because he's an angel and I love him, and you must learn to love him, too."

"Give you lessons at a reasonable rate," murmured Archie, Mr. Brewster regarding his young relative with a lowering eye.

"What's the matter, father, darling?" asked Lucille. "You seem upset."

"I am upset," Mr. Brewster snorted.

"Why, what's happened?"

"Those darned McCalls have registered here."

"No!"

"Bit beyond me, this," said Archie. "Deep waters and what-not. Who are the McCalls?"

"Some people father dislikes," said Lucille. "And they've chosen his hotel to stop at. But, father, dear, you mustn't mind. It's really a compliment. They've come because they know it's the best hotel in New York."

Lucille steered her husband to the elevator.

"Poor father!" she said, as they went to their suite. "It's a shame. They must have done it to annoy him. This man McCall has a place next to some property father bought in Westchester, and he's bringing a lawsuit against father about a bit of land which he claims belongs to him. He might have had the tact to go to another hotel. But, after all, I don't suppose it was the poor little fellow's fault. He does whatever his wife tells him to.

"Mr. McCall is one of those little, meek men, and his wife's one of those big, bullying women. It was she who started all the trouble with father. Father and Mr. McCall were very fond of each other till she made him begin the suit. I feel sure she made him come to this hotel just to annoy father. Still, they've probably taken the most expensive suite in the place, which is something."

* * * * * * *

Archie was at the telephone. His mood was now one of quiet peace. Of all the happenings which went to make up existence in New York, he liked best the cozy tete-a-tete dinners with Lucille in their suite, which, owing to their many engagements—for Lucille was a popular girl, with many friends—occurred all too seldom.

"Touching now the question of browsing and sluicing," he said, "I'll be getting them to send along a waiter."

"Oh, good gracious!"

"What's the matter?"

"I've just remembered. I promised faithfully I would go and see Jane Murchison today. I must rush. She's sure to make me stop to dinner. I tell you what. Order something for me, and, if I'm not back in half an hour, start."

The waiter arrived, booked the order and departed. Archie had just completed his toilet after a shower bath when a musical clinking without announced the advent of the meal. He opened the door. The waiter was there with a table congested with things under covers, from which escaped a savory and appetizing odor. In spite of his depression, Archie's soul perked up a trifle.

Suddenly he became aware that he was not the only person present who was deriving enjoyment from the scent of the meal. Standing beside the waiter and gazing wistfully at the foodstuffs was a long, thin boy of about 16. He was one of those boys who seem all legs and knuckles. He had pale-red hair, sandy eyelashes and a long neck; and his eyes, as he removed them from the table and raised them to Archie's, had a hungry look.

"That smells good," said the boy. He inhaled deeply. "Yes, sir," he continued, as one whose mind is definitely made up; "that smells good!"

Before Archie could reply the telephone bell rang. It was Lucille, confirming her prophecy that Jane would insist on her staying to dine.

"Jane," said Archie into the telephone, "is a pot of poison. The waiter is here now, setting out a rich banquet, and I shall have to eat two of everything by myself."

He hung up the receiver, and, turning, met the pale eyes of the long boy, who had propped himself up in the doorway.

"Were you expecting somebody to dinner?" asked the boy.

"Why, yes, old friend; I was."

"I wish—oh, nothing."

Archie was not an abnormally rapid thinker, but he began at this point to get a clearly defined impression that this lad, if invited, would waive the formalities and consent to join his meal. Indeed, the idea that Archie got was that, if he were not invited pretty soon he would invite himself.

"Yes," he agreed; "it doesn't smell bad—what?"

"It smells good," said the boy. "Oh, doesn't it? Wake me up in the night and ask me if it doesn't."

"You've dined, I suppose—what?" said Archie.

"I never dine."

"What?"

"Not really dine, I mean. I only get vegetables and nuts and things."

"Dieting?"

"Mother is."

"I don't absolutely catch the drift, old bea" said Archie.

The boy sniffed, with half-closed eyes, as a wave of perfume from the poulet en casserole floated pa him.

"Mother's a food reformer," he vouchsafed. "She lectures on it. She makes pop and me live on vegetables and nuts and things."

Archie was shocked.

"My dear old chap, you must suffer agonies—absolute shooting pains!" He had no hesitation n Common humanity pointed out his course. "Wo you care to join me in a bite now?"

"Would I?" The boy smiled a wan smile. "Wo I? Just stop me on the street and ask me!"

"Come on in, then," said Archie, rightly tak this peculiar phrase for formal acceptance. "A close the door. The fatted calf is getting cold."

Archie was not a man with a wide visiting among people with families, and it was so long s he had seen a growing boy in action at the ta that he had forgotten what 16 is capable of d with a knife and fork when it really squares h bows, take a deep breath and gets going. The sp tacle which he witnessed was consequently at fi a little unnerving. The long boy's idea of trif with a meal appeared to be to swallow it wh and reach out for more. He ate like a starv Eskimo.

On the following morning it chanced that Arc needed a fresh supply of tobacco. It was his cus tom, when this happened, to repair to a small sho on Sixth avenue. His relations with Joe Blake, th proprietor, were friendly and intimate. The dis ery that Mr. Blake was English and had, indeed, til a few years back, maintained an establish only a dozen doors or so from Archie's London had served as a bond.

Today, he found Mr. Blake in depressed m After a short and melancholy good morning turned to get the tobacco in silence.

Archie's sympathetic nature was perturbed.

"What's the matter, laddie?" he inquired. "Y would seem to be feeling a bit of an onion bright morning—what—yes—no? I can see it w the naked eye."

Mr. Blake indicated a poster which hung on wall behind the counter. Archie had noticed as he came in. It was printed in black letters o yellow ground, and ran as follows:

"Indigestion!" Mr. Blake laughed another of his hollow laughs. "You couldn't give that boy indigestion if you fed 'im on safety-razor blades.

"Seems last night, instead of going and resting 'is mind at a picture palace, like I told 'im to, 'e sneaked off to some sort of a lecture down on Eighth avenue. 'E said 'e'd seen a piece about it in the papers, and it was about rational eating, and that kind of attracted 'im. 'E sort of thought 'e might pick up a few hints like. 'E didn't know what rational eating was, but it sounded to 'im as if it must be something to do with food, and 'e didn't want to miss it. 'E came in 'ere just now," said Mr. Blake, dully, "and 'e was a changed lad. Scared to death, 'e was. Said the way 'e'd been going on in the past, it was a wonder 'e'd got any stummick left. It was a lady that give the lecture, and this boy said it was amazing what she told 'em about blood pressure and things 'e didn't even know 'e 'ad. She showed 'em pictures—colored pictures—of what 'appens inside the injudicious eater's stummick who doesn't chew 'is food, and it was like a battlefield. 'E said 'e would no more think of eatin' a lot of pie than 'e would think of shootin' 'imself, and, anyhow, eating pie would be a quicker death. I reasoned with 'im, Mr. Moffam, with tears in my eyes. But there wasn't any doing anything with 'im. 'E give me the knock and 'opped it down the street to buy nuts. Two 'undred dollars and more gone pop, not to talk of the $50 'e would 'ave won, and me to get 25 of!"

Archie took his tobacco and walked pensively back to the hotel. He was fond of Joe Blake, and grieved for the trouble that had come upon him. It was odd, he felt, how things seemed to link themselves up together. The woman who had delivered the fateful lecture to the injudicious eaters of the West Side could not be other than the mother of his young guest of last night.

As if Destiny were suiting her plans to his, one of the first persons he saw as he entered the lobby of the Cosmopolis was the long boy.

"Well, well, well!" said Archie. "Here we are again—what?" He prodded the boy amiably in the lower ribs. "You're just the chap I was looking for. Got anything on for the time being?"

The boy said he had no engagements.

"Then I want you to stagger round with me to a chappie I know on Sixth avenue. It's only a couple of blocks away. I think I can do you a bit of good. Put you onto something tolerably ripe, if you know what I mean. Trickle along, laddie; you don't need a hat."

They found Mr. Blake brooding over his troubles still.

The long boy scanned the poster. A gleam appeared in his rather dull eye.

"Well?"

"Some people have all the luck!" said the long boy, feelingly.

"Would you like to compete—what?"

The boy smiled a sad smile.

"Would I? Would I? Say"——

"I know," interrupted Archie. "Wake you up in the night and ask you! I knew I could rely on you, old thing." He turned to Mr. Blake. "Here's the fellow you've been wanting to meet—the finest left-and-right-hand eater east of the Rockies! He'll fight the good fight for you."

Mr. Blake's English training still retained a nice eye for the distinctions of class.

"But this young gentleman's a young gentleman," he urged, doubtfully, yet with hope shining in his eye. "He wouldn't do it."

"Wouldn't do what?" asked the boy.

"Why, save the old homestead by taking on the champion. Dashed sad case, between ourselves. This poor egg's nominee has given him the raspberry at the eleventh hour, and only you can save him. And you owe it to him to do something, you know, because it was your jolly old mater's lecture last night that made the nominee quit. You must charge in and take his place. Sort of poetic justice, don't you know, and what-not." He turned to Mr. Blake. "When is the conflict supposed to start? Two-thirty? You haven't any important engagement for 2:30, have you?"

"No. Mother's lunching at some ladies' club and giving a lecture afterward. I can slip away."

Archie patted his head.

"Then leg it where glory waits you, old bean!"

The long boy was gazing earnestly at the poster.

"Pie!" he said, in a hushed voice.

The word was like a battle-cry.

At about 9 o'clock on the following morning, in a suite at the Hotel Cosmopolis, Mrs. Cora Bates McCall, the eminent lecturer on rational eating, was seated at breakfast with her family. Before her sat Mr. McCall, a little, hunted-looking man, the natural peculiarities of whose face were accentuated by a pair of glasses of semi-circular shape, like half-moons with the horns turned up. Behind these, Mr. McCall's eyes played a perpetual game of peek-a-boo, now peering over them, anon ducking down and hiding behind them. He was sipping a cup of anticaffein. On his right, toying listlessly with a plateful of cereal, sat his son Washington. Mrs. McCall herself was eating a slice of health bread and nut butter. For she practiced as well as preached the doctrines which she had striven for so many years to inculcate in an unthinking populace. Her day always began with a light but nutritious breakfast, at which a peculiarly uninviting cereal, which looked and tasted like an old straw hat that had been run through a meat-chopper, competed for first place in the dislike of her husband and son with a more than usually offensive brand of imitation coffee. Mr. McCall was inclined to think that he loathed the near-coffee rather more than the cereal, but Washington held strong views on the latter's superior ghastliness. Both Washington and his father, however, would have been fair-minded enough to admit that it was a close thing.

Mrs. McCall regarded her offspring with grave approval.

"I am glad to see, Lindsay," she said to her husband, whose eyes sprang dutifully over the glass fence as he heard his name, "that Washy has recovered his appetite. When he refused his dinner last night I was afraid that he might be sickening for something. Especially as he had quite a flushed look. You noticed his flushed look?"

"He did look flushed."

"Very flushed. And, when he said that he had no appetite, I am bound to say that I was anxious. But he is evidently perfectly well this morning. You do feel perfectly well this morning, Washy?"

The heir of the McCalls looked up from his cereal.

"Uh-huh," he said.

Mrs. McCall nodded.

"Surely, now you will agree, Lindsay, that a careful and rational diet is what a boy needs. I shudder when I think of the growing boys who are permitted by irresponsible people to devour meat—candy—pie"—— She broke off. "What is the matter, Washy?"

It seemed that the habit of shuddering at the thought of pie ran in the McCall family, for, at the mention of the word, a kind of internal shimmy had convulsed Washington's lean frame, and over his face there had come an expression that was almost one of pain.

"Pie," proceeded Mrs. McCall, in her platform voice. She stopped again, abruptly. "Whatever is the matter, Washington? You are making me nervous."

"I'm all right."

Mrs. McCall had lost the thread of her remarks. Moreover, having now finished her breakfast, she was inclined for a little light reading. One of the subjects allied to the matter of dietary on which she felt deeply was the question of reading at meals. She was of the opinion that the strain on the eye, coinciding with the strain on the digestion, could not fail to give the latter the short end of the contest; and it was a rule at her table that the morning paper should not even be glanced at till the conclusion of the meal. She said that it was upsetting to begin the day by reading the paper, and events were to prove that she was occasionally right.

All through breakfast the Chronicle had been lying neatly folded beside her plate. She now opened it, and, with a remark about looking for the report of her yesterday's lecture at the Butterfly Club, directed her gaze at the front page, on which she hoped that a city editor with the best interests of the public at heart had decided to place her.

Mr. McCall, jumping up and down behind his glasses, scrutinized her face closely as she began to read. He always did this on these occasions, for none knew better than he that his comfort for the day depended largely on some unknown reporter whom he had never met.

Today, he noted with relief, all seemed to be well. The story actually was on the front page.

Mrs. McCall gave a sharp shriek, and the paper fluttered from her hand.

"My dear!' said Mr. McCall, with concern.

His wife had recovered the paper, and was reading with burning eyes.

"Washington!" A basilisk glare shot across the table and turned the long boy to stone—all except his mouth, which opened feebly. "Washington! Is this true?"

Washy closed his mouth, then let it slowly open again.

"My dear!" Mr. McCall's voice was alarmed. "What is wrong? What is the matter? Is anything wrong?"

"Wrong! Read for yourself!"

Mr. McCall was completely mystified. Where, Mr. McCall asked himself, did Washington come in?

He looked at the paper, and received immediate enlightenment. Headlines met his eye.

GOOD STUFF IN THIS BOY
ABOUT A TON OF IT

Son of Cora Bates McCall, Famous
Food Reform Lecturer, Wins
Pie-Eating Championship of West Side.

There followed a lyrical outburst. So uplifted had the reporter evidently felt by the importance of his news that he had been unable to confine himself to prose.

"My children, if you fail to shine or triumph in your special line; if, let us say, your hopes are bent on some day being President, and folks ignore your proper worth and say you've not a chance on earth, cheer up, for, in these stirring days, fame may be won in many ways. Consider, when your spirits fall, the case of Washington McCall.

"His mother (nee Miss Cora Bates) is one who frequently orates upon the proper kind of food which every menu should include. With eloquence the world she weans from chops and steaks and pork and beans. Such horrid things she'd like to crush and make us live on milk and mush. But, oh, the thing that makes her sigh is when she sees us eating pie! (We heard her lecture last July upon 'The Nation's Menace—Pie.') Alas, the hit it made was small with Master Washington McCall!

"For yesterday we took a trip to see the great pie-eating championship, where men with bulging cheeks and eyes consume vast quantities of pies. A fashionable West Side crowd beheld the champion, Spike O'Dowd, endeavor to defend his throne against an upstart, Blake's Unknown. He wasn't an unknown at all. He was young Washington McCall.

"The champion was a willing lad. He gave the public all he had. His was a genuine fighting soul. He'd lots of speed and much control. No yellow streak did he evince; he tackled apple pie and mince. This was the motto on his shield: 'O'Dowds may burst. They never yield.' His eyes began to start and roll. He eased his belt another hole. Poor fellow! With a single glance one saw that he had not a chance. A python would have had to crawl and own defeat to young McCall.

"At last—long last—the finish came. His features overcast with shame, O'Dowd, who'd faltered once or twice, declined to eat another slice. He tottered off, and kindly men rallied round with oxygen. But Washy, Cora Bates' son, seemed disappointed it was done. He somehow made those present feel he'd barely started on his meal. We asked him: 'Aren't you feeling bad?'

The Strange Case of George Edalji

say, by Lord Gladstone and all the forces of the Home Office, would have been incredible had I not actually examined the facts.

However, so far as Edalji's release from prison went, it was not long before that was accomplished. The articles caused a storm of indignation through the country. Truth had already taken up the defense; Sir George Lewis, and other forces joined the good work. A committee was formed by the Government to examine the report. It consisted of Sir Arthur Wilson, the Hon. John Lloyd Wharton and Sir Albert de Rutzen. Their finding, which came to hand in June, was a compromise document, for, though they were severe upon the condemnation of Edalji and saw no evidence which associated him with the crime, they still clung to the theory that he had written the anonymous letters, that he had, therefore, been himself contributory to the miscarriage of justice, and that, for this reason, all compensation for his long period of suffering should be denied him.

It was a wretched decision, and the Law Society, at the prompting of Sir George Lewis, showed what they thought of it by at once re-admitting Edalji to the Roll of Solicitors, with leave to practice, which they would never have done had they thought him capable of dishonorable conduct. But the result stands. To this day this unfortunate man, whose humble family has paid many hundreds of pounds in expenses, has never been able to get one shilling of compensation for the wrong done. It is a blot upon the record of English justice, and even now it should be wiped out.

It is to be remembered that the man was never tried for writing the letters—a charge which could not have been maintained—so that as the matter stands he has got no redress for three years of admitted false imprisonment on the score that he did something else for which he has never been tried. What a travesty of justice! The Daily Telegraph got up a subscription for him which ran to some 300 pounds. The first use he made of the money was to repay an old aunt who had advanced the funds for his defense. He came to my wedding reception, and there was no guest whom I was prouder to see.

So far, my work had been satisfactory. Where I caused myself great trouble was that in my local exploration at Wyrley I had come across what seemed to me a very direct clew as to both the writer—or, rather, writers—of the letters, and also of the identity of the mutilator—though the latter word may also have been in he plural. I became interested, the more so as the facts were very complex and I had to do with people who were insane as well as criminal. I have several letters threatening my life, in the same writing as those which assailed the Edaljis—a fact which did not appear to shake in the least the Home Office conviction that George Edalji had written them all. Mentally, I began to class the Home Office officials as insane also.

The sad fact is that officialdom in England stands solid together, and that when you are forced to attack it you need not expect justice, but rather that you are up against an unavowed trade union which is not going to act the blackleg to each other, and which subordinates the public interest to a false idea of loyalty. What confronts you is a determination to admit nothing which inculpates another official, and as to the idea of punishing another official for offenses which have caused misery to helpless victims, it never comes within the horizon. Even now, after the lapse of so many years, I can hardly think with patience of the handling of this case.

The mistake that I made—so far as my own interests were concerned—was that, having got on the track of the miscreant, I let the police and the Home Office know my results before they were absolutely completed. There was a strong prima facie case, but it needed the good will and co-operation of the authorities to ram it home. That co-operation was wanting, which was intelligible in the case of the local police, since it traversed their previous conclusions, but was inexcusable in the Home Office. The law officers of the crown upheld their view that there was not a prima facie case, but I fear that, consciously or unconsciously, the same trade-union principle was at work.

I will call the suspect X. I was able to show:

1. That X had shown a peculiar knife, or horse lancet, to someone and had stated that this knife did the crimes.

2. That this knife, or a similar knife, must have been used in some of the crimes, as shown by the shallow incision.

3. That X had been trained in the slaughter yard and the cattle ship, and was accustomed to brutal treatment of animals.

4. That he had a clear record, both of anonymous letters and of destructive propensities.

5. That his writing and that of his brother exactly fitted into the two writings of the anonymous letters. For this I had strong independent expert evidence.

6. That he showed signs of periodical insanity, and that his household and bedroom were such that he could leave unseen at any hour of the night.

There were very many corroborative evidences, but those where the main ones, coupled with the fact that when X was away for some years the letters and outrages stopped, but began again when he returned. On the other hand, when Edalji was put in prison the outrages went on the same as before.

It will hardly be believed that after I had laid these facts before the Home Office they managed to present the House of Commons with the official legal opinion that there was not a prima facie case, while a high official of the Government said to me: "I see no more evidence against these two brothers than against myself and my brother."

The Ogre of the Perilous Peak

which forecasts the wreckage of the world.

In those upper regions is the debris of a battle between granite and weather which still continues with relentless fury after hundreds of thousands of centuries, and which will end only when the entire range of the Rockies has been smitten down.

In the spectacle of elemental forces at war to the death there is something appalling, even in the mildness of summer. It may be imagined that the intensity is multiplied many fold when the winter of the poles adds its rigors to the scene.

It was into this bitterness of desolation that Miss Vaille and Kiener hazarded themselves on Sunday morning, Jan. 11. Both were intrepid and experienced mountaineers, and they were no doubt keyed to a sharp pitch of emotion over the prospect of accomplishing an adventure which no human beings had ever before achieved—that of a winter ascent of the east face of Long's Peak. It should be interjected that hardy climbers have more than once ascended this mountain in winter, but always by the conventional trails.

We can picture them faring forth at dawn in the gayest of spirits. Undoubtedly the weather was auspicious (comparatively); they may have waited several days for favorable omens. They were dressed as warmly as is compatible with free movement; presumably they carried thermos bottles of hot coffee or soup, food, ice axes, alpenstocks and ropes. Even in June, the mountain horse, which from personal experience I know will climb a cliff to avoid snow a foot deep, would be useless. So that the round trip of 14 miles had to be made on foot. The mountaineers must have been equipped with skis or snowshoes. From the account of Kiener, the survivor, they expected to make the trip in one day, as is easily done in summer.

One fancies that the three-mile climb to Timber Line Cabin was accomplished with no great difficulty. But at that point the route determined upon shifts from the usual trail sharply to the left. Up and up they went, over huge billows of snow, to the summit of Mill's Moraine, one flank of the gorge sliced by the glacier which has decapitated Long's Peak.

I Have Found Out How to Get Rid of Superfluous Hair Completely

Here's the Secret

I had become utterly discouraged with a heavy growth of hair on my face and lip. I tried every way to get rid of it—all the depilatories I had heard of, electrolysis, even a razor. I tried every advertised remedy, but all were disappointments.

I thought it was hopeless until there came to me the simple but truly wonderful method which has brought such great relief and joy to me and to other women that it really cannot be expressed in words.

My face is now not only perfectly free from superfluous hair but is as smooth and soft as a baby's, all by the use of the simple method which I will gladly explain to any woman who will write to me.

This amazing method is different from anything you have ever used—not a powder, paste, wax or liquid, not a razor, not electricity. It will remove superfluous hair completely and make the skin soft, smooth and beautifully attractive. Its use means an adorable appearance. And you face the brightest light—the most brilliant electric lamps—even the glare of sunlight joyously.

With this method, used according to the simple directions I will give you, your trouble with superfluous hair is over. You will never again appear with that ugly growth to disfigure your face.

So overjoyed was I with the results this method brought to me that I gave it my own name—Lanzette peer over the rim of this gorge; and I know that my hair almost stood on end when first, without warning, I surmounted it and looked down at the pit on the other side. But for Miss Vaille and her companion, it was no doubt commonplace, and they continued without a tremor along the trail which skirts the precipice and which leads to Chasm Lake.

Half a mile further on, the travelers were confronted by their real task—the 1500-foot precipice. This climb I am unable to describe, as I have never made it. But from talks with Prof. Alexander I should judge that it is largely a feat of zigzagging back and forth along cracks in the rock, with toe and finger holds of an inch or so, like a human fly climbing 10 skyscrapers piled one above the other.

With ice and snow added to the natural difficulties, the undertaking must have been infinitely laborious—a way to be won inch by inch, with a single failure of judgment, one moment of relaxed concentration, meaning death on the rocks beneath. The difficulty may be gauged by the fact that Miss Vaille and Kiener did not arrive in striking distance of the summit until sundown—an hour when they expected to be well along on the return trip.

The weather at these heights is incredibly treacherous. On the top of Long's Peak the sun may be shining at one moment, and the next you are in the center of a storm of snow, sleet and lightning. Such a mishap occurred. When not far from the top, Miss Vaille and Kiener were assailed suddenly by a blizzard, and the temperature, as their thermometer showed, dropped to 50 degrees below zero.

Return the way they had come would be fatal, for every mountain climber knows that, save for the labor of breathing, a descent is more exhausting than an ascent. And to climb down the east face of Long's at night? It was certain death. So the adventurers decided to continue to the top, and to come down by the longer but easier north trail.

"We were coming down a slope when Miss Vaille slipped," relates Kiener. "She slid and rolled 150 feet before she stopped. She wasn't hurt, but it unnerved her." Well it might! You can fancy her throwing herself on her back, with arms and legs spreadeagled, her ax fumbling at the ice, until at last it caught. There are not many places on this trail where one may slide 150 feet without caroming over a 2000-foot precipice.

It is a mile from the top of Long's to the Keyhole. It required nearly all night to make the distance; for it was towards sunrise, and the Boulder Field, that Miss Vaille's courage surrendered. Her feet and hands were frozen, and she told Kiener that she could go no farther. He took her on his back and carried her. He stumbled along for a while, but it was useless. The only chance of help was for Kiener to strike out alone for Timber Line Cabin. So he left her propped against the lee side of a great boulder.

A record is kept of all those who undertake Long's Peak, and, of course, an attempt by the east face in January was notorious all over the district. When Miss Vaille and her companion failed to return Sunday night a rescue party was sent up to the cabin. So that when Kiener fell exhausted, not far away, on Monday morning, his cry was heard and helpers rushed out to carry him to warmth and shelter.

He told of Miss Vaille's plight, and a party started for Boulder Field, fighting every inch through polar cold and a blinding snowstorm. They had less than three miles to travel, but it was not until a day later, on Tuesday, that they discovered Miss Vaille's body, lying frozen, behind the boulder where Kiener had been compelled to leave her. But Sortland, it was discovered, had strayed from the party in the snowfall, and when he failed to rejoin it, all hope was given up for his life.

The Growing Boy

'Me!' said the lion-hearted lad. 'Lead me'—he started for the street—'where I can get a bite to eat.' Oh, what a lesson does it teach to all of us, that splendid speech! How better can the curtain fall on Master Washington McCall?"

Mr. McCall read the epic through; then he looked at his son. If such a thing had not been impossible, one would have said that his gaze had in it something of respect, of admiration, even of reverence.

"But how did they find out your name?" he asked at length.

Mrs. McCall exclaimed impatiently:

"Is that all you have to say?"

"No, no, my dear; of course not. But the point struck me as curious."

"Wretched boy," cried Mrs. McCall, "were you insane enough to reveal your name?"

Washington wriggled uneasily.

"Hullo-ullo-ullo! What ho? What ho?"

Archie was standing in the doorway, beaming ingratiatingly on the family.

The apparition of an entire stranger served to divert the lightning of Mrs. McCall's gaze from the unfortunate Washy. Archie, catching it between the eyes, blinked and held on to the wall. He began to regret that he had yielded to Lucille's entreaty that he should look in on the McCalls and use the magnetism of his personality upon them in the hope of inducing them to settle the lawsuit.

"I think," said Mrs. McCall, icily, "that you must have mistaken your room."

"Oh, no; rather not! Better introduce myself—what? My name's Moffam, you know. I'm old Brewster's son-in-law, and all that sort of rot, if you know what I mean." He gulped and continued. "I've come about this jolly old lawsuit, don't you know."

Mr. McCall seemed about to speak, but his wife anticipated him.

"Mr. Brewster's attorneys are in communication with ours. We do not wish to discuss the matter."

Archie resumed his discourse.

"No—but I say, you know! I'll tell you what happened. I hate to totter in where I'm not wanted and all that, but my wife made such a point of it. She begged me to look you up and see whether we couldn't do something about settling the jolly old thing. How about it?" He broke off. "Great Scott! I say—what?"

So engrossed had he been in his appeal that he had not observed the presence of the pie-eating champion of the West Side. But now Washington, hearing the familiar voice, had moved from the window and was confronting him with an accusing stare.

"He made me do it!" said Washy, with the stern joy a 16-year-old boy feels when he sees somebody onto whose shoulders he can shift trouble from his own. "That's the fellow who took me to the place."

"What are you talking about, Washington?"

"I'm telling you! He got me into the thing."

"Is this true?" Mrs. McCall glared stonily at Archie. "Was it you who lured my poor boy into that—that"——

"That thing over on the West Side? Oh, absolutely! The fact is, don't you know, a dear old pal of mine who runs a tobacco shop on Sixth avenue was rather in the soup. He had backed a chapple against the champion, and the chappie was converted by one of your lectures and swore off pie at the eleventh hour. Dashed hard luck on the poor chap, don't you know! And then I got the idea that our little friend here was the one to step in and save the situash; so I broached the matter to him. And I'll tell you one thing," said Archie handsomely, "I don't know what sort of a capacity the original chappie had, but I'll bet he wasn't in your son's class."

For many years Mr. McCall had been in a state of suppressed revolution. He had smoldered, but had not dared to blaze. But this startling upheaval of his fellow sufferer, Washy, had acted upon him like a high explosive. There was a strange gleam in his eye, a gleam of determination.

"Washy!"

His voice had lost its deprecating mildness. It rang strong and clear.

"Yes, pop."

"How many pies did you eat?"

"A good few."

"How many? Twenty?"

"More than that. I lost count."

"And you feel as well as ever?"

"I feel fine."

Mr. McCall met his wife's eye with quiet determination.

"Cora," he said, resolutely, "I have come to a decision. I've been letting you run things your own way a little too long in this family. I'm going to assert myself. For one thing, I've had all I want of this food-reform foolery. Look at Washy! Yesterday, that boy seems to have consumed anything from a couple of hundredweight to a ton of pie, and he has thriven on it. Thriven! I don't want to hurt your feelings, Cora, but Washington and I have drunk our last cup of anticaffein. If you care to go on with the stuff, that's your lookout. But Washy and I are through." He silenced his wife with a masterful gesture, and turned to Archie. "And there's another thing: I never liked the idea of that lawsuit, but I let you talk me into it. Now I'm going to do things my way. Mr. Moffam, I'm glad you looked in this morning; I'll do just what you want. Take me to Dan Brewster now, and let's call the thing off and shake hands on it."

"Are you mad, Lindsay?"

It was Cora Bates McCall's last shot. Mr. McCall paid no attention to it. He was shaking hands with Archie.

"I consider you, Mr. Moffam," he said, "the most sensible young man I have ever met."

Archie blushed modestly.

"Awfully good of you, old bean!" he said. "I wonder if you'd mind telling my jolly old father-in-law that. It'll be a bit of news for him."

Bugs Lured to Doom by Sweet Odors

attracts the insect. Nor is it always easy to analyze the substances a plant contains. And besides all this, insects are often able to smell scents too faint for a human being's uneducated nose. Extremely strong concentrations of most odors are repellant to insects, just as to man. On the other hand, it is possible for a scent to be too delicate and elusive to serve as an effective attractant even for a bug's sensitive olfactory apparatus. The entomologist's problem is to find the most pleasing intensity of the most pleasing odor.

Testing out the insects in a laboratory will save much time, if efficient laboratory apparatus can be contrived. Dr. McIndoo recently described his apparatus for this purpose at a meeting of the American Association of Economic Entomologists in Washington, but he stressed the point that it should not be regarded as a perfected device. He has plans for a more efficient appliance which will be differently made.

The present olfactometer is made almost entirely of glass. A small bottle, which is covered with dark material, is used as a cage for beetles, ants or other subjects. The mouth of this dark bottle connects with the main stem of a glass Y tube. At the end of each fork of the Y-shaped tube is a bit of cotton saturated with a test substance. An exit branch of the tube is connected with rubber tubing, so that by a suction apparatus the air can be sucked through the glass tubes, carrying the odors with it.

However primitive their visual organs may be, most insects can be depended upon to go from a dark place toward light, because they are positively photographic. Insects confined in the dark bottle crowd against a bit of glass which keeps them from escaping into the glass tube where it is light.

But when the experimenter cautiously raises the tiny glass door he lets only one subject into the experiment chamber at a time. The insect may blunder around aimlessly in the glass passage until it goes apparently by chance into one fork of the tube or the other. But most insects show a keen awareness of the odors which are wafted through the glass corridors.

The odor which comes from one fork of the tube is selected because it is supposed to be particularly attractive or repulsive to that kind of insect. The other fork of the tube is the control side. If the substance being tested is diluted in alcohol, the control tube has in it a bit of cotton with plain alcohol. That is, the only difference between the atmosphere of the two forks is the single odorous substance under test.

If the subject is sensitive to the test odor, it may stand on its hind legs or wave its antennae violently in the air. It sniffs about, and finding the avenue from which the most pleasing scent seems to come, it goes off in that direction. The experimenter then removes the subject and admits another.

To study the tastes of the Japanese beetle from the laboratory standpoint, Dr. McIndoo spent a summer at the Japanese Beetle Laboratory at Riverton, N. J., where scientists of the Federal Government and the state governments of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware are working together.

The Japanese beetle has been known in this country for only eight years, but it is already seriously damaging plant life in three states, and unless it is checked it may be expected eventually to spread over the country. More than a quarter of a million dollars are being spent each year on scientific work to combat the pest.

The olfactometer was used mainly to check up on the different baits which Loren B. Smith and E. A. Richmond of the Riverton laboratory were employing in the beetle-infested areas. The usual method of capturing the pests employed by these investigators is to make a sticky bran mash containing an ingredient which will attract the beetles. Tin cans having holes in the end are filled with the mash and hung on infested trees. Every hour the beetles are collected off the cans. Frequently 100 or more pests are taken at each trap. Japanese beetles were put to the olfactometer tests with a number of odorous substances in different intensities. The beetles' favorite extract, according to recent experiments, is geraniol.

Scientists who are engaged in work of the sort described here hope to find cheaper, simpler, or more effective weapons with which to exterminate the destructive insects. The cotton boll weevil's board bill averages $300,000,000 a year, and this is increased by the European corn borer, the pink boll worm, the gypsy moth and a score of other pests. Control of one such undesirable immigrant now on the rampage would mean a national saving of millions of dollars.

SLOW Ears or QUICK Ears

Which Are YOURS?

Slow ears mean that you can't quite catch the sense of what people are talking about. You lose a word here and there. You feel tired because of your constant effort to hear.

Perhaps you have noises in your head, so that you feel confused when you try to distinguish sounds.

In other words you feel the gradual dulling of one of the most important of all our senses.

Quick ears mean just the reverse of the foregoing—the ability to hear sounds readily and keenly—to hear the birds—the lodge ritual—and the sermon.

Quick ears mean that you catch every word of the family chat—the business conversation—just as you used to do.

4-Day Treatments Free

In Boston at 303 Cornhill Building is the office of a man who after being graduated from Dublin University, Ireland, and after serving as surgeon in the British Royal Mail Naval Service for a period, has for more than 35 years, made Catarrhal Deafness a study. Moreover, Ear Specialist Sproule and his associates developed a method of Home Treatment for Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises.

It is so difficult to properly describe a Method of Home Treatment that instead they offer a 4-day treatment, FREE. All you have to do is to send off for a free Treatment. Just a postcard or letter asking for the Free Deafness Treatment will bring it by return mail.

You are asked to use it carefully. Examine the treatment—note its careful preparation—the ease and convenience with which it can be used at home. Observe how every detail of the Method has been made to work toward the desired end of changing slow ears into quick ears.

Then after you have done this, and have seen the Method for yourself, read what some grateful friends have to say of the results they have received.

If you have slow ears, you are gladly welcome to this opportunity to see what can be done for them through this Home Treatment Method.

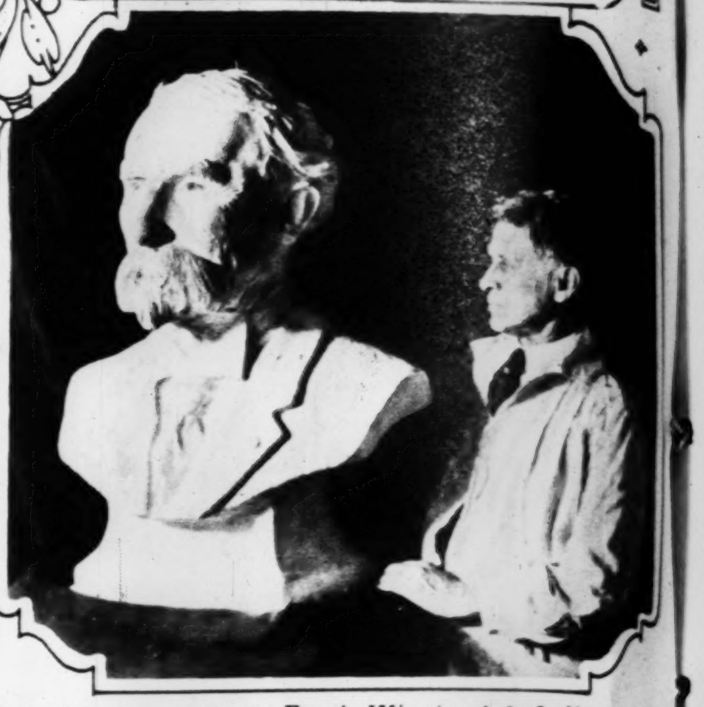
"THE MAN WHO MADE LOS ANGELES"



More than 30 years ago Frank Wiggins left Indiana for California. He had one lung left. He camped on the Pacific shore near Los Angeles, then a small town, recovered his health, and was so grateful that he spent the rest of his life boosting the Southern California city. For 30 years he was secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. He spent several months in St. Louis during the World's Fair of 1904, as California Commissioner. Mr. Wiggins died last October, and you see here his bust made by A. Phimister Proctor, which is to be placed in the main entrance to the new Chamber of Commerce Building in the city for whose extraordinary growth he, more than any other man, was responsible.

Lemon for The Hair

The Finest Rinse—By Helene Chadwick

"NEXT time you wash your hair, whether bobbed or long, rinse with the juice of two California lemons in a basin of water, as I do.

"Soap forms a curd which stays on the hair, no matter how frequently you rinse it with plain water. The hair is sticky in comparison, not really clean, when lemon isn't used. The curl comes out.

"Take my advice and try it, and then simply feel the hair. Note, too, its lustrous, fine appearance. See how the curl stays in it. One experience like mine and you'll always use the California lemon rinse as thousands do, including all the better 'Beauty Shops' where moving picture artists go. They know its value. This rinse is most effective, and is harmless."

Buy California Lemons for their rich, abundant juice. At all good stores.

Where will your Children be at your age?

ARE you hedged in where you are?

Are you looking for the better opportunity to succeed for yourself and your children?

California, with millions of prosperous people from other communities, has room for millions more, in town and country. California, with twice the average per capita wealth of America, has enormous undeveloped resources and is just beginning to grow.

Champion Boys and Girls

A better today for everyone—a better tomorrow for the children—California offers you that. Her cities in and near San Francisco Bay district hold the lowest infant mortality rate in the United States. Her boys and girls furnished more members to the latest Olympic teams than any other state. In California every sport belongs to all the people, and is played all through the year.

So it is throughout California's magnificent Central Valley. You will find swimming pools and golf courses in tiny towns, or even out in the country, and everywhere willingness to work hard when work is to be done, and to play when opportunity offers.

San Francisco Offers Much

In San Francisco—close to great universities, thousands of new families each year find exceptional cultural opportunities and advantages in getting ahead financially. A symphony concert seat costs twenty-five cents. The public schools are increasing at the rate of one new school a month. Increasing population provides increasing industrial opportunities of many sorts—for manufacturer and employee working together harmoniously.

—How thousands of newcomers feel about California is indicated by these typical excerpts from letters to Californians Inc. We can put you in touch with the writers if you desire.

"California can present opportunities so varied, inspiration so profound, and health so abundant, that you will almost be forced to succeed."

—G. T., San Francisco

MACHINE GUN IN BANK

The latest bank to arm itself, because of the increasing number of holdups, is at Forest Park, Ill. This quick-firing gun, mounted on a tripod, takes 40 cartridges of 45 caliber at one loading. It saw service in France and can tear a hole through a brick wall.

In London, debutantes have appeared recently with their hair dyed to a silvery whiteness. The white wigs which have been fashionable are now discarded.

from constipation, lowered vitality, skin and stomach disorders?

Boundless energy in this simple fresh food!

"I WAS a wreck and I knew it. Although young, scarcely twenty, indigestion had taken a firm hold; my complexion was bad, vitality gone and life looked black. I had tried everything and yeast had been recommended to me. 'How absurd,' I mused. 'Yet if I only dared hope!' At the end of a month my complexion was noticeably improved, my stomach working properly and my entire system rejuvenated. Miracles like this cannot happen in a day, but now I am the picture of health."

(Mrs. Arthur R. Pagnam, R. F. D. No. 29, Stamford, Conn.)

THESE remarkable reports are typical of thousands of similar tributes to Fleischmann's Yeast.

There is nothing mysterious about its action. It is not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense. But when the body is choked with the poisons of constipation—or when its vitality is low so that skin, stomach and general health are affected—this simple, natural food achieves literally amazing results.

Concentrated in every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast are millions of tiny yeast-plants, alive and active. At once they go to work—invigorating the whole system, clearing the skin, aiding digestion, strengthening the intestinal muscles and making them healthy and active.

Dissolve one cake in a glass of water before breakfast and at bedtime. Fleischmann's Yeast when taken this way is especially effective in overcoming or preventing constipation. Or eat 2 or 3 cakes a day—spread on bread or crackers—dissolved in fruit juices or milk—or eat it plain.
(just hot enough to drink)

Fleischmann's Yeast for Health comes only in the tinfoil package—it cannot be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it. Start eating it today! You can order several cakes at a time, for Yeast will keep fresh in a cool, dry place for two or three days.

Write for further information, or let us send you free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Address: Health Research Dept. 772, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington St., New York.

"AT the age of forty I found myself slipping in health. I was troubled with indigestion, constipation and nervous debility. I had read about people taking Fleischmann's Yeast, and ordered some. A while later, in answer to a friend's inquiry, I was surprised to hear myself reply, 'I feel like a prize-fighter' and realized then that I had not felt any sign of indigestion for some time, and was putting in ten to twelve hours' hard brain work daily. I knew I was back again."

(Mr. W. L. King of Washington, D. C.)

"IN the Spring of 1920 I had an attack of boils in a very bad form, which lasted for one year and five months. I tried all kinds of remedies. A fisherman friend made me a bet that Fleischmann's Yeast would cure the boils if I took 3 cakes a day. He said he would buy the yeast cakes. In 10 days my boils began to dry up, in 4 weeks only the marks were left and no new boils coming. I lost the bet and paid for the cakes, but I have not been troubled with boils since."

(Mr. John Faulkner, of Nanaimo, B. C.)

EAT FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST FOR HEALTH

"FIVE years ago as an office worker in Milwaukee, I could answer to the description of the 'rundown, nervous, suffering woman' in the patent medicine ads. My sallow complexion was my greatest worry and I was always troubled with constipation. I had taken medicine for four years, but the doctor said that drugs could not effect a permanent cure. Two years ago I learned from the girls in the office to eat Fleischmann's Yeast. Today I am frequently complimented on my fresh complexion and am told I don't look more than twenty-two. I hold the championship record for swimming and tennis in our club. I still have one incurable habit—half a cake of Fleischmann's Yeast daily with a glass of milk."

(Mrs. Ella Fitzgerald, of Ypsilanti, Michigan)

"WHEN I commenced to eat yeast about two years ago, I was the grouchiest grouch that ever nursed a grouch. I realized that my Nemesis was that curse of mankind—constipation. About every cathartic on the market went through my system. My grocer suggested that I give Fleischmann's Yeast a trial. Since I began eating it my bowels function perfectly night and morning—the proverbial kitten has nothing on me for sound slumber. I do not claim Yeast to be a universal 'cure-all'—but it certainly gave me an excellent start on the road to health."

(Mr. Cyril A. Gendermann of 1022 Tenth Avenue, Brooklyn)
